HORNER TEARS INTO SMALL

HOOVER ON WAY TO DETROIT FOR SPEECH TONIGHT

Plans Several Stops En Route Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—President Hoover left Washington at 10:30 tonight for his third midwestern ballot hunting excursion, which will culminate tomorrow night with a speech at Detroit.

All day tomorrow, as he travels across West Virginia and Ohio, he will be campaigning. Fourteen speeches at as many stops are on the schedule, and in between back platform appearances there will be conferences with state and local Republican leaders who will be hopping on and off the President's train throughout the journey.

The most pretentious of the speeches en route will be given at Charleston, W. Va., where a thirty minute stop will be made in the morning. The other halts will be of only five or ten minutes' duration.

What the high point of the Detroit address will be the President's associates would not foretell today, other than to confirm the report that Mr. Hoover would once more stress economic issues. He is expected to discuss the bonus and point to his own unequivocal stand against it as contrasted with Gov. Roosevelt's statement which, the Republicans claim, does not close the door on payment of the bonus in the near future.

Maryland Answers His Rival.

As the President's special train was preparing to pull out of the capital a vigorous personal attack was being fired in nearby Maryland at Gov. Roosevelt by Senator Daniel O. Hastings, Delaware Republican. To the Democratic candidate's recent assertions that the Republican administration had allowed Wall street operators and unprincipled promoters to fleece the public Senator Hastings replied, asserting that Gov. Roosevelt had himself been party to a promotion scheme resulting in large losses to investors.

According to the Delaware senator the New York governor was a director of the Consolidated Automatic Merchandising corporation, organized in May, 1928, as a holding company to acquire the stock of five companies manufacturing and licensing slot machines. A total of $11,000,000 of stock was offered in units of $55 each, Senator Hastings asserted. Promotion literature estimated the earnings for the first five years at 44½ million dollars at "conservative" figures.

Alluring Prospectus.

"I doubt whether any more alluring prospectus was ever published," Senator Hastings declared. "With Franklin D. Roosevelt's good name standing back of this company as a director it was perfectly possible for an unsuspecting public to believe that these net profits for the company would be realized. But let the records show the result. Instead of a profit of more than $2,000,000 the first year the loss was $458,580. Instead of a profit of nearly $4,000,000 the second year the loss was $831,484. Instead of a profit of nearly $8,000,000 the third year the loss was $884,510.

"I think it cannot be disputed that this very corporation comes within the language used by Gov. Roosevelt in his recent article entitled 'Theft Within the Law,'" Senator Hastings said. "Bear in mind that I do not in any sense charge him with fraud or attempted fraud. He may have simply been the victim of unscrupulous promoters."

Talks in New York Oct. 31.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—President Hoover will make his first appearance during the present campaign in the east at a Republican massmeeting to be held in the Madison Square Garden on Monday evening, Oct. 31.

Definite announcement fixing the date was made tonight at eastern headquarters of the Republican national committee by Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, director of the Hoover campaign in the east.

The New York speech, it was explained, will be in the form of an appeal to voters in the seventeen eastern states.

Parks New Auto; Returns to Find an Empty Shell

Myron L. Lambert, manager of a motor freight company, parked his new automobile last evening in front of the Alvira hotel, 6324 Kimbark avenue, where he lives. After supper he went out to start the car, but it wouldn't move. Investigation disclosed that thieves had stolen the generator, carburetor, air cleaner, manifold, and practically everything else under the hood except the motor block itself.

Roosevelt Says He'll Aid Investors

ST. LOUIS TALK GIVES HIS VIEWS ON BOND ISSUES

Springfield Speech for Farmers.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Protection for the American holders of many billions of dollars in securities was proposed by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for President, tonight in a speech delivered before thousands at the St. Louis coliseum.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Roosevelt, at Springfield, discussed the problems faced by the farmer, and proposed plans by which he hopes to give relief.

Men and women who have their savings invested in public and industrial bonds and in mortgages are entitled, the Democratic presidential nominee declared tonight, to full protection by the federal government.

Mr. Roosevelt discussed eight classes of securities and the steps he would take, if elected President, to protect each of them against the raids of "unscrupulous financiers." He particularly condemned the losses suffered by American investors in foreign bonds.

Abuse of U. S. Investors.

"Flagrant instances of the abuse of American investors," he declared, "occurring under this system are well known. The best that can be said is that the danger is in great part behind us and not ahead of us.

"My job will be to prevent a recurrence of this incident and to prevent the hard earned dollars of American investors from being frittered away in foreign fields, encouraged by the sanction of the federal government of the United States and with a profit flowing only to certain international financiers whose greed is greater than their patriotism."

Mr. Roosevelt declared the Hoover administration had failed to protect investors. He proposed the most rigid enforcement of economies in federal, state, and municipal governments so that the interest and principals in the bonds issued by these forms of government may never default.

Eight Types of Securities.

The eight types of securities discussed by the candidate, in the order he took them up, are the following:

Federal obligations.
State obligations.
Municipal bond issues.
Foreign obligations.
Domestic industrial bonds.
Railroads.
Real estate and farm mortgages.

Created for Public Good.

Gov. Roosevelt mentioned the tremendous importance he attached to stabilizing these securities. Not only the present and future enjoyment of life of millions of Americans who have individual rights in securities but thousands of institutions created for the public good—the churches, hospitals, relief funds, schools, and colleges and other nonprofit making organizations of many kinds—depend, the governor said, upon the maintenance of these property rights.

"I conceive these eight groups," the governor said, "as representing the foundation stones upon which the permanent credit of the country rests."

The program he already has advanced in the campaign, touching economy in government, the rehabilitation of the railroads, proper control of public utilities, extension of credits for home owners and farm owners—all this, Mr. Roosevelt declared, has been prepared with the view of strengthening the credit structure of the nation, and with that effecting a restoration of prosperity.

On federal obligations, the candidate condemned the failure of the Hoover administration to achieve a true balance of the national budgets.

Must Live Within Incomes.

"It is my pledge and my promise," he declared, "that this dangerous kind of financing shall be stopped and that rigid governmental economy shall be forced by a stern and unremitting policy of living within our income."

State obligations, Mr. Roosevelt said, "constitute one of the most sound and safe groups of the entire credit structure." He said a state also must live within its income, and he declared

Fear Political Canard Based on Robins Case

Warning was sent yesterday to all battalion commanders of the Crusaders, anti-prohibition organization, by Col. Ira L. Reeves, its western manager, to expect the appearance of a political canard based on the disappearance of "a well known reformer and dry leader." It was admitted the reference was to Raymond Robins, former Chicago social worker and friend of President Hoover.

The wet organizations, battling to elect congressmen, senators, and state legislators pledged to repeal the eighteenth amendment, were given an intimation the drys would seek to make political capital out of the Robins mystery. Just what form this maneuver will take was not learned, it was said at the Crusaders' headquarters; hence the sectional leaders were advised to be prepared to refute any propaganda implying that wets are responsible for Robins' disappearance.

On Way to White House.

The disappearance of the social worker was announced on Sept. 8, after Mr. Robins had failed to keep an engagement to see President Hoover at the White House. Mrs. Robins at once expressed the opinion that he had been killed by Florida bootleggers against whom he had conducted a campaign.

Shortly afterward several friends of Robins said they believed they had seen him in Chicago after his disappearance, but none had talked to him because Robins appeared to be preoccupied or distraught.

Robins is prominent in Chicago and well known over the country. He is known as a man of means who devoted his time to public affairs, mainly advocating prohibition and pacifism. He was a member of President Hoover's unemployment commission.

Blame Russ Imperialists.

Some opinions advanced were that the Russian imperialists were in some way involved in his disappearance because of his defense of the soviet régime. Robins was a Progressive candidate for United States senator from Illinois in 1914. During the war he was prominent in Red Cross affairs and was head of a relief expedition to Russia, where he became a friend of bolshevik leaders. Since then he had defended their cause.

Persistent reports that Robins was in seclusion in Chicago have been investigated, but without success. If there is any campaign significance in his disappearance the Crusaders hope to bring it out at once.

TOM MIX HURT AS HORSE FALLS IN FILM WORK

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Tom Mix, the veteran actor-horseman who has been the hero of many a western film, was seriously injured late today when his horse Tony fell with him on location at Lone Pine, California.

Mix suffered a fractured rib and a wrenched leg. He expects to resume film work in a week.

Mix was riding Tony, his mount in many pictures, at a fast gallop and engaging in a fight with Duke Lee, another actor, when one of Tony's flying hoofs went in a hole. Mix was hurled to the ground and his horse fell on him.

Jos. Fleming, Son of Lawyer, Killed in Crash

Joseph Barclay Fleming Jr., 19 years old, 807 North Sheridan road, Lake Forest, son of Attorney Joseph B. Fleming, was killed last night in an automobile crash in Cambridge, Mass. Injured in the same accident were Henry Haley Hixson Jr., 21 years old, 5100 Sheridan road, Chicago, and Miss Sue Potter, 18 years old, 570 Hawthorne lane, Winnetka.

Young Fleming was a junior at Williams college. Hixson is a senior at Dartmouth college and Miss Potter is a junior at Wellesley college.

Driving to Waltham.

According to the report of the accident made to the Boston police, Fleming was driving to Waltham, a Boston suburb, with the other two to get a second girl to make up their party. The four were planning to attend the Dartmouth football game in Cambridge today. At Memorial drive and De Wolfe street, Cambridge, another car driven at high speed crashed into them.

The driver of this second car was slightly injured. He was rushed with the trio of students to Cambridge City hospital, but died after he had been taken to the operating room. The police were seeking him early today. From the license number on the car it was believed he was John Dwyer.

Dies at Hospital.

Fleming died soon after reaching the hospital. The others were only slightly hurt and were allowed to leave the institution after treatment.

Young Fleming was a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity and was active in the Williams College Christian association. His father is a member of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin.

Fleming was one of five children of Attorney and Mrs. Fleming. The other four children are girls. Mr. Fleming planned to leave immediately for Cambridge by plane or train.

Miss Potter is the daughter of Paul D. Potter, a chemist. Hixson's father is Henry H. Hixson, coffee merchant at 365 East Illinois street.

Teachers Rout Organizer and "Union" Flops

Emmett T. Flood, white haired and veteran labor organizer, stood on the rostrum in Corinthian hall on the seventeenth floor of the Capitol building last night and smilingly faced some 300 militant school teachers.

His purpose was to band the teachers into one great big happy organization. As a requisite to membership dues would be $10 per member per semester.

Mr. Flood didn't get far in his purpose.

Notices of Meeting.

Notices of last night's meeting had been sent to the principals of the schools, requesting them to send two delegates from each school. The cards bore the printed signature "The Committee" and announced that a "Teachers' Forum" was to be held. The meeting place, Corinthian hall, is where the Chicago Teachers' Federation, of which Miss Margaret Haley is executive secretary, gathers regularly.

When the 300 teachers assembled Miss Haley was among those present. Mr. Flood announced that he wanted all the teachers to amalgamate into one organization. Some one booed. Some one else shouted. Mr. Flood turned to Miss Haley.

"Miss Haley, do you say I am a racketeer?" he called.

"Yes, you are," shouted three or four teachers.

The Dues Are $10.

"The dues will be $10 per semester," he announced. "All in favor of such an organization—with such dues—please say 'yes.'"

Eight teachers shouted 'Yes,' and Mr. Flood rapped his gavel, shouting, through a chorus of boos: "The ayes have it."

At the same time he invited the "ayes" to step up, sign membership cards, and "pay what you can, even though you do not have $10 cash with you." A young man teacher stepped up. He laid $1 on the table. Three other men and four women also signed, but handed over no money.

"I Am the Committee."

Mr. Flood started to talk again. The teachers, he said, are not able to take care of themselves. Miss Dorothy Weil, president of the Federation of Women High School Teachers, got on the platform and asked what committee had called the meeting. Mr. Flood replied blandly that it was none of her business, but, pressed for an answer, he shouted:

"I am the committee!"

A woman cried out, "We want to know——" but never finished, for Mr. Flood interrupted: "You want to know whether Maggie Haley's racket is going to be broken up?" He followed with the assertion that the teachers' federation has only twenty-five members. Miss Haley's voice was heard saying, "You're a liar."

The fight continued until Homer Davis, principal of the Riis school, stepped up to Mr. Flood and shouted, "We don't want you, you racketeer." This was followed by cries of "Throw him out!" It was during this excitement that Mr. Flood disappeared.

Ask Pay Cut Data.

Questionnaires asking for information on the extent of their pay cuts were distributed yesterday to more than 300 teachers at the Central Y. M. C. A. The meeting was called by Miss Helen Israel and was attended by delegates from schools throughout the city.

The teachers adopted a resolution favoring a state law to compell banks to turn over all their profits over 6 per cent yearly to the state distributive fund for use in the schools. The resolution was presented by Harry L. Tate, principal of the Whitney elementary school.

LEN'S NEIGHBORS HAIL EXPOSURE OF HIS RECORD

Democrats Hold Big Kankakee Rally.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kankakee, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Lashing Len Small's record as "shameful" and his whispering campaign as "vicious and scurrilous," Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor, tonight delivered a blistering speech in Small's home town before more than 4,000 of Small's neighbors, who whooped and cheered the speaker.

For two hours Judge Horner held his audience, hundreds standing in the aisles throughout the speech. In referring to the whispering campaign which has been waged against him he likened Small, Smith, and a former Republican mayor of Chicago to the three witches of Endor in Macbeth, brewing a poisonous mess in a cauldron. When he had finished the crowd swarmed around him, hundreds seeking to shake his hand. Politicians said it was the largest political meeting ever held in Kankakee by either party.

In Enemy Territory.

In both of today's speeches, at Dwight and Kankakee, Judge Horner was invading enemy territory. Livingston and Kankakee counties are normally heavily Republican, in addition to being the home counties of the Republican candidate and his downstate manager, Frank L. Smith.

The turnout of more than 1,400 in the high school gymnasium at Dwight and the large crowd at the armory here amazed and delighted the Democratic party managers. Judge Horner declared that it was proof that the people who know Small best have repudiated him.

Hits at Whispered Attacks.

The jurist left no chapter of Small's record untouched, and he handled his subject with bare hands. He asserted that at the outset of the campaign he had not intended to exchange personalities, but that he had been forced to retaliate against the whispered attacks of his opponent.

Judge Horner told his hearers that they had an opportunity to break the "strangle hold" of Small on their community.

"I know that you people do not relish being known as the fellow citizens of Len Small," he began. "We of Chicago felt the same way in the years that preceded the last mayoralty campaign. When we left our city to mingle with people in other communities we found that they were inclined to view us askance. The former Republican mayor and his notorious rule disgraced Chicago in the eyes of the world.

"Rid of That Mayor."

"But fortunately we were enabled to rid ourselves of that mayor, although he left us with our treasury emptied, our funds looted and our revenues pledged in advance. A Chicagoan is no longer ashamed to announce the name of his city. We hope that in the next few years we will have entirely regained what we have lost."

Then the speaker ripped into his opponent's record, pointing out that he had chosen the home town of Small in which to recite his history because of the familiarity which his audience would have with that history. He commented that the expenses of the state increased from $26,000,000 under Lowden to $80,000,000 annually under Small, and that the state tax rate rose in the same period from 40 cents to 85 cents.

Cites "Looting of Treasury.'

"You know the shameful story of the looting of the state treasury," he declared. "You know how $18,000,000 of the state's money was placed in the fictitious Grant Park State bank. You of Kankakee county know how they had never heard of the bank until they heard of the disappearance of money due to the state in interest. You know that the money supposed to have been deposited in the fake bank had actually been loaned to Chicago packers and that $2,000,000 was collected on this money."

Judge Horner then discussed the trial of Small at Waukegan, the placing of six jurors on the state pay roll after the failure to convict Small, and the fat state jobs given to the sheriff of Lake county and the chairman of the board of supervisors after the trial.

He repeated other items of Small's record which he has discussed in recent speeches, such as the compromise payment of $850,000 by Small to the state after he had been ordered to pay $1,300,000 wrongfully withheld.

Recalls Miller's Record.

"You know that Col. W. H. H. Miller, one of Small's appointees, was convicted of peddling medical licenses," he continued. "You know the shameful story of the pardon of Harry Guzik and his wife, Alma, convicted as panders and white slavers, and freed by Small because of the political influences wielded by Al Capone and his principal lieutenant, Jack Guzik.

"You know the story of other criminals pardoned by Small, not by scores, but by hundreds. You know how a legislative committee found the pay rolls of the state were padded. You even know that when Small left the executive mansion the $35,000 silver set that had been donated to the state by former Gov. Lowden was not found by Gov. Emmerson, and you know that it has not been returned."

The judge then assailed Frank L. Smith, Small's downstate manager, reviewing the story of Smith's rejection by the senate on evidence that Samuel Insull had contributed $125,000 to the Smith campaign fund.

Urges Vote Condemnation.

"Knowing these things as you do, I feel certain that you people are going to follow the example we set in Chicago and condemn by your votes such persons as Small and Smith," he concluded.

"By your votes, you will show that you resent their betrayal of the public trust, and when you bury them under an avalanche of votes on Nov. 8, all that will remain for them will be a malodorous memory."

Judge Horner also quoted prominent Republicans of Illinois who have condemned his opponent. He quoted Senator Otis F. Glenn in a statement made in April, 1928, as saying, "by all means give Small another term but we may disagree as to where he shall serve it."

Quotes Thrusis at Small.

Other quotations follow:

Charles G. Dawes [Oct. 14, 1922]: "Under Small, taxes and expenditures have gone up until there isn't a worse administered state in the Union."

Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom [April 1, 1928]: "The unholy alliance of Small and the Republican mayor has brought shame and disgrace upon Illinois and Chicago."

Gov. Emmerson: "Small has made a political football of our hard roads."

JOHN N. WILLYS SOUNDS WARNING ON U. S. TAX LOAD

Republicans Distribute His Plea for Hoover.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republican national headquarters made public yesterday a new warning on the issue of cutting cost of government. It was prepared by John N. Willys of Toledo, former United States ambassador to Poland and chairman of the board of Willys-Overland company, who holds that government economy is the paramount issue in the campaign, and that if warnings of President Hoover had been heeded "the check rein could have been applied."

JOHN N. WILLYS.

"America," said Mr. Willys, "is in the same position as the family that has purchased heavily on the installment plan, and suddenly finds that, after payment of the amounts due, there is not enough money left to pay the grocer, butcher or landlord.

33% of Income for Taxes.

"When you consider that 33 cents out of every dollar of our 1932 income will revert back to the federal, state, city and county government in the form of tax assessments, then you must realise that before we can have sound prosperity in the United States, the high cost of government and high taxes must be reduced.

"Our national income reached its peak in 1929, being estimated at more than 85 billion dollars. In 1931 it dropped to 57 billions, and it is estimated the national income in the current year will not be more than 45 billions.

"In 1916 our income totaled 33 billions. The current annual tax bill is estimated at 15 billions, as compared with only two billion 800 million dollars collected in federal, state, city, and county taxes in 1913.

"These figures present this situation:

"Our population today is approximately 123 million. Bonded and mortgaged indebtedness is not less than 128 billions. Income, less the 15 billion toll in taxes, will be 30 billions.

Same Income as 1932.

"Compare this with the situation of 1916, when our population was 100 million. Our bonded and mortgaged indebtedness then was about 45 billion. Our income, less taxes, was also 30 billions—identical with 1932.

"In other words, a 1916 national income of 30 billion dollars must today be devoted to meeting an indebtedness about three times as large and the necessities of a population that is 23 per cent greater.

"It is a situation that requires readjustments along the line—first, greater economy in government, immediate remedial legislation to lift the terrific burden of taxation, a sound common sense appraisal of our government executives."

As a specimen of governmental waste Mr. Willys narrated one of his experiences in Poland.

"While serving as ambassador to Poland," he said, "at an embassy dinner a charming Polish countess was my dinner partner. During the course of the dinner she expressed her gratefulness to the agricultural division of our government for furnishing her with a variety of seeds, which she requested after trying without success for several years to obtain a growth of grass and shrubbery on her estate.

Who Pays the Bill?

"Who paid for those seeds sent overseas to beautify a Polish estate? You, I, everybody who pays taxes to the government.

"I am fortunate (or unfortunate) enough to own a farm on Long Island, N. Y. Before this campaign began, like Gov. Roosevelt and Secretary Mills, I called it an estate. A portion of this farm, approximately thirty acres, I am renting to a nearby farmer for pasture and grazing purposes.

"From that rental I receive the stupendous amount of $50 a year. Yet I must pay an annual tax of $300 an acre on this land as one of my contributions to the high cost of government.

"Is this excessive rate of taxation based on the actual value of the property or on the rental I receive, or is it an arbitrary figure placed against it in order that excessive expenditures of tax money for the operation and maintenance of an extravagant government may continue? The answer is obvious. This in Gov. Roosevelt's own state and under his administration.

Water Over the Dam.

"But all of this is water over the dam. The next remedial step must be the enactment of necessary legislation that would reduce the present high cost of government and almost automatically lower the taxation load which we are all staggering under.

"Never has this Hoover demand for economy in government been more soundly and firmly emphasized than in the last sessions of congress, when, either through exercise of the veto power, or through the exerting of pressure on congress, he blocked attempts to pass measures seeking to appropriate more than four and one-half billions of dollars—a sum equal to approximately one-fourth of the public debt and more than our annual government expenditures."

STREET CAR AND AUTO COLLIDE; 1 SERIOUSLY HURT

One man was seriously hurt and five others suffered minor injuries in a collision between a street car and an automobile at 118th street and Avenue O early today. Both car and automobile were said to be traveling at a high speed. The trolley dragged the auto nearly 100 feet before it was derailed.

Carl Fugiel, 44 years old, of 13247 Buffalo avenue, a passenger in the auto, was the most seriously hurt. He was taken to the South Chicago hospital suffering from a skull fracture.

John Tarsa, 52 years old, 815 Lessing street, died early today at the Henrotin hospital from injuries suffered last night when struck by an automobile truck in front of 943 West Chicago avenue. According to the Racine avenue police, Tarsa walked into the side of the moving truck. The driver, unaware of the accident, did not stop. An inquest is to be held this morning.

Victim's Widow Refuses to Prosecute Gangster

Mrs. Julia Berkovec, whose husband, James, was killed in an automobile collision involving Michael [Bubs] Quinlan, south side beer gangster, on Jan. 14, refused yesterday to prosecute the gangster in the Felony court on a charge of reckless driving. Judge Harold P. O'Connell therefore dismissed the charges. The widow intimated that a settlement had been made by Quinlan out of court.

FARLEY SPEAKS AT INDIANAPOLIS; ISSUES WARNING

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—President Hoover was pictured tonight by Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley as "whimpering," attempting to "terrorize the country into voting for him," and "trying to scare business to death."

He declared "it does not do to underestimate the effect of such pressure" as that of "various industrial chiefs who are endeavoring to coerce their employés into voting the Republican ticket either directly by a threat that if Mr. Hoover is defeated the factory will close, or a trifle more subtly by the intimation that the industry requires a continuation of Republican rule."

"A job is a precious thing these days," he continued, "even a disguised threat must cause tremendous anxiety to the job holder, though his fear is only that plus and disappointment on the part of his boss might sentence him to a term in the army of the unemployed."

BETTING ODDS ON ROOSEVELT 5 TO 2 IN WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Betting odds on the presidential election advanced today to 2½ to 1 in favor of Gov. Roosevelt, owing to the receipt of a large amount of Democratic money by betting commissioners in the financial district. Yesterday the Democratic candidate was at 2 to 1.

He was a 7 to 5 favorite today to carry New York state—slightly higher odds than had been quoted previously.

Hoover is a favorite at 8 to 5 to carry Pennsylvania and 6 to 5 to win New Jersey.

SIX CANDIDATES SEEK CLERKSHIPS OF THREE COURTS

Two of Jobs Highly Prized for Patronage.

Six candidates for the clerkships of three courts, Superior, Circuit and the First District of the Appellate, are entering the final stages of their campaigns for election on Nov. 8.

Two of the clerkships, those of the Superior and Circuit courts, are prized by the political managers for patronage reasons. Each of the parties holds one of these positions, the Democrats having the Superior court clerkship, and the Republicans the Circuit court position. The incumbent of each is seeking reelection.

The clerkships of the four districts of the Appellate court are state offices, but inasmuch as the boundaries of the first district coincide with the lines of Cook county, the clerkship of the first district is considered generally as belonging in the list of county officers.

Clerks' Duties Outlined.

The duties of the clerks are to enter of record all judgments, decrees and orders, and keep the seals of their respective courts and also to keep files and records. The nominees for the offices, the incumbents being noted by asterisks, are as follows:

For Circuit court clerk, Thomas O. Wallace [R.], and John E. Conroy [D.]; for Superior court clerk, Jacob D. Allen [R.], and Frank V. Zintak [D.]; for Appellate court clerk, John T. Dempsey [R.] and Sheldon W. Govier [D.].

Thomas O. Wallace, who has been identified with the Edward J. Brundage faction of the Republican party since 1905, has been clerk of the Circuit court since 1924. Prior to 1924 he had 10 years of service in the city council during which he uncovered the first evidence of the $2,500,000 payments to "experts" under the old Republican city hall régime and battled consistently against the abuses charged against that administration. The Municipal Voters' league commended him as an alderman who supported economy and good government measures "with courage and persistency."

Conroy Former Assessor.

His Democratic opponent, John E. Conroy, served nearly six years as a member of the board of assessors. He was appointed to the board in 1926 to fill a vacancy and in 1928 was elected to a full term, but left the board before the term expired, as did his fellow members and members of the board of review, due to the reorganization of the county taxing machinery. He is a candidate as a consequence of the abolition of the board of assessors by the Kelly bill. He is in the real estate business.

The present clerk of the Superior court, Frank V. Zintak, was elected by the Superior court judges last year to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of M. S. Szymczak, who was appointed city controller. During the world war he was a special investigator for the state's attorney's office, afterwards returning to his general contracting business. He is Democratic committeeman of the 12th ward and lives at 3134 West 44th street.

Allen's First Candidacy.

Jacob D. Allen, the Republican nominee for this office, has been executive manager of the Deneen organization for several campaigns, and now is seeking public office for the first time. He served in the Pershing punitive expedition in Mexico, and later went to France with the 40th division, getting an honorable discharge after four and one-half years of service. He is president of two companies engaged in financing chambers of commerce, colleges, hospitals, hotels, and clubs. He lives at 1545 East 50th street.

Ald. Sheldon W. Govier [9th] is the Democratic candidate for clerk of the Appellate court. He has been elected to the city council for six consecutive terms, and steadily opposed the last Republican administration. His record as alderman has been approved by the Municipal Voters' league, which said of him: "Impulsive, but on the right side on all questions involving decency and honesty."

The Republican nominee for Appellate court clerk, John T. Dempsey, is committeeman of the 33d ward. For five years he served as assistant state's attorney under Robert E. Crowe, leaving that office to take a position as an assistant attorney general of Illinois under Oscar E. Carlstrom. He held the latter office for three years. He is 31 years old.

3 NUDE STATUES AT UNIVERSITY CLAD IN SHORTS

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Three graceful nudes embellishing a fountain on the campus of McGill university were attired today in black and blue shorts.

The fountain, the work of Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York, was presented to the university by a committee of prominent United States citizens, one of them Gen. Pershing. It was unveiled two years ago.

From the beginning there was a bit of adverse criticism, and for a time the university authorities kept the work covered, explaining cold weather was bad for the statues. A short time ago the covering was removed and the figures remained nude until today. The authorities did not know who clothed them.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Richard Yates, Republican congressman-at-large, has been "released" from further duty in the county campaign, as he phrased it yesterday, and will spend the rest of his time making speeches downstate.

W. W. O'Brien, criminal lawyer, running as an independent candidate for governor, has withdrawn.

A symposium on the presidential candidates will be held at the Covenant club tomorrow evening, under auspices of the club's forum committee. Emil C. Wetten will speak in behalf of President Hoover, Attorney Quin O'Brien will present Gov. Roosevelt's side, and Prof. Paul H. Douglas of the economics department of the University of Chicago will talk on Norman Thomas.

Almost every wholesale and retail grocer is supporting Judge Henry Horner, P. J. Murphy, president of the "Horner for Governor Grocers' club," said yesterday.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh's address in behalf of Gov. Roosevelt tonight at the Loyola university gymnasium will be broadcast over the NBC radio chain from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m.

In a speech last night, Congressman Fred A. Britten, Republican, asserted that "if the United States is to adopt the policy of reciprocal tariffs advocated by Gov. Roosevelt we must then be prepared to build the greatest navy on earth. Reciprocal tariffs, international commercial intrigue, secret agreements, treaty advantages and foreign entanglements all go hand in hand and can only be successfully supported by sheer force."

Peter A. Meyer is chairman of a new division of the independent Horner for governor committee, composed of a group of Chicagoans of German extraction, many of them Republicans. William C. Sherwat, Frank J. Hinkamp and Peter Stumbrecht are vice chairmen, and Albert Weinberger is secretary.

Dr. Joseph C. Ross, Republican candidate for coroner, has received the indorsements of the Medical Women's club of Chicago, the Professional club of Cook county, and the Chicago Retail Druggists' association.

The Blue Island Democratic club will hold a mass meeting Tuesday night at which Judge Horner and Congressman Dieterich, candidate for senator, are billed to speak.

The Union Labor club of Illinois, Democratic labor organization, met yesterday at the Sherman hotel to perfect plans for a banquet in the Sherman Oct. 29. Judge Horner, Congressman Dieterich, and Senator Tom Courtney, candidate for state's attorney, will be among the speakers. Martin P. Durkin, vice president of the Chicago Building Trades council, expects more than 5,000 persons to attend.

Judge Otto Kerner, Democratic candidate for attorney general, was informed yesterday by E. W. Klaus, secretary of the Lutheran Voters' league, that the organization had indorsed his candidacy.

Results of a poll of the students at Park college, Parkville, Mo., were sent out by Republican national headquarters as follows: Hoover, 213; Roosevelt, 83; Thomas, 47.

State's Attorney Swanson and other Republican candidates will be guests of the 44th Ward National Republican club Wednesday night, at a banquet in the Lincoln Turner hall. Robert W. Dunn is ward chairman.

Investigation of Gov. Roosevelt's labor record by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor is asked by William L. Hutcheson, president of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, in a letter to William Green, president of the federation, at Washington, D. C. Mr. Hutcheson, who is director of the labor bureau of the Republican national committee, charges the Democratic managers have made "scurrilous attacks" on the "hundred per cent labor record of President Hoover."

Republican headquarters made public a message from G. L. Genebach, president of the United Steel and Wire company of Battle Creek, Mich., which said: "I think it would be a grave mistake to elect the Democratic ticket, as Mr. Garner might become the President before the expiration of Mr. Roosevelt's term. If this came about, the executive office would be held by a radical leader, who is so unbalanced in his political performances that the country would be plunged into such uncertainty and skepticism that great damage would result to business and possible ruin to the country."

One hundred baskets of food will be distributed by the relief committee of the 38th ward regular Democratic organization at noon today at its headquarters, 5803 Belmont avenue. The fall and winter relief work is being carried on by Mrs. M. S. Szymczak, wife of the city controller.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNTED AMONG G. O. P. FAITHFUL

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The Democrats are destined to poll an enormous vote in Pennsylvania, but probably not enough to deprive President Hoover of the 36 electoral votes of this dyed in the wool Republican state.

While Democratic National Chairman James Farley continues to claim Pennsylvania as well as every other state for Roosevelt, most of the responsible Democratic leaders here are saying privately that they entertain no substantial hope of seeing Pennsylvania in the Roosevelt column on the night of Nov. 8.

It is a fight, however, and the Republican leaders know it is. They are not counting on one of those electoral avalanches that Pennsylvania is accustomed to loosing in favor of the Republican ticket, such as Harding's 700,000 plurality in 1920, Coolidge's 700,000 majority over Davis and La Follette combined in 1924, and Hoover's one million plurality in 1928. Far from it. They will consider themselves lucky to roll up a margin of 100,000 votes for the President this time.

Over Million Out of Work.

The Republicans have been hit harder by the depression in Pennsylvania than in almost any other state for the reason that there are more factories shut down in this leading industrial commonwealth and hence more men unemployed here than elsewhere. There are upward of one million men out of work. The greatest volume of unemployment is in the Pittsburgh district, and there, as might be expected, Republican prospects are less promising than in any other part of the state.

Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, is confident, however, that Allegheny county [Pittsburgh] will contribute a Republican plurality which, together with that rolled up in Philadelphia, will assure a Hoover victory in the state. He stresses a recent rise in Hoover stock in the Pittsburgh territory due to increased employment in the tin plate and steel mills.

Less Party Discontent.

The disaffection of Republican leaders, which is so noticeable in states west of the Alleghenies, does not appear to be a serious factor in Pennsylvania. At a meeting of the state committee at Harrisburg last Tuesday the county chairmen from 60 of the 67 counties were present and the other seven reported by telephone. Among those in attendance was former Senator Grundy, who fell out with the administration following his defeat, had been consorting with Gov. Gifford Pinchot and giving no aid and comfort to the Hoover campaign.

That the sympathies of radical Gov. Pinchot are more with Roosevelt than with Hoover is no secret, but so far he has not taken any part in the campaign one way or the other. Some of the Pinchot key men are said to be working secretly for Roosevelt, while others are openly electioneering for Hoover. The silence and inactivity of Pinchot have proved disappointing to the Democratic leaders, who thought they had reason to believe that he would take the stump for Roosevelt.

According to the views of Republican leaders the governor is intentionally maintaining regular in the contest with a view of running for senator against David A. Reed in 1934.

Vare Now for Hoover.

Whether Senator George W. Norris [Radical Rep., Neb.] made any appreciable number of votes for Roosevelt by his speech here recently is a matter of guess work. He was sent into the state largely because of the influence he was generally judged to have wielded in 1926 when he campaigned in Pennsylvania in behalf of the Democratic candidate for senator, former Secretary of Labor Wilson, against William S. Vare, the Republican nominee. Wilson came down to the Philadelphia line with a plurality of 26,000, a phenomenal achievement for a Democrat in this state, being beaten by Vare's 200,000 plurality in this city.

There seems to be little reason to doubt that Hoover will carry Philadelphia by a large plurality. In the first place Boss Vare, though physically crippled and spending most of his time at Atlantic City, has given the word to his satraps to get out the vote for the ticket. He appeared at a meeting of his ward leaders last Monday night and told them he is 100 per cent for Hoover.

Appeased by Appointment.

That action is supposed to have put the quietus on whisperings that Vare was lukewarm to the President and did not care whether he carried Philadelphia or not. The fact that Vare did sour on the administration some months ago because of its reluctance to name his friend and lawyer Ed Wells to the office of district attorney.

Mr. Wells had represented Vare in his unsuccessful effort to induce the senate to seat him. Mr. Hoover evinced considerable doubt that Mr. Wells was qualified for the district attorneyship. As the presidential contest approached, however, and the vote of Boss Vare's Philadelphia became more and more important to the Hoover cause, administration doubts of Mr. Wells' qualifications vanished. Mr. Wells was appointed and Mr. Vare was appeased.

Al Smith received 276,000 votes in Philadelphia four years ago, but Roosevelt will be lucky to touch 150,000 in the opinion of election experts. The reason is that Vare has his forces well in hand this time. In 1928 they got away from him—so completely in fact, that a number of Vare candidates were beaten, including his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence Vare. The boss was unable to control the Italian Catholics of South Philadelphia who, though Republicans to a man, went hell-bent for the wet and Roman Mr. Smith, incidentally voting the Democratic ticket straight.

This time the religious issue does not figure; and as for prohibition, wet Philadelphia appears to regard the Republican position in favor of qualified repeal. Apparently the difference is regarded as nothing to quarrel about at any rate. In rural Pennsylvania there is evidence that the extreme drys are dissatisfied with Mr. Hoover and will remain away from the polls. Daniel Poling and his co-adjutors of the allied prohibition forces are stumping the state in the effort to bring these drys out for Hoover.

Influenced by Smith.

The break between Smith and Roosevelt threatened to deprive the New York governor of the support of the Pennsylvania followers of Smith and it is not altogether certain yet that they have been mollified by the famous handshake of the brown derby and the old potato at the New York convention and by Al's indorsement of Roosevelt and Garner in a speech Wednesday night.

One factor favoring Hoover is the registration, which has fallen off in the cities in which economic discontent is rife and increased in the rural regions which are preponderantly Republican. The registration in Philadelphia is 96,000 less than four years ago. One reason is that neither the Republicans nor the Democrats had sufficient funds to buy the tax receipts at 25 cents each which are the requirement of registration. Moreover, the Republican managers were of the opinion that the fewer the unemployed that were registered the better it would be for their ticket.

Six Foot Wing Spread

Bruno Kathrein, 3845 North Oakley avenue, yesterday reported shooting a golden eagle at Slocum lake near Wauconda. Kathrein was hunting with Al Haseman and Charles Levee, both of 3406 Waveland avenue, on Thursday when they saw the bird flying just over the tops of some nearby trees with a pigeon in his claws. Kathrein brought him down with one shot from his 12 gauge shotgun. The eagle had a wing spread of six feet. Kathrein said he plans to have the specimen mounted.

FORMER ALBANIA PRIME MINISTER DETAINED BY U. S.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Bishop Fan Stilian Noli, former prime minister of the Albanian republic, was prevented from entering the United States today when he arrived on the liner New York.

Federal authorities told the Bishop he would be detained aboard the ship and would be required to appear before a board of special inquiry at Ellis Island. Bishop Noli lived in America from 1906 to 1920, receiving his degree at Harvard university in 1912. Besides having been prime minister of Albania for four years, Bishop Noli acted as president of the republic for six months in 1924. He was the official delegate of Albania to the league of nations from 1920 to 1924. He has been a political exile since King Zog elevated himself to the throne. He has been appointed head of the Orthodox Albanian congregation of the eastern Catholic church, with his see in Boston. When the ship docked today his passport and other papers were picked up and sent to Ellis Island. Before he can be permitted to enter the country corroborating papers must be obtained from the American consul at Hamburg.

Hoover (a Cop) Arrests Roosevelt (a Peddler)

Metts Roosevelt, a colored fish peddler, was arrested yesterday by Detective Isaac Hoover, employed by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, for stealing ice from refrigerator cars. Roosevelt pleaded guilty and Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell was about to pronounce sentence when Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Krause, a Republican, interrupted to ask the prisoner who was going to get his vote. "Hoover," Roosevelt replied. "Ten dollars and costs," Judge O'Connell said.

2 MORE VICTIMS OF GANG RIDES ARE FOUND SLAIN

Gambling Feud Blamed in Bookmaker's Killing.

The bodies of two more gang victims were found early yesterday in different parts of the county, bringing the toll of gangland executioners to four in three days. The victims were "Fat Toney" Jerfita, 40 years old, race horse owner, bookmaker and minor alcohol peddler, and Harry Lefkowitz, alias Lefton, 29 years old, known to police as an automobile thief and a receiver of stolen goods. Both had been shot to death.

The slaying of Jerfita and Lefkowitz followed the murders on Wednesday of Sam Dalaly, 19 year old chauffeur for the "42" gang, and Thomas Kane, former Municipal court bailiff and beer runner. Dalaly was found shot to death on the west side and Kane on the south side.

The body of Jerfita, who weighed 250 pounds, was found in the tonneau of an automobile parked on a dirt road on the farm of Mrs. Mabel Maloney in Leyden township, northwest of the city. Lefkowitz was found dying from two bullet wounds in his head in an automobile in the 5000 block in Lexington street. He was taken to the Frances Willard hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness.

Gambling Feud Blamed.

The murder of Jerfita was blamed by police on his effort to force bookmakers of Elmwood Park and vicinity out of business.

Investigators learned that he had visited several bookmakers and ordered them to quit the bookmaking business.

"Quit or you'll go for a ride," he is known to have told one gambler. "You're ruining my business."

Jerfita was known as a bookmaker and village idler in Elmwood Park. He made his headquarters in the vicinity of Harlem and Grand avenues there. Police sought to learn if there was a connection between the slaying of Jerfita and the murder of Carl H. Reese, race horse follower, who was shot to death in Lake county two weeks ago. They learned that Jerfita had entered the ranks of horse owners this year. With T. Peterson, he owned Reline, which ran sixth in the third race at Sportsman's Park on Thursday, and The Senator and Fox Bolt.

Mrs. Maloney, on whose farm the body was found by a hired man, said that she noticed the headlights of a car on the lonely road late Thursday night. Jerfita had been shot once in the head by a revolver held at close range.

Woman Finds Body.

The body of Lefkowitz was discovered by a woman who notified police at 9 o'clock. Investigators said the shooting had occurred less than a half hour before. Police expressed the belief that Lefkowitz might have been killed for double-crossing a gang for which he acted as a fence in disposing of their loot.

Police records show that Lefkowitz was arrested in 1922 in connection with a $200,000 automobile theft ring. In May, 1930, he was arrested on a charge of receiving stolen bonds worth several thousand dollars, taken in a burglary of the Case & Martin Pie company, 1807 Walnut street. Lefkowitz was released when no evidence was produced to disprove his statement that he purchased the bonds from a business man. His police record also lists the sentence of a year in the Bridewell for the theft of an automobile.

ARRAIGNED AS KILLER

Louis L. Howell, who was formally charged on Thursday with the murder of Carl H. Reese, race bookmaker, who was slain ten days ago, was arraigned yesterday before Justice of the Peace H. J. Tallett of Waukegan.

The hearing on the charge was set for Oct. 31 and on recommendation of State's Attorney A. V. Smith bonds were fixed at $20,000. Howell was kept in the Lake county jail when he was unable to furnish this bail. His attorneys said they would obtain bond in a few days.

Howell, whose home is at 5903 North Kostner avenue, was with Reese when the killing occurred. He said that four gangsters shot the bookmaker in Howell's car north of Libertyville.

GOTHAM GANGSTER SLAIN

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Johnny Merino, the one time pal of the late Jack (Legs) Diamond and several other late gangsters who were despatched by the bullets of enemies, was murdered today in the new gangland style. His body was found trussed securely in a burlap bag with his knees buckled against his chest and a rope twisted around his neck.

The body was found on the back seat of a red sedan parked in East Seventy-eighth street, near First avenue.

Body Stuffed in Sack.

Merino, whose real name happened to be Dominick Buffano, had been shot in the head and his face bore the marks of a severe beating. His body, clad in a light gray suit, was stuffed entirely into the sack, as has been the case in a number of gang murders recently.

Buffano, or Merino as he was better known to the police and his underworld associates, was suspected of participation in many rackets and crimes of violence, but the police never were able to pin anything on him. His police record is one of several arrests but no convictions.

He was known as a gunman and a racketeer with aspirations. He was suspected of being one of the men who attempted to kill Eddie Diamond, brother of Jack, out in Denver. They shot at Eddie, but didn't get him.

Former Friends Slain.

Merino, or Buffano, came to his end after several of his erstwhile friends had been slain—Eugene Moran, who was burned to death on a dump outside Newark, N. J., several years ago; Moran's sweetheart, Anna Urbas, who was drowned in the Harlem river because, so the story goes, she "knew too much"; Fats McCarthy, bumped off in a gun battle with policemen upstate; Legs Diamond, shot to death in a cheap rooming house in Albany, and Vincent Coll, riddled with bullets as he was making a telephone call in a Twenty-third street drug store.

SEN. GLENN TO CARRY NEWS OF CAMPAIGN TO PRESIDENT HOOVER

Senator Otis F. Glenn will leave Chicago this morning for Detroit, where, by invitation, he will join President Hoover's party and return with the President to Washington.

It is understood that the President has indicated a desire to confer with the Illinois senator concerning the general situation in the campaign, particularly in the middle west. Glenn has been a stanch supporter of Hoover throughout the campaign and is expected to give him a cheerful report.

"I feel that I am entirely warranted in saying that he will carry Illinois," said the senator yesterday. "There has been a swing to him that has been particularly noticeable in the last four or five days."

Senator Glenn will leave with his daughter Elizabeth over the Michigan Central at 9:10 this morning.

ROY D. CHAPIN HERE; PROCLAIMS GAINS IN TRADE

Aid Gives Hoover Credit for Recovery.

There is a definite upward trend in business, Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin declared yesterday at a luncheon of the Illinois Manufacturers' association in the Hotel La Salle. He attributed the rise to President Hoover's rehabilitation program.

Surveys of 200 representative business groups reveal 70 per cent as reporting an improvement in business since midsummer, Secretary Chapin said. He held the encouraging reports to be significant in giving moral support to the fight ahead.

"To protect and rebuild are the great objects of the powerful efforts that are underway in the United States today," he said. "We are on the right path, thanks largely to the leadership of a wise, patient, and far-sighted President.

Careless of Credit to Self.

"I am speaking of our President, not as a man in the arena of partisan contention, but as the chief executive of a nation that is showing the rest of the world the way to business recovery. He has been careless of credit for himself in the fight he is leading in our behalf, but has lost no opportunity to pay tribute to the splendid spirit and undaunted efforts of the people of the United States.

"It is the men and women of our country who must continue to display the qualities that have in the past earned for them the admiration of the world. We have a hard fight before us, but we shall win. The firm, brave spirit of the pioneer still lives. The pioneer moves forward bravely. He fights, strides on, hews new destinies.

"American business can fight its way out of all slumps. It can work its way back to the sunny higher levels. A clear trend in that direction can be seen right now. It is the task of every one of us to further and strengthen it."

Reducing Expenditures.

The secretary explained the services of his department to business. The department is coöperating, he said, in lessening the burden of taxation in operating this year on less than three-quarters of the appropriation it received for the last fiscal period.

"I am glad," Secretary Chapin said, "to follow the order that every cabinet officer has received from the President to adopt rigid measures of economy. You will find in Washington a genuine desire to keep expenses at the very lowest point consistent with efficient operation.

"The importance of reducing taxation through economy in government cannot be overemphasized. Simultaneously, it is well to bear in mind that utmost economy must be required of every one who participates in any way in the expenditure of taxpayers' money."

RAZE BUILDINGS IN NEW YORK TO SAVE ON TAXES

Owners Thereby Escaping Heavy Assessments.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Scattered throughout New York City, especially in the teeming borough of Manhattan, one finds numerous freshly cleared spots amid the skyscrapers. These brick-strewn areas of vacancy mark the former sites of homes, apartment and business houses, sometimes of famous old landmarks.

The buildings have been destroyed in an effort to save something in excessive realty tax payments to an extravagant city. They have been torn down without any immediate intention of replacement because their owners no longer found them profitable under the present scheme of municipal tax levies.

Old Beloved Hotel One.

The famous old Belmont hotel came tumbling down brick by brick more than a year ago and the area is still nothing more than a vacant brick yard although it occupies one of the choice locations of 42d street just across from the Grand Central station. At the time of demolition there was talk of "building a new skyscraper" on the site, but realty men only smiled. They knew the building was razed as a tax economy measure.

Early this year seven old time dwellings on the southwest corner of Park avenue and 40th street fell under the wreckers' sledge hammers. The property has been owned for several years by a subsidiary of the Henry Mande interests.

Today a high board fence surrounds the vacant property. Its owners have no immediate plans for its improvement. They apparently are content with the savings in tax payments.

Old Homes Torn Down.

Several fine old homes along the easterly side of Madison avenue, between 38th and 39th streets, have been torn down and that valuable realty holding is now bringing more than it did when houses were rooted there—it is a parking lot.

All of these lots, the records state, were slated to be occupied by fine new buildings. Plans had even been filed for improvements on the Belmont hotel site and for a forty story building where the Madison avenue homes came down. Now realty men say those filed plans were only gestures.

Another vacant space has been added to the area by the razing of buildings on the west side of Madison avenue between 40th and 41st streets. The Chase National bank is the owner of the plot.

Many Sections Affected.

These demolitions, cited as examples, represent only one business section of a crowded city. Just how many millions of dollars worth of former paying property has been destroyed in the last two years can only be estimated. The city records do not distinguished between those razed for tax economy and for improvements.

The demolition of buildings, however, has slowed down appreciably in recent months due to the refusal of the city to issue further permits for open air parking spaces. Many of the old building owners found their property would bring in a greater return as a parking lot than as an apartment or store and got busy with the wreckers. The city authorities moved to prevent wholesale destruction of buildings for this purpose.

They first refused to issue parking lot permits and then, after a trial suit in the Appellate division, closed down on the issuing of curb lowering permits, effectively closing many vacant property sites to use as parking areas.

Berrie Mistrial Seems Near.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The New York City tax rate for next year will be $2.43, a sixteen point decline from this year's rate of $2.59 and the lowest rate since the basic rate was built up in 1922, Controller Charles W. Berry said today.

The controller established his figures on the basis of the budget adopted yesterday by the board of estimate. The budget in round figures now totals $558,000,000.

Expects New Cuts.

Berry predicted, without specifying how it would be accomplished, that $2,000,000 more would be subtracted from the budget at the two public hearings on Thursday and Friday of next week. The final budget, he thinks, will be about $556,000,000.

The controller told city hall reporters today that the city has plenty of money now to meet the Nov. 1 pay rolls. On Oct. 13, however, he wrote to the banking consortium that has been lending money to the city, announcing he would need $35,000,000 between today and next Friday.

The city today has $27,000,000 on hand, distributed in twenty banks, he said. This has come in during the last few days as the revenue of taxes, dock rents, license fees and the like.

Says City Well Run.

Berry doesn't intend to ask the banks for money, and he doesn't need a penny to meet the pay rolls or carry on the regular city functions, he said.

There has been no danger at any time of being unable to meet the city's obligations, he insisted. Berry said one budget cut of a million dollars will be a surprise. Abolition of the city's fleet of limousines was one of the guesses made.

The controller said, with the new rate, a man who owns a house assessed at $10,000 will get a tax bill next year $16 less than this year's, if the assessed valuation is the same.

At $556,000,000 the budget would represent an actual reduction of $91,000,000. Officially this year's budget was $631,000,000, but an additional $16,000,000 for debt service, mandatory salaries, unemployment relief and some other items must be figured in.

A MONKEY WRENCH IS THROWN INTO CAR PULLING BUSINESS

Erven E. Kropp, 6242 South Western avenue, and Earl Lamb, 3719 West 64th place, are "car pullers" for a finance agency. This means that when the installments are not paid promptly they go out and get the cars and receive $15 for each one.

They became angry at each other several weeks ago. Lamb found a professional way to get even. He went out and pulled Kropp's car and Car Puller Kropp had to pay Car Puller Lamb $15. Yesterday Kropp went to Abe Hirsch, an auto finance dealer at 1842 Michigan avenue, who once employed Lamb, and spoke as follows:

"Somebody broke your window nine months ago. I know who did it and I want the reward."

Mr. Hirsch sent Kropp to the Chicago Auto Trade association, 2324 Michigan avenue, where he told a fuller story.

"Earl Lamb and I were drinking and riding together last February," he said, "and Lamb was mad at Abe Hirsch. So he went in the hallway and spit on the door knob and tossed a monkey wrench through a window."

Police Sergeants Timothy Donovan and William Hennessy, concealed in the office, heard his statement. They arrested Kropp. Then they arrested Lamb. Both the car pullers were charged with malicious mischief.

Legion Women Discuss Christmas Gifts for Vets

A plan to give each of the 9,000 hospitalized ex-service men in Illinois a pair of bedroom slippers for Christmas was discussed at a directors' meeting of the Illinois department of the American Legion auxiliary in the Sherman hotel yesterday. RACKETS ON RUN, SWANSON SAYS IN REPLY TO CRITICS

Replying to a statement issued by the Employers' association, State's Attorney Swanson last night charged Gordon L. Hostetter of the association with "falsifying the facts in regard to the racketeering industry in Chicago. Mr. Swanson spoke at a Republican massmeeting in the Schurz High school, Addison street and Milwaukee avenue.

"Mr. Hostetter charges that no major racket has been stopped by my office," said Swanson. "The truth is that since the inception of the racket bureau two years ago my office has stopped more than 1,000 rackets and reduced the income of racketeers from $1,000,000 a month or less to one-tenth of that amount. By cutting off the income of the racketeer we have driven hundreds of them from their illegitimate operations.

"Our drive against bucket shops is certainly a major activity in the interest of the great mass of voters, and we have recovered more than $11,000,000 for defrauded investors."

COURTNEY CASTS 'PUBLIC ENEMY' RECORD AT RIVAL

State Senator Thomas J. Courtney, the Democratic candidate for state's attorney, issued a statement yesterday charging that State's Attorney Swanson has made a "feeble, but ineffectual effort" to punish the 28 men gangsters and hoodlums originally listed as public enemies by the Chicago Crime commission.

"Fourteen of the public enemies have been disposed of since the list was made public," said Mr. Courtney, "but Mr. Swanson was not a deciding or important factor in a single case. In the task of handling the enemies of society Mr. Swanson has a batting average of zero."

U. S. RECOGNIZES NEW REGIME SET UP IN CHILE

Ready to Resume Normal Diplomatic Relations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—The United States today accorded diplomatic recognition to the new government set up in Chile by Acting President Abraham Oyanedel, former chief justice of the Chilean Supreme court. Formal notification that this country was ready to resume normal diplomatic relations with Chile was made at noon by William S. Culbertson, American ambassador at Santiago.

Ambassador Culbertson acted upon instructions sent by the state department yesterday. The action of the United States was taken after the new government had given assurance it would respect its international obligations. The Oyanedel government is the last of a series of provisional administrations that have held power since a revolution swept Chile last June.

Oyanedel succeeded to the vice presidency and the acting presidency on Oct. 3, when Gen. Blanche resigned as acting president. He succeeded to the presidency in accordance with the Chilean constitution. A president and congress will be elected Oct. 30.

Britain Extends Recognition.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 21.—The United States and Great Britain both extended recognition to the government of Chile today for the first time since the overthrow of Juan Esteban Montero on June 4. It is generally believed here that one reason for the collapse of the socialist government of Carlos Davila was his failure to obtain recognition by England and the United States.

Officials Quit in Ecuador.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Oct. 21.—Three high public officials submitted their resignations to the president today. They were Modesto Larrea Jujon, minister of government; Manuel Navarro, vice president of the senate; and Jose Velasco Ibarra, president of the chamber of deputies. They resigned after the government put 500 unemployed ex-soldiers to work on state roads. Members of congress have protested. They characterize this as an infringement of individual liberty.

JAP LEAGUE ENVOY

JAPAN REPOSES FULL POWERS IN ENVOY TO LEAGUE

Leaves for Geneva to "Talk to God."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 21.—With a free hand to act, a thing which is seldom reposed in a Japanese plenipotentary, of Japan's three chief delegates to the Yosuke Matsuoka, the most important league of nations assembly, which will meet to consider the Manchurian problem in the third week of November, left for Geneva by way of Vladivostok at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Despite a drizzle he was cheered by thousands of citizens.

Japan is placing tremendous hopes in Matsuoka. The cabinet discussed Japan's policy for the last time today, after which the foreign minister, Count Yasuya Uchida, proceeded to the palace to inform Emperor Hirohito of its decisions.

May Quit League.

Indicating the wide scope of discretion given to Matsuoka, the foreign minister's instructions covered only a few fundamental principles, which are understood to be:

1. A way to quit the league if necessary.

2. To carry out his mission on the broadest lines, not getting into any petty disputes.

3. To explain in detail Japan's observations on the Lytton report on Manchuria, aiming at correcting the report's "mistakes."

4. To impress the league of the serious situation which will arise should a hasty settlement be forced.

Will "Talk to God."

Aggressive, talkative, fluent in English, and a teetotaler, Matsuoka will do most of the talking for Japan at Geneva.

The line of strategy Matsuoka will follow is indicated by his statement: "I will talk to the league as though talking to God. I will tell what I think is just and will let it go at that. I will not deal with men; I will deal with God. God transcends all racial hatreds and understands any language. If the league can also face God and do what it thinks is for the ultimate good of humanity I am satisfied."

U. S. OFFERS TO EXTEND HOLIDAY ON ARMAMENTS

Truce Ends Nov. 1 Unless Nations Agree.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson today announced that the United States has formally signified its willingness to agree to a four months' extension of the world armaments construction holiday which normally would expire Nov. 1 next. Word to this effect, it was stated, has been forwarded to officials of the Geneva general disarmament conference, through Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland and American representative on the conference steering committee.

Ambassador Wilson was instructed to advise the president of the conference that the United States "agrees to the continuance of the truce for a period of four months, provided that like action is taken by the other principal military and naval powers."

U. S. Makes Reservation.

The American acceptance was also subject to the understanding that the proposed truce shall not apply to construction begun before Oct. 29, 1931, or for which contracts had been let prior to its entry into force.

In actual practice the truce has not operated to forbid construction of vessels already programmed, if such construction has not increased the number of existing armaments. Officials said today it would not prevent this government from going ahead and laying down the four 1,500 ton destroyers now held up by an executive suspension order. The truce probably will delay the beginning of construction on the sixteenth 8 inch gun cruiser which under the London naval treaty can be begun any time after Jan. 1.

Japan Fails to Agree.

Up to date 29 of the 53 signatory powers to the truce have agreed to an extension. Japan, whose activities in Manchuria have greatly increased her armament construction costs in recent months, is the only one of the five major naval powers which has not agreed to the extension. Japan still has 10 days in which to act.

RIVAL CANDIDATES FOR NEW YORK MAYOR SAY IT WITH BOUQUET

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—"Mr. O'Brien is a wonderful man. I don't know of any one I would more enjoy being on a platform with," said Lewis H. Pounds, Republican nominee for mayor, the first speaker at the Catholic Actors' guild meeting today.

"Mr. Pounds is a man of honor and a sportsman to the core. It would be beautiful if in all political activities the leaders of men would rise above the level of political life and be sportsmen and gentlemen," said Surrogate John P. O'Brien, Democratic nominee for mayor, the second speaker.

"I thought for a minute that I had been struck by an automobile and gone to heaven," said Senator Royal S. Copeland, the third speaker.

WALKS A WIRE TO GET JOB AND SHE'S ARRESTED

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Because she needs a job, Miss Tiny Kline, 26, this afternoon strolled across a tight wire, stretched more than a thousand feet from the roof of the Hotel Edison, in West 47th street, to the roof of the Palace theater, on the east side of 7th avenue. And then she was arrested "for endangering the lives of people on the streets."

Miss Kline, clad in cream colored tights, was watched by a breathless crowd that all but stopped traffic on Broadway, 47th street and 7th avenue, as she stepped along the invisible wire, 300 feet above ground, seemingly walking on air. When she arrived at the roof of the Palace, photographers and reporters were awaiting her—and so were two patrolmen.

FRANCE BIDS FOR BRITISH SUPPORT IN DEBT FIGHT

Seeks a United Front in Cancellation Drive.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Preparations for a combined Franco-British offensive on war debts was started today when it was announced that Jacques Bizot, expert of the finance ministry, would go to London to discuss the question with Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British expert.

A short time later the foreign office denied that Bizot was going to London.

Despite the confusion caused by the two statements, authortative sources insisted that the discussions of war debts will be held in accordance with the Anglo-French "consultative agreement."

Bizot's trip to London is thought to have for its principal object an agreement with the British for a united front on the war debt policy into which the French scheme for separation of the "commercial" and "political" parts of the debt could be fitted.

The French foreign office also issued a denial that Premier Herriot had ever told anybody that France would make the payments due to the United States on Dec. 15. The statement said the premier had been slanderously misquoted in this respect. According to an official note the question of debt payments "remains intact" and will be the subject of future discussion by the government.

This statement, which again places the Dec. 15 payment in doubt, is believed to have been dictated principally by considerations of internal politics, as it would weaken Herriot's position in the chamber if he had formally pledged himself to make the debt payment before the government's general debt policy has been approved.

STATE ST. DAY EXCEEDS HOPES OF MERCHANTS

Predict Buying Wave Will Sweep Nation.

Shoppers from all parts of Chicagoland converged on downtown State street yesterday for one of the biggest bargain hunting expeditions in the merchandising history of the city.

It was State Street day, arranged by merchants to show tradesmen of the nation the way to a bigger volume of business. Chicago shoppers took advantage of the event to set the pace for buyers throughout the country. It was hoped and predicted that the buying wave which started yesterday in State street would produce far reaching effects.

Interviews with managers of the stores brought uniform responses. The crowds which responded to the merchants' invitation to come shopping in State street equaled or surpassed the expectations of all the managers interviewed. And of particular significance was the fact that the people were buying. Late in the afternoon, when it became apparent the crowds were reluctant to go home, most of the stores announced that they would remain open until 9 p. m.

Crowds Waiting Early.

Officials of many of the stores said crowds were waiting for the doors to open before the sales forces arrived yesterday morning. In some cases it was said that the day's business gathered momentum slowly and swelled to an imposing volume by early afternoon. Other stores reported that money began to flow almost as soon as the first customers were admitted.

Officials of a large clothing house stated that they did more business yesterday morning than was recorded on any other forenoon in their history. Nearly all of the stores reported a volume of trade which equaled or surpassed their busiest days during the Christmas seasons of recent years.

Goods Latest and Best.

All the business men along State street coöperated in making the day the success which the managers pronounced it. The buyers of these stores had spent weeks scouting through the markets of the world for the goods which were offered to the public yesterday. It was said that all this merchandise typified the very latest and best to be had anywhere.

Prices were made attractive and an invitation to customers was broadcast through all Chicagoland. Reduced round-trip fares were offered by the railroads and parking lots established special prices. The people of the city and the entire metropolitan district accepted the invitation with enthusiasm.

State street was as crowded yesterday as it usually is during the Christmas season, but there was a somewhat different spirit in the throng. While Christmas shoppers usually rush about frantically, these people moved in leisurely fashion, many of them leading children. Apparently a large number from out of town had come in to see the city, look at the windows and do some shopping.

Visitors See and Buy.

And these people really were shopping. They moved slowly, it is true, and they did a great deal of looking around also, but when they had made up their minds about just what they wanted they bought it.

The entire length of State street, from Congress to Lake streets, presented a carnival appearance. It was hung with banners of many colors, and flags flew from the lamp standards. The crowds found the display windows particularly attractive.

Fashion shows were in progress in many of the stores, mannikins walking up and down the aisles attired in the most authentic styles for day and evening wear. Members of the chorus of one of the most popular musical shows in town modeled clothes in one of the stores.

There also was a cooking school, which attracted the attention of a great number of housewives. Elsewhere there was a model home, in which shoppers were able to view the most authentic styles in furniture for every room.

Bargain basements were particularly thronged with customers, but considerable business was done in higher priced merchandise as well. Over nearly every counter there was a flow of dollars which had issued from hiding to become potent forces in a drive toward renewed prosperity.

Store Stocks Are Reduced.

Traffic moved in an orderly fashion, though at a somewhat slower rate than usual, two policemen being stationed at each corner and one mounted policeman in each block.

Officials of the stores pointed out that the reduction of their stocks in the course of yesterday's buying means that it will be necessary for them to order more goods from the manufacturers to meet the demands of Christmas shoppers. Thus there would be a stimulation of business all along the line, they said.

Several thousand employes were added to the sales forces of State street stores to meet yesterday's rush of trade, and the managers said many of these workers will be retained until after Christmas.

SET OUT TO SCALE LOFTIEST PEAK IN THE ANDES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ACTRESS STRICKEN

TELLS SHORTAGE OF 43,080 SEATS IN HIGH SCHOOLS

103,833 Enrollment Is City's Largest.

The seat shortage in Chicago's senior high schools has mounted to 43,080, Don C. Rogers, director of research and building survey for the school board, reported yesterday. School officials have been compelled to use portable schools and branches and resort to short sessions to take care of 103,833 senior high school students, the largest enrollment in the Chicago schools' history.

At the start of registration in September Supt. William J. Bogan directed that 6,654 pupils of the 9th grade, who otherwise would attend senior high schools, be diverted to junior high schools. Despite this measure, the senior high schools have 6,113 more students than last year.

World's Largest High School.

The Schurz High school at 3601 Milwaukee avenue, with an enrollment of more than 10,000, is now the largest high school in the world, according to Mr. Rogers. There are twice as many students at this school as there were high school students in the city during the World's Fair year of 1893.

The main Schurz building has a capacity of 5,090 pupils. The overflow students are housed in 31 portables clustered at 6100 Belmont avenue, 22 portables at Lawrence and Central avenues, and a branch at the Irving Park elementary school, 3815 North Kedvale avenue.

Enrollment Far Over Capacity.

The main building of the Lane Technical High school at 1225 Sedgwick street has a capacity of 1,601 pupils, but an enrollment of 7,161, according to the latest figures. Some of the students are housed in six branches and five park field houses. There are 61 portables. The short day session, in which students come to the classrooms in shifts, is employed in the main building.

Mr. Rogers said that the seat shortage could be decreased by 10,701 if the new Steinmetz, new Lane, and Senn addition buildings, upon which work has been stopped because the school board is without funds, could be completed. The buildings could be completed and equipped within 90 days, according to John C. Christensen, school architect, while it would take a year to finish the Phillips High school, which would seat 2,664.

CHARGES TAXES BLOCK REVIVAL OF U. S. INDUSTRY

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Excessive taxation was blamed for the economic depression by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, here today.

Col. McCormick spoke before the 33th annual convention of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, asserting that "We have reached the extraordinary situation where the ownership of property has become a liability, not an asset." He added that excessive taxes had prevented industry from saving surplus funds or raising new capital and thus had thrown millions of men out of employment.

"The evil talk of tax strikes is heard throughout the land," he declared. "But far more serious than strikes is the growing inability of tax payers to pay. Strike or no strike, it is absolutely impossible to pay the taxes assessed.

"The taxes piled on industry have risen to the point where industry is on the road to ruin. . . . Our tax laws have destroyed more than half—nearly two-thirds—of taxable income, forcing taxeaters to search elsewhere for their spoils."

"You who wish to help save your country must act quickly," he asserted. "You must elect a congress that will aid, not ruin it. You must organize to send to Washington men who will undo the misdeeds of the last congress and start us back from the road to ruin on which we are traveling."

RAPS TAX STRIKE GROUP AFTER IT BEGINS NEW FIGHT

Atty. Bell Puts Blame on Large Property Owners.

The filing of a new tax objection case in the County court yesterday by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers was followed by a charge by Hayden N. Bell, county tax attorney, that the large taxpayers, and not the small home owners, are the leaders in the tax strike which the association is charged with fomenting.

Only 5 per cent of the unpaid taxes are due from small home owners whose properties have a market value of $5,500 or under, Mr. Bell said. The other 95 per cent of tax delinquency, he said, is largely upon income producing properties.

"This shows that the small property owners are paying their taxes, while the owners of property that produces income are not paying and have not paid their taxes for years," he said. "The large property owner has an investment to take care of, and he feels or knows that he cannot pay his taxes and protect his investment.

Plea for Government.

"These big men want to save their investments at the expense of government. That can't be done. If one or the other must fall—investment or government—it must be the former. We will need the investors, it is true, when Chicago starts to build up again after this dilemma, but if we don't save the government we won't have any need for investors."

Mr. Bell's remarks were heard by nearly 500 owners of small homes in the Chicago Lawn district who crowded the courtroom. They had come before County Judge Jarecki under the misapprehension that 1928 and 1929 tax cases involving their homes were set for hearing.

New Fight Against Taxes.

The new objection by the taxpayers' association is against payment of 1930 taxes, and covers 50,320 items of property. The first name on the list of objectors is that of James E. Bistor, real estate man and an officer of the association, in whose name the Bistor case was brought attacking the 1928 and 1929 tax rolls.

The objections in the new case are substantially the same as those denied by the courts in the previous Bistor case—stressing an assertion that real estate is taxed inequitably because of failure to place large amounts of personal property on the tax rolls. The Illinois Supreme court held that that objection is not valid, and the United States court refused on Monday to review this finding.

Mr. Bell said he would start Monday to seek judgments against all properties on which payment of 1928, 1929 or 1930 taxes was objected to on the grounds set up in the Bistor suit.

Mayor Renews Attack.

Mayor Cermak renewed his attack on the Real Estate Taxpayers' association yesterday with a plea to owners of Chicago radio stations to bar from their programs the tax strike propaganda and membership appeals of the association. He has already instructed the city law department to ask the federal radio commission to bar the radio speeches on the ground that they are obstructing government and are soliciting funds under false pretenses.

"I think it's the civic duty of radio station owners to rule the tax strikers off the air to aid Chicago, even if there's nothing in the law to restrict them," said Mayor Cermak.

He made the statement after receiving a letter from John E. Pratt, secretary of the association, denying that the association would abandon its activities because of the court decision on the first Bistor case.

Edward Winston, special tax attorney for the county board, filed suit yesterday in the Superior court to collect delinquent 1929 and 1930 taxes from the Chicago Tunnel company, operator of the merchandise tubes in the downtown area. The suit is for $45,848, representing $22,907 in 1929 and $22,941 in 1930 taxes, plus penalties and interest.

Pawnbrokers Fight Tax.

A group of pawnbrokers, whose personal property holdings have been estimated at more than $8,000,000, yesterday informed Assessor J. L. Jacobs that they would file no schedules for the 1931 personalty assessment. The ultimatum was issued through the law firm of Freundlich & Froehlich, representing approximately 100 pawnbrokers who are members of the Pawnbrokers' association.

Deputy assessors who were sent to appraise the goods held by seven of the largest pawnbrokers in the city were referred to the law firm. The largest of the pawnbrokers, the First State Pawners' society, 42 South Clark street, capitalized at $3,000,000, told the deputies to see its counsel, the firm of Scott, McLeish & Falk, tax attorneys.

When the assessor and H. Gordon Bollman, deputy in charge of the personal property assessment, conferred with the lawyers they were told that "the pawnbrokers would be taxed out of existance if they paid full personalty taxes." The lawyers said their clients were "willing to pay a reasonable tax, but refused to meet exorbitant demands." The Illinois State Pawners' association, capitalized at $500,000, filed a $10,000 schedule, which the assessor said was "extremely unreasonable."

The pawners have agreed to meet Assessor Jacobs in a series of conferences early next week.

1,300 HOUSES IN JAPANESE TOWN LEVELED BY FIRE

TOKIO, Saturday, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Thirteen hundred houses were destroyed by fire early today in the town of Komatsu, on the coast of the Japan sea, 160 miles west of Tokio. Komatsu has a population of 12,000.

Six thousand persons were known to be homeless. The conflagration destroyed three-fourths of the town, early dispatches said, but no casualties were reported. Damage was estimated at $1,850,000.

The fire was brought under control after troops had been called out and had used dynamite to fight the flames.

KILLED BY A LOG.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Frank Wineley, 52, was killed tonight when he was crushed by a log which he was attempting to load while gathering fuel. His neck was broken.

U. S. ASKS $25,000 IF PLANETARIUM COLLECTS FEES

World's Fair officials and south park commissioners yesterday were notified by Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs, that if the Adler planetarium is included in the exposition grounds a $25,000 duty must be paid on its exhibits and equipment.

Rufus Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, said he would confer with attorneys for the exposition, adding that "The government has generally recognized the World's Fair as a nonprofit corporation."

The planetarium equipment was imported duty free with the understanding that it would be exhibited to the public free of charge "or, if the south park commissioners elected to charge any admission fee it would be only nominal, to defray expenses."

According to word received by customs officials, it is now planned to make the planetarium a part of the World's Fair with an admission charge for visitors. Mr. Czarnecki's action is based on a provision of the tariff act that the privilege of free duties shall not be extended to associations or corporations of a private or commercial character.

MAURICE L. ROTHSCHILD

MINNEAPOLIS — State at Jackson, CHICAGO — ST. PAUL

U. S. TO GUARD INVESTOR, PLAN OF ROOSEVELT

Demands Safety for Many Millions of Savings.

that as governor of New York, he has lived up to this requirement.

Local bonds, issued by cities, counties and villages amount to more than 17 billions, he said.

"I want to record myself here and now," he declared, "that every public official from the President of the United States down owes it to himself to use every scrap of influence he can to prevent the frittering away of the revenues exacted from the sorely pressed taxpayers of every city in the United States to the end that if necessary they must be compelled to walk the way of municipal honesty and efficiency."

Mr. Roosevelt's stand on protecting American investors from foreign frauds has been stated above. On the question of domestic industrial bonds he declared these securities were held mostly by individuals and not by banks, insurance companies, savings banks or credit institutions, and that consequently these obligations "do not constitute a great danger."

The problem of industry, he said is not strictly speaking one of finance.

"Industry should be organized," he said, "so that it will give every workman the right to earn a living through his own efforts. Such influence as the federal government may have should be directed to this end."

Public Utility Obligations.

On public utility obligations, Mr. Roosevelt said that the adoption of the program advanced by him in his speech at Portland, Ore., which proposed compulsory publicity giving the facts of what resources are behind such securities, and a general watchful eye by the government upon the utility managements, would conserve "the integrity of the financial obligations represented in this group."

"I ask the simple question," he added, "What leadership has the President exerted toward the elimination of the type of abuse which resulted in the Insull failure."

Railroad securities, amounting to 11 billion dollars, bearing interest charges of half a billion dollars a year, Mr. Roosevelt referred to his speech on the railroads' plight delivered at Salt Lake City.

Real Estate Mortgages.

Coming at last to the real estate and farm mortgage obligations, which affect countless thousands of owners directly, the candidate said that real estate mortgages represented "money borrowed by you and me, and our friends with which to buy homes."

"Most of these," he went on, "are mortgages on small homes, they are paid by the little man -the forgotten man, if you like—of whom no one thinks because he does not beg for help. And yet these men are not only the backbone of the American financial system, they are in the aggregate about the safest credit risks we have.

"This group does not constitute a financial danger to the country, but it does call for wise financial handling. We propose to do whatever we can to free these homes of the burden of excessive taxation. This definitely helps these home owners to protect their homes.

"I have said that these home owners were forgotten men. But they are no longer forgotten, because in the midst of the campaign, the federal administration has finally considered their difficulties.

Necessity for Home Loan Banks.

"We agree to the necessity of home loan banks, but we shall insist in the administration of these banks that they shall not be subject to the unwise and improper administration that has characterized the federal and joint stock land bank systems under which the bank makes money while the mortgagor goes unaided.

"To the extent that the home loan banks effect this I shall be glad to approve the policy, and I shall be glad to make whatever modifications are needed, to insure that the relief granted reaches the spot it is intended to cover."

Gov. Roosevelt left here tonight for Louisville, Ky., where he will speak tomorrow morning.

ROOSEVELT TALKS ON U. S. CREDIT FACTORS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Gov. Roosevelt in his speech here tonight discussed property rights and various forms of investments. After expressing his pleasure in being in St. Louis again he said:

"The Republican leaders protest that if the Republican ticket is defeated dire things will happen after Nov. 8. They forget that the only appreciable improvement and confidence in the last three months has come not as a result of the insincere and indefinite Republican platform adopted in June, or the agonized note of apology in the utterances of the President and his supporters, but as the result of a growing confidence on the part of the people of this country that on Nov. 8 there is but one thing to be expected, and that is the overwhelming election of the Democratic ticket."

The governor dwelt at length on what he called the gospel of fear being preached by his opponents. He referred to his previous utterances on human rights and social justice and continued:

Discusses People's Investments.

"Tonight I am going to talk with you about a form of property rights which has a direct bearing on our present and future enjoyment of life. You and I know that many millions of Americans have some kind of an interest in some form of property. From the point of view of the average citizen this interest in property takes the form of bank deposits, or trust funds, of insurance policies, or of land or security ownership.

"In addition to individuals, thousands upon thousands of institutions created for the public good have similar interests—the churches, the hospitals, the relief funds, the schools and colleges and other nonprofit making organizations of many kinds.

"Most of the property of these individuals and of these institutions is invested in some form of long term security. Let me illustrate: Our national economic life is in large part tied up in underlying bonds that represent in fact mortgages on American railroads, on American industry, on American land and on three forms of American government—the national, state, and local governments of the United States.

"Many months ago in attempting to see the economic situation of this country as a whole in simple terms and in terms so full of meaning that I could at a glance encompass the need of the entire country, I set down a list of the eight great credit groups of this country. I conceive this list to represent the credit interest of the nation, north and south, east and west, employer and employé, industry, commerce and agriculture.

Foundations of Credit.

"I conceive these eight groups as representing the foundation stones upon which the permanent credit of this country rests. I said then, and I say now, that the stability of the country rests not on any one, but on all of these and that when we want to know whether anything is disturbing the stability of the country we want to see whether any of these foundation stones are crumbling away, or whether the ground underlying these stones is weakened by any cause.

"This is the way to comprehend the stability of the country as a whole, and in my opinion it is the only way. It is with this in mind that I conceived the plan of my campaign. I made my plan in accordance with this comprehensive picture of national needs. I attempted to discuss these in an orderly fashion and I have refused to be intimidated by my opponents. I have kept the faith with this plan as I have kept the faith with the platform of my party, because I believe in the sound sense of the American people.

"And now, at the end of October, I come to a résumé of this subject of credit. I want to set forth these points, these eight credit groups, and to talk briefly about the condition of each.

Federal Bonds and Budgets.

"First: Federal obligations. At the very top of the credit structure of the country, surpassing all other groups in moral and material importance, stand the obligations of the federal government. These are paramount, because government is essential to all ordered economic life. When they go, everything goes. Happily these obligations are secure. They suffer only to the extent that government is permitted to be extravagant, wasteful, or ill managed.

"They suffer if the federal budget is not balanced, and particularly where the deficit of one year is not cleared up in the succeeding year.

"I have therefore pointed out that the Hoover administration had been responsible for deficit after deficit; that as one disastrous year succeeded another no attempt was made to arrange the finances of the country so that at least the mounting loss of revenue might not be turned into a deficit for the next year. It is my pledge and promise that this dangerous kind of financing shall be stopped, and that rigid governmental economy shall be forced by a stern and unremitting administration policy of living within our income.

"Second—State obligations constitute one of the most sound and safe groups of the entire credit structure. A state is generally required by dire necessity, if for no other reason, to live within its income. If it runs a deficit one period it must make provision for that deficit in the budget of the following period.

"In fact, in New York when we run a deficit the constitution of the state requires us to provide in the budget for the following year not merely for current needs but also for revenue with which to pay the deficit of the last year. And I have strictly lived up to this requirement.

"Third: Municipal Bond Issues—The next great credit group includes the obligations of cities, counties, towns, villages and other local units. This is a very large group. A fair estimate is over 17 billions of these local bonds. They are largely held by individuals and by institutions and are properly a matter of deep public concern. The soundness of these bonds is directly bound up with the honesty and capability with which American cities are run.

Watches Cities' Finances.

"As the governor of New York state I concerned myself very definitely with the finances of its cities. I have exercised what influence I could to keep the credit of these cities sound and secure. I have set my face sternly against not only municipal dishonesty but likewise against municipal mismanagement. And I want to record myself here and now that every public official from the President of the United States down owes it to himself to use every scrap of influence he can to prevent the frittering away of the revenues exacted from the sorely pressed taxpayers of every city in the United States to the end that if necessary they must be compelled to walk in the way of municipal honesty and efficiency.

"I want to reaffirm what I have said many times, that while the legal power of the President in this respect is limited, his power to lead public opinion in the way of an improvement in local government can be a very definite and useful force for cheaper government and better government in American cities. This is what I propose to do toward the credit represented by the 17 billions of municipal bonds.

Talks of Foreign Bonds.

"The next group of obligations comprises what are known as foreign bonds. This is an unsavory chapter in American finance. These bonds in large part are directly the fruit of a disastrous policy pursued by the present administration in Washington—none other, if you please, than the policy of lending to backward and crippled nations.

"Flagrant instances of the abuse of American investors occurring under this system are well known. But fortunately, or unfortunately, as you chose to look at it, the returns on the foreign bond list have already come in. Many are in default. Others have lost the major part of their original face value. The best that can be said is that the danger is in great part behind us and not ahead of us.

"I have already announced the policy of my own administration in this regard. My job will be to prevent a recurrence of this incident and to prevent the hard earned dollars of American investors from being frittered away in foreign fields, encouraged by the sanction of the federal government of the United States, and with a profit flowing only to certain international financiers whose greed is greater than their patriotism.

Financing of Industries.

"Fifth: Domestic industrial bonds—These obligations do not represent major difficulties. They are not widely held by banks, insurance companies, savings banks, or the credit institutions of the country. They are largely in the hands of private investors. The amount is relatively small in quantity, for the industrial companies during the last few years were engaged not in creating debts but in paying them. On the great chessboard of American finance the industrial obligations do not constitute a danger.

"Sixth: Public utility obligations—In connection with public untility obligations I am not speaking now of the financial excrescences on the public utility system represented by pyramided holding companies, some of which are already in bankruptcy and others of which have already been discounted by the public markets. These companies that are engaged not in stock jobbing but in the sound and important business of distributing light, power, heat, and public service have obligations which do not at this time constitute a problem in American finance.

"As a group they are currently earning their interest charges. I have already set forth in my Portland speech my attitude toward the problems of these companies.

Protection of Investors.

"The outlines of my public untility policy are definitely in the direction of protecting the investors, as well as the consumer. Certainly the integrity of the financial obligations represented in this group will be conserved to a greater degree than ever before through an adoption of my policy toward public utilities. There has not been, so far as I have been able to determine, a single responsible criticism of the program there set forth.

"I ask the simple question, 'What leadership has the President exerted toward the elimination of the type of abuse which resulted in the Insull failure?'

"The indifference of the present administration has permitted the savings of thousands of our citizens to be swallowed up and lost for all time.

Tells Railway Policy.

"And now I come to the railroads: Railroad obligations, mostly bonds, amount to 11 billion dollars. They bear interest charges of nearly half a billion dollars a year. Such bonds are held in savings banks, insurance companies, commercial banks, and similar institutions. In the year 1931, admittedly a bad year, the railroad system as a whole earned slightly more than its interest charges on this entire group of bonds. The year 1932 has not been so happy, although railroad earnings are beginning to show slight increases.

"As to the Democratic plan of meeting this problem, not only in the interest of maintaining railroads at a fair degree of efficiency, but what is more important, the protection of the savings of millions of persons in this country which are involved in the securities of these railroads, I made it a cardinal point in my railroad address that the railroads should be freed from certain destructive competition, that the government should undertake for a specified period to see the railroads through, provided they put their own houses in order.

Calls Former Aid "Dole."

"Note the difference between this and the program of administration. Without plan and apparently without thought, the best that they could do was to advance a dole to the railroads month by month as any emergencies might arise, leaving both the railroad and the bondholders uncertain as to whether each dole would not be the last. This was not meeting problems. It is sticking financial mustard plasters on the railroads.

"There is only one way to do this job and that is to do it. Where adjustments are to be made let us find out what they are. Let us arrange for their handling in a swift and orderly method. Let us make a definite commitment that once the railroad's house is in order the government can stand firmly behind it.

"Our Democratic plan has been before the country now for some weeks. Experts on the situation, representing railroad managements, railroad unions, employers, workers, and investors, have joined in almost universal approval of the soundness of this plan.

City Home Mortgages.

"Finally we come to real estate obligations: There is first a great body of mortgages on city and suburban homes. These represent money borrowed by you and me, and our friends, with which to buy homes. Most of these are mortgages on small homes. They are paid by the little man—'the forgotten man,' if you like, of whom no one thinks because he does not beg for help. And yet these men are not only the backbone of the American financial system; they are in the aggregate about the safest credit risks we have. This group does not constitute a financial danger to the country, but it does call for wise financial handling. We propose to do whatever we can to free these homes of the burden of excessive taxation.

"I have said that these home owners were 'forgotten men.' But they are no longer forgotten, because in the midst of the campaign the federal administration has finally considered their difficulties. We agree to the necessity of home loan banks, but we shall insist in the administration of these banks that they shall not be subject to the unwise and improper administration that has characterized the federal and joint stock land bank systems under which the bank makes money while the mortgagor goes unaided. To the extent that the home loan banks effect this I shall be glad to approve the policy, and I shall be glad to make whatever modifications are needed to insure that the relief grant reaches the spot it is intended to cover.

Loans Made on Farms.

"And finally I come to farm mortgages. I seek definite action by the federal government—and I stress the word 'action'—to prevent farmers from losing their homes, to provide for them lower interest rates where, as in many cases, such rates are excessive, and to extend the capital payments due under the original mortgage terms. We have seen too many farmers driven from their homes and from their lands. It is time to reverse that process.

"These are the eight great credit groups of the country. And this is, in brief, what the Democratic party proposes to do with regard to each. I submit to your fairness, your intelligence, and your insight the case of the Democratic party with regard to what it means to our credit system.

Over the Whole Field.

"I have taken you over the great field of permanent American finance. I have tried to summarize for you in a few minutes the result of many months of public discussion of the various problems connected with these credit groups.

"I know the tasks before me are heavy; some are difficult, but all are possible of solution. The question is not whether the situation could be worse; the question is, How can we make it better?

"The financial fabric of America is, as I have said before, a seamless web held together by the infinitely complex loyalties of men. We must protect it against men who would tear it to pieces rather than face defeat.

"There is every reason to face the future with confidence. Let us bend our minds and wills in performing this plain duty, because the unmistakable temper of the American people is going to place this responsibility upon the Democratic party. That is the lesson of the last few weeks. It is the answer of the American people."

ROOSEVELT HITS HIGH MORTGAGE COST TO FARMER

Pledges to Compel Land Banks to Cut Interest.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Ten thousand downstate Democrats gathered in the state arsenal today to hear Franklin D. Roosevelt discuss the farm problems.

They also cheered the Democratic candidate for governor, Judge Henry Horner, when he declared at the meeting that the election of Gov. Roosevelt was already "definitely settled."

Judge Horner paid a tribute to the New York governor.

"Franklin Roosevelt as President of these United States," said the judge, "will restore prosperity by starting with the man who toils and working up, instead of starting at the top and working down."

To Telephone "Gov. Horner."

A minute later when Gov. Roosevelt had been presented to the audience by Bruce Campbell, the state campaign leader, Mr. Roosevelt repaid the compliment. He told of being touched this morning, during his pilgrimage to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, by the warm greeting given to him there by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson.

"I wonder," the governor added, "if my old friend Gov. Emmerson believes as I do in closing the wide gap existing between the state and the federal governments. Because I believe in that I'll be glad, after next March 4, to call up Springfield, Ill., on the telephone and talk to Gov. Horner."

Then Gov. Roosevelt picked up the main thread of his address, which had to do with farm distress. He elaborated his promised program for raising the prices of farm products.

The Farm Problem.

"Today," Gov. Roosevelt continued, "it is my purpose again to take up this subject and to enlarge upon it. This program is conceived to meet a condition which cannot longer be endured in a nation endowed with so much natural wealth. I indulge in no magic formula. I do not attempt the task of misleading you into hoping I have arrived at a single panacea for the manifold problems of agriculture.

"I propose, therefore, fundamental cures, and I do so in the spirit of honest frankness, with the belief that such a method is the sure way to win your coöperation in this great task that will face the new administration.

"May I also add that I would be the last person to claim sole credit for the program which I enunciated at Topeka or indeed for the enlargement of it which I propose to give you here today. It is a program worked out in coöperation with the wisest leaders of agriculture itself and I pledge to you a continuance of that policy, the policy of coöperation, in order that the program may be enacted into workable law, a law set into operation at the earliest possible moment.

"In other words, I speak for action. No attempt by the present administration to belittle this first, honest effort to meet the problem of the American farmer can hide the essential fact that my three point program goes to the root of the problem.

Three Steps Proposed.

"The three great steps which we must take care of are: First, the federal government owes it to agriculture to see that it gets a fair price for its products. That means that the price of farm products must be raised above the present ruinously low levels to which they have fallen. A properly adjusted tariff can do much in this direction, but the present tariff policies of the Republican administration have done precisely the opposite.

"Pending the relief that will be afforded by properly adjusted tariff policy, measures must be taken to give the farmer immediate tariff benefit. This means in substance a practicable plan agreed to by agricultural leaders which will provide for the farmer a higher return for certain of his crops."

Lift Load of Taxation.

"Second, there must be lifted from the back of every farmer the heavy load of taxation which today weighs upon him. This load is made up of three parts, the local, state, and national units.

"At Pittsburgh I outlined the position of the Democratic party, and my position on the question of the honest balancing of the federal budget and the imperative need of immediate economy in national expenditures. I also reiterate now my promise to exert all available influence in the position as the President of the United States toward the reduction of all state and local taxes.

"Third, we come to the vastly important principle concerning the burden which farm mortgages now bear on every agricultural community.

Lends Farmer $300 at 5%.

At this point the governor interjected a personal experience.

"You know," he said, "I've got a farm of my own along the Hudson river and another down in Warm Springs, Ga. I was down at Warm Springs two years ago when a native of that country, a hard working, simple fellow, came to me. He said he had always been wanting to have a farm of his own, and he'd found one—a little one of fifty acres on the other side of the mountain—that he could buy for $500.

"He said, 'Ah've got $200 an' Ah'm trying to borrow the othah $300 and Ah went to one bank in town and they wanted ten per cent interest and Ah thought that was too high. So Ah went to anothah bank and they wanted twelve per cent an' Ah thought that was too high. Don't you think that's too high, govunah? Govunah, ain't they suthin in the Bible 'bout usury?' Well, I loaned that man the $300 he needed because he was a good solid citizen with a family and because I knew he would pay it back, and I loaned him the money at 5 per cent because that was right.

To Make Loans Cost Less.

"Interest rates on farm loans are too high; and, believe me, friends, they're going to be made lower."

The governor said his program aims to "stop the ruthless foreclosure of farm mortgages," and he went from that into a condemnation of the joint stock land banks. Some of them, he charged, had foreclosed upon farm debtors "with callous disregard of the interest of these debtors and of the public interest generally."

Farms were foreclosed and sold at low values, the proceeds being used by the bankers to retire corresponding farm bonds purchased in the open market at even lower prices, Mr. Roosevelt charged, and he condemned such tactics.

The governor quoted President Hoover in the latter's Des Moines speech as attempting to disclaim responsibility for this condition, but Mr. Roosevelt cited the federal law giving the federal farm loan board power to exercise general supervisory authority over the joint stock land banks. The governor declared the President and his administration should be blamed for their failure to enforce this duty. The governor erroneously referred in this connection to the "federal farm board" as having this power, whereas he must have meant the federal farm loan board.

Refinance Farm Mortgages.

The candidate said he would propose to congress a definite plan for refinancing of farm mortgages; that he would recommend legislation for the scaling down of installments on the farm properties of federal land bank borrowers.

"And I shall enforce such legislation," Mr. Roosevelt declared, bringing applause from the audience.

Mr. Roosevelt went on to say that federal credit should be given to financial institutions to enable them to carry defaulted mortgages of deserving borrowers, and he proposed a coördination of all farm finance agencies so that the federal policy may be guided by a single purpose for the benefit of the farmer.

The governor repeated with strong irony the statement made by President Hoover at Des Moines when he said the credit of the government should be given in the farm mortgage situation so as to give men "who want to fight for it a chance to hold their homes."

Emmerson Welcomes Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt's meeting with Gov. Emmerson took place at the beautiful new tomb enshrining the body of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Emmerson was waiting on the steps of the monument as the governor, heading a parade line of automobiles, rode up with Judge Horner and other Democratic state leaders.

Gov. Roosevelt, with Mr. Emmerson on one side of him and Judge Horner on the other, paused for a moment to permit news photographers to record a rather unusual meeting in the annals of Illinois politics, and then Gov. Emmerson said:

"It is a pleasure to welcome you, Gov. Roosevelt, to a state which gave to the nation the great Lincoln, and to welcome you to his hallowed resting place."

Memories of Lincoln.

"I am very glad," the presidential candidate replied, "to meet my old friend, Gov. Emmerson, with whom I've had many pleasant contacts during our governors' conferences. Standing here in the presence of the immortal Lincoln revives great memories of him."

The governor entered the tomb. Accompanied by members of his family in his traveling party, by Gov. Emmerson and by the local Democrats, he walked slowly around the circular vault of the tomb, tarrying to admire the bronze figures of the martyred President and to read reverently the messages of Lincoln carved in bronze for posterity and hung upon the marble walls of the tomb.

Mr. Roosevelt conversed in interested tones with C. Herrick Hammond, architect, and Herbert Welles Fay, veteran custodian of the shrine. He did not speak for public consumption, he didn't voice glowing encomiums. He did stand silently for a minute when he reached the crypt holding the body of Lincoln, while his son, James Roosevelt, placed a modest wreath at the base of the sarcophagus.

Sign Visitors' Book.

Gov. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt signed the visitors' book at the tomb and after their signatures came those of their son, James; their daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, and Betsy Roosevelt, the wife of James.

The governor purchased a photograph of Lincoln from the caretaker, a copy of an old print, and he induced Gov. Emmerson to autograph it for him.

Judge Horner, whose collection of Lincolniana is rated as fine as any in the country, walked through the vaults with Gov. Roosevelt, who was interested to learn that the certified text of Lincoln's farewell address to the citizens of Springfield, given when he left to assume the burdens of the presidency, had been given the memorial association by Judge Horner.

The governor's special left Springfield at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, bound for St. Louis.

BRITISH AUDIENCE BOOS AND HISSES TOAST TO KING

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A toast to the king was booed and hissed tonight at a dinner of the Society for Cultural Relations Between the Peoples of the British Empire and Russia.

One of the woman speakers had just finished a eulogy on conditions in Russia by calling on the guests to drink a toast to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. There was dead silence for a moment, then a quarter of the guests arose, all talking excitedly. They were lifting their glasses when Sir James Purves-Stewart, a noted physician, jumped up and called, "Gentlemen, to the king."

A storm of boos and hisses followed but the remainder of the guests, who had stayed in their seats, leaped to their feet with a roar of applause, raised their glasses, and drank the toast.

MAN NO COUNTRY WANTS IS HEARD OF IN BRUSSELS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Trebitsch Lincoln, the man without a country, who has been nicknamed "the international flea" by passport agencies in various parts of the world, is reported to have reappeared in Brussels.

The world has been Lincoln's playground since the beginning of the great war. He delights in being called a spy, and wrote a book about his adventures entitled "Revelations of an International Spy."

For the past ten years he frequently has been heard of in various parts of the orient.

Lincoln was born a Hungarian, but went to England when he was 20 years old and became naturalized there. He is now about 50 years old.

At the beginning of the great war he tried to identify himself with the British secret service, but the government learned of his foreign birth and asked him to leave the country. He came to the United States and was arrested for alleged spy activities and deported.

Youth Shoots Finger, Then Abandons Suicide Plan

Benjamin Miswicki, 23 years old, 1356 North Artesian avenue, took his pistol last evening when he went into Humboldt park. It was his intention, he told the police a little later, to shoot himself through the head there. But as he was preparing to kill himself the weapon was discharged and one of the fingers of his left hand was nipped off. Then he changed his mind, notified the police, and was taken to the county hospital.

TRIBUNE SCHOOL OF COOKERY WILL OPEN TUESDAY

Mrs. Chitwood Bringing New Culinary Tricks.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

With her traveling bags packed full of brand new culinary tricks waiting to be turned over to more than 100,000 Chicago housewives, a home economist and foods authority known the nation over will arrive in Chicago from Detroit today.

She is Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, director of more than 270 cooking schools in the country, who will open the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery next Tuesday in the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove avenue, in cooperation with Mary Meade, TRIBUNE food expert.

Husbands may pass over that piece of news with a glance, but not their wives. The grind of making out the same old menus day after day will soon be over for them. Their experience from last year's cooking school taught them that Mrs. Chitwood will be bound to have a lot of new ideas to spring on the next bridge party or the next unexpected guest their husbands bring home to dinner.

Recall Overflow Crowds.

South side housewives especially are making plans right now for Junior to eat his lunch at school so they can be right on hand when the doors open. They remember all too well being turned away last year because they didn't get there early.

Already a list of patronesses has been prepared to greet the thousands of cooking students on their first day at cooking school. A number of clubwomen will be present at all classes, which are to be held not only at the Trianon ballroom, but also during the second and third weeks of the school on the west and north sides of Chicago. These schools are to be held at Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 4000 Washington boulevard, and the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue.

On Tuesday, the opening day, the patronesses will be Mrs. A. W. Degener, director of the Hyde Park Travel club; Mrs. Philip Larmon, Travel club; Mrs. E. S. Bailey, a director of the Chicago Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. G. L. Helm, secretary of the Hyde Park Woman's club.

Wednesday's Patronesses.

The next day, Wednesday, Mrs. E. W. Stansbury, former president of La Rabida Jackson Park sanitarium; Mrs. Paul Pierson, president of the Woodlawn Woman's club; Mrs. Charles F. Weir, and Mrs. Frank M. Fulton, president of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club, will greet the guests.

On Thursday the patronesses will be Mrs. James W. Knox, treasurer of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club; Mrs. Hugo Diemer, Morgan Park Woman's club; Mrs. Ollie Holman, Woodlawn Woman's club, and Mrs. Archibald Cottell.

The patronesses on Friday, Oct. 28, will be Mrs. H. P. Goodnow, Ambrose Woman's club; Mrs. Roscoe Stout, president, Windsor Park Woman's club; Mrs. James Russel, president of the Mathesis Woman's club, and Mrs. Paul Lewis, Gresham club.

Entertainment for Classes.

In addition to the cooking lessons, there will be entertainment at the opening session and during intermissions. Theatrical, radio and dancing stars will be among the entertainers. At the Trianon, these will include Anita Hall, soprano, who will sing on Wednesday afternoon, and two little dancers, Lois Schmidt and Jerome Bork of the Cecil Barnett dancers from the Chicago Musical college, who will perform Friday afternoon.

So, housewives, mark the calendar. Tuesday starts the second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery. Among the things you are going to learn are recipes from foreign lands—such as France and Spain and Italy and China—and a lot others new to the kitchen that Mrs. Chitwood has tried out in her own laboratories and found exceedingly tempting.

STATE AUDITOR IS WITNESS IN BANKERS' TRIAL

State Auditor Oscar Nelson and Fred Edgerton, chief bank examiner in Chicago, appeared yesterday as witnesses against Rudolph A. Cepak, former president, and John Havlicek, former cashier, of the closed Millard State bank. The defendants are on trial before a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Philip L. Sullivan on charges of making false statements to bank examiners.

Havlicek, although at liberty in bond of $20,000, is defended by Public Defender Wilbur Crowley, it was revealed yesterday when the case was called. Attorney Harold Levy withdrew from the case at a previous hearing after telling Judge Sullivan that he had not been paid.

At that time Judge Sullivan referred to the bond, on which property was scheduled by the defendant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Havlicek, and his brothers-in-law, John Maciek and Joseph Chorvat. His parents said they are worth $25,000 above indebtedness, the bond showed, and Maciek and Chorvat estimated their joint wealth at $30,000.

Havlicek, however, still maintained that he was penniless and could not pay an attorney. Judge Sullivan appointed the public defender for the defense over the objections of Crowley, who argued that such cases brought his office into bad repute.

County Police Receive Instruction in First Aid

County highway policemen are to be instructed in first aid methods, to enable them to give assistance to victims of automobile crashes and other accidents, Chief William F. Collins, announced yesterday. During the day the first detachment of 15 patrolmen appeared at his office for instruction. Dr. Stephen Conway showed them how to apply tourniquet to prevent bleeding and how to apply emergency dressings to wounds and burns.

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

Stanley Conforti, 22 years old, 907 Aberdeen street, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bond of $5,000 by Judge Frank M. Padden on a charge of robbery. He was identified by Joseph Lorek, a messenger for the Armstrong Paint and Varnish company, as one of three men who robbed him of $50 several days ago.

Will Entertain at Cooking School

Jerome Bork and Lois Schmidt of the Cecil Barnett dancers from the Chicago Musical college, who will entertain at the Friday afternoon show in connection with the Chicago Tribune School of Cookery.

PRISON MUTINY ENDS; CONVICTS STARVED OUT

Canadian Troops Are Still on Duty.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 21.—Heavily armed troops of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery remained on duty inside the walls of Portsmouth penitentiary tonight while prison officials announced that order had been restored after a five day mutiny which reached its climax in yesterday's rioting.

More than 200 convicts, who had kept the institution in pandemonium for over 24 hours, have been starved into submission, officials claimed. These convicts had been besieged in two corridors and guards and soldiers had been ordered to prepare to make their way into the corridors in an attempt to marshal them in order and march them to their cells.

Fed in Small Groups.

This evening the prisoners received their first meal since the rioting broke out yesterday afternoon. The convicts were fed in small groups. No chances were taken.

From the main building groups of good conduct prisoners were transferred to the new women's penitentiary nearby and within the walls. As they moved out, in squads of twelve, men from the corridor dormitories, who were responsible for yesterday's riot, were transferred to the vacant cells.

Despite the claim that all is quiet, army trucks loaded with supplies and ammunition continued to rumble through the streets of Kingston to the prison two and a half miles away.

Brig. Gen. D. M. Ormond, dominion superintendent of prisons, led newspaper men through a section of the penitentiary this afternoon to prove that all is peaceful behind the limestone walls. He carefully avoided conducting the visitors through the main corridors.

Convicts Shout Defiance.

As the newspaper men passed behind the cell blocks convicts yelled curses at the soldiers and shouted their defiance.

Gen. Ormond denied there had been any casualties in last night's rioting, when bursts of rifle fire were heard. He said that the soldiers had fired over the heads of the convicts.

Bullet holes were spotted in the roof of the mail bag department. The shops were deserted and silent, strewn with wreckage. Six hundred panes of glass were found to have been broken by the mutineers.

Meanwhile in Ottawa Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, said that the 40 guards captured by the convicts and held as hostages for a time were released early today.

OPEN BISHOP'S 'MYSTERY CHEST'; FIND ANTS' NEST

MARITSBURG, Natal, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The "mystery chest" left by the famous "heretical" Bishop Colenso with instructions that it should not be inspected until the last member of his family has died, has at last been opened.

For 22 years the chest stood in St. Mary's church here, mocking the inquisitive.

Government and church officials crowded around when it was opened. Only an ants' nest and a piece of red cloth were found inside.

Sanitary District Gives City Canal Dumping Permit

Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, yesterday received from the sanitary district a permit to dump refuse in the old Illinois and Michigan canal, which he had requested in an effort to save the city approximately $200,000 a year. The permit was granted on the condition that the city assume responsibility for any damage claims resulting from the dumping. Because this will require action by the city council the city will not begin to dump in the old canal immediately.

DEPUTIES RIOT IN VIENNA; DEMAND EARLY ELECTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 21.—The Austrian government was asked by parliament in a stormy session today to fix a date for new elections within a short time. A more to dissolve the house immediately was rejected by the majority parties.

The throwing of an ink bottle had an unintended result, one Fascist hitting another Fascist, and brought the morning session to a sudden end. When Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss complained that Otto Bauer, Socialist, had called him a "character acrobat," the Fascist Deputy Lichtenegger grasped the bottle and aimed it at Bauer, but hit Minister of Commerce Dr. Guido Jakoncig.

Jakoncig, as well as other members of the majority parties, were spattered with ink and deputies of all parties were on the verge of fighting when President Dr. Karl Renner quickly ended the proceedings.

NEW GIFTS RAISE COUNTY WELFARE FUND TO $670,175

Mayor Makes Appeal for All to Contribute.

Contributions to the fund of $7,500,000 being raised by the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook County, Inc., for welfare work other than unemployment relief this winter reached a total of $670,175 yesterday. This represented an increase of $235,175 since last Monday, when gifts amounting to $435,000 were announced.

The five largest contributions announced were from the Continental Illinois National bank, $100,000; First National bank, $75,000; Sears, Roebuck & Co., $40,000; Quaker Oats company, $20,000, and C. R. Walgreen and the Walgreen company, $15,000.

Team captains who reported the largest donations were James R. Leavell, president of the Continental bank, $123,750; John Stuart, president of the Quaker Oats company, $112,800, and George A. Ranney, vice president of the International Harvester company, $108,750.

Mayor Cermak Makes Appeal.

R. Douglas Stuart, president of the fund, presided at a meeting in the Chicago club yesterday, when the contributions were announced by Robert A. Gardner, chairman of the campaign committee. Mayor Cermak made an appeal to the 21 team captains conducting the preliminary drive.

"If our government and the city of Chicago is to see this economic crisis through," the mayor said, "it will be accomplished only through the united efforts of every citizen. First we must put this drive across in order to care for our sick, hungry, and suffering this winter. Every person in Cook county should contribute, whether $1 or $100,000.

"Chicago and Cook county cannot depend upon the state and the federal government for the support of its charities this winter. State and federal funds are already supporting to a large extent our unemployment relief. We cannot ask for more money.

"I urge every citizen of Cook county to take his contribution, no matter how small, to the fund headquarters at 10 South La Salle street."

Plan Appeal to R. F. C.

The Illinois emergency relief commission acted yesterday to restore the relief budget that was in effect prior to Oct. 1 by requesting all its agents to prepare estimates of their needs for November, based upon the old scale, it was announced by Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman. The estimates will be placed before the Reconstruction Finance corporation, with a request for a loan for their total amount for November.

"The commission reduced October food expenditures as a matter of necessity," Mr. Ryerson said. "When the R. F. C. made its last allocation to Illinois it definitely stated that the $5,000,000 would have to last until Nov. 1. To make our funds cover the cost of relief for the month we were forced to cut down allocations. In our next application to the R. F. C. we will base our estimates on the food budgets in effect before October, as the reduced budgets are out of keeping with our standards of relief.'

Death Weapons Tossed Into Lake by Coroner

Weapons which have taken several hundred lives in Chicago were taken three miles into the lake yesterday and dumped from a tug by Coroner Frank J. Walsh. County Commissioner Dan Ryan, President Bundesen of the board of health, Ald. Frank Corr [17th], and Walter E. Olson, one of the original supporters of the crime detection laboratory which works in coöperation with the coroner's office, looked on as several hundred shotguns, revolvers, pistols, blackjacks, knives, and other weapons were thrown overboard.

Tests of the locks of the Illinois waterway at Lockport, begun yesterday under the supervision of army engineers, are to be completed today, after which the locks are to be turned over to the government by the contractors.

Walter M. Smith, assistant chief engineer of the state waterways division and designer of the locks, opened the tests. With war department engineers was R. L. Klein, federal electricial inspector. No boats were used, the tests being limited to checks of the flow and discharge of water in the locks.

DEFEATED TEXAS GOVERNOR BOLTS "MA" FERGUSON

Austin, Tex., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Gov. R. S. Sterling, Democrat, displayed a "Bullington for Governor" button on his lapel today to herald his support of Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, Republican nominee for governor of Texas.

Further than that political gesture, he remained silent. The governor previously had announced he would not support Mrs. Miriam A. [Ma] Ferguson, who defeated him for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the August primary.

Sterling unsuccessfully contested Mrs. Ferguson's victory, alleging vote irregularities.

TAXPAYERS SUE TO CURB TROOPS IN MINE STRIKE ZONE

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The city of Taylorville and the villagers of Bulpitt, Tovey, Kincaid and Jelsyville, towns of Christian county, together with about fifty other taxpayers in Christian county, filed a bill for injunction in the Circuit court of Christian county here this morning.

The petition for an injunction is 35 pages in length and contains approximately 10,000 words. It alleges numerous violent acts committed by the militia in Christian county, among them the slaying of Andrew Gyenes, the injury of Hollis Butterfield, the beating of Richard Jones, the stabbing of George Burns, and the false imprisonment, transporting, abusing, and molesting of other citizens.

The bill of complaint further charges that many of the members of the militia are now unemployed and are endeavoring to prolong their term of service in Christian county in order to enrich themselves at the expense of the taxpayers of the state of Illinois and to the detriment of the citizens of Christian county.

It says that the militia has claimed for themselves the rights and authority superior to the civil officers of Christian county and they have threatened, abused, and molested the mayors and police officers and villages who are joining in the petition, and that they have attempted to exercise legislative, judicial as well as executive authority.

The defendants named in the bill are Charles H. Wieneke, sheriff of Christian county; Lieut. Col. Robert Davis, commander of the Illinois National Guard units, and Capt. Carl J. Meacham, executive officer.

BRITISH RECTOR IS UNFROCKED BY ANGLICAN CHURCH

'Friend of Fallen Women' Plans New Appeal.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 21.—In a medieval setting in the small chapel of Norwich cathedral, the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, today was deprived of his income and emoluments as head of the parish of Stiffkey and was degraded from his office as priest and deacon of the Church of England. Sentence was pronounced by the bishop of Norwich, who was prosecutor in the rector's recent trial before the consistory court on charges of immorality.

The effect of the sentence is that Davidson now is a layman and ineligible ever to be re-ordained unless he succeeds in an appeal to the archbishop of Canterbury, which he declares he will make.

Public Is Barred.

The beautiful old cathedral was closed to the public when the court sat today in order to avoid scandalous scenes. The chapel is so small that only twelve witnesses in addition to the bishop and the canons who sat with him were able to get in.

In an age old formula, the bishop announced that Davidson had been convicted in consistory court of "certain immoral conduct, immoral acts and immoral habits." The sentence depriving him of his income was pronounced first. The bishop, then moving in procession to the high altar of the cathedral, solemnly announced the degradation from priesthood.

The rector was late for the proceedings, which were timed to begin at 11 a. m. He sent a telegram saying that he was detained and the court waited until his arrival just before noon.

Insists He Is Innocent.

When asked if he had anything to say, Davidson declared:

"I am innocent in the sight of God."

He declared he only did his duty as a Christian priest in ignoring the ninety and nine just persons and going to the rescue of the sinner.

He declared his intention of appealing to the archbishop and of devoting the rest of his life to agitating for reform of the church courts so that clergymen could be tried justly for alleged offenses.

Davidson was convicted after a long and sensational trial in which his association with prostitutes in London was revealed. His defense was that although his duties as a priest lay in the country parish, he devoted himself to rescue work in London.

INDICT LAWYER WHO CONFESSED $500,000 FRAUD

CRIMINAL COURT.

Lawrence Young, Harry Lewis, and Joseph Kurgan, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in the penitentiary; John Oran, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory; Bruno Putlak, burglary, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John Prystalski.

Attorney Charles M. Glaeser, 56 years old, 6342 North Irving avenue, who confessed that he defrauded clients of $500,000 by means of forged mortgages, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on three charges of forgery and a charge of operating a confidence game.

The forgery charges were based on the complaints of Dr. T. S. Noble, 1430 Leland avenue, who lost $106,000; Lizzie Burt, 6530 Dorchester avenue, who lost $13,000, and Mrs. Marie Heinrich, 2607 Blaine place, who lost $28,000. The confidence game indictment was obtained on complaint of Catherine Leiser, 2509 Belle Plaine avenue, who lost $2,500. Glaeser, held to the grand jury by Judge Frank M. Padden in bonds of $50,000, said that he would plead guilty. Evidence was presented to the grand jury by Prosecutors Henry Ayers and Elmer Holmgren.

BOARD NAMES E. W. BROWN TO GLASSFORD'S JOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Inspector Ernest W. Brown, veteran of 36 years' service as a local policeman, was named today to succeed Brig. Gen. Pelham G. Glassford, who yesterday resigned as superintendent of the capital police department.

The selection caused little surprise, as the district commissioners had announced they would choose a new police head from that department. Inspector Brown has been senior assistant superintendent and commander of the traffic bureau for seven years.

Inspector Brown joined in 1896 at the age of 22.

Follows Narrative Style of Other Works.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The New Poetry," edited by Harriet Monroe and Alice Corbin Henderson. New edition, completely revised. [Macmillan.]

A NEW volume of poetry by Edwin Arlington Robinson is always an event. Mr. Robinson is by way of being the dean of American poets, although he is not by any means the oldest of his craft there is a dignity, a sort of rock-bound quality about everything that he has ever written which fits into the ideal picture of a poet's work. He has never done anything trivial. Whatever he does has validity.

E. A. ROBINSON.

It is as a narrative poet that Mr. Robinson is known. His poems have been highly and popularly honored. The method which was so beautifully effective in "Tristram" is exactly the method of the shorter narratives in "Nicodemus," the first volume of short poems to be published from his pen in many years. In it are eleven poems, four with Biblical settings: Nicodemus pleading with Caiaphas for Jesus, the prodigal son defending himself to his brother, the murder of Sisera by Jael's spike-driving hand, the young Gideon who refused to be king of the Israelites.

Each of the familiar stories he revivifies, here with the bewilderment of Jael's husband at her actions, there with Caiaphas' assurance that he is right for "I am always right. If I were wrong I should not be a priest." Two of them chronicle the last words of Ponce de Leon and Toussaint L'Ouverture, the Haitian hero, two men who sought, in different forms, the elixir of life, two who, in the sense that they will live forever in the annals of the world, drank it and achieved eternal youth.

"Annandale Again," retells the story of "How Annandale Went Out," which was published in "The Town Down the River," and which is reprinted in this volume. Another poem which might have appeared in "The Town Down the River" [but didn't because it is of more recent creation] is "Hector Kane." It is a tense psychological study, a little like "Cavender's House." A short crisp Christmas poem—and there are the eleven.

It is timely that a new revised edition of Harriet Monroe's "Poets and Their Art" has just been issued, for in it there is a particularly understanding essay on Edwin Arlington Robinson in which this brilliantly critical paragraph appears:

"If the psychology of failure, or that uncertain middle ground between spiritual success and failure, is Robinson's recurrent motive, it may be interesting to study his attitude and his methods in presenting that motive in art. It is heroic, not ignoble, struggle that engages him, or if not heroic, at least the struggle of highly strung sensitive souls to fulfill their manifest destiny; ending either in acceptance of compromise, or in tragic spiritual revolt that induces some kind of dark eclipse. The form is usually narrative with the poet as the narrator, under some assumption of friendship or at least neighborliness; but in the longer poems we have, as a rule monologue and dialogue, the characters unfolding their perplexities, or recording their action upon each other, in long speeches which are not talk, as talk actually ever was or could be, but which are talk intensified into an extra-luminous self-revelation; as if an X-ray turned into the suffering soul, made clear its hidden structural mysteries."

The essays in "Poets of Today" are all short, but packed with such subtle valuations as this one of Edwin Arlington Robinson. They are concerned with "Poets of Today" which include the top layer of creative artists in the field of poetry, "Certain Poets of Yesterday," Chaucer, Shakespeare, Shelley, Keats, Byron, etc. . . . the best known of the classics, and various articles which are gathered together under the heads of "Comments and Queries" and "Poetic Rhythms."

To my way of thinking "The New Poetry" edited by Harriet Monroe and Alice Corbin Henderson has been, ever since it was first published in 1917, the best anthology of modern poetry in existence. The new edition, which has been completely revised, is a vast and impressive work with succinct biographical notes and bibliography which are invaluable.

Muirs Offer Novel Apiece in Fall List

Pair Also Present More Translations.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—In addition to various translations in which they have collaborated, both Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Muir are to be represented in the publishers' lists this season by new novels.

WILLA MUIR.

Mr. Muir's book, "Poor Tom," which is a modern tale, has been announced already; Mrs. Muir's promises to be an interesting addition to the study of feminine psychology. It is the portrait, at full length, of a good woman who gradually becomes more and more wicked.

I should have preferred to hear that it was about a wicked woman who gradually became more and more good; but that is not what Mrs. Muir has chosen to write about. All who remember the gifts revealed in Willa Muir's first novel, "Imagined Corners," will look forward to this new novel, "Mrs. Ritchie," for the author, although she belongs to the number of those who are called intellectuals, has not deserted the novel for the diagram or the prose poem.

One of the books in translating which Mrs. Muir has collaborated with her husband is Franz Kafka's "The Great Wall of China." Kafka's "The Castle," that extraordinary mystical romance, which has been likened to Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," and which was described by Hugh Walpole as "the finest novel of 1930," was a book for the few, but it was a book which those who read it pondered deeply and preserved forever. "The Great Wall of China" is a book of shorter pieces, fables, allegories, and aphorisms. There remains to be translated Kafka's other great philosophical novel, "The Trial," and I am glad to understand that Mr. and Mrs. Muir are engaged upon the translation of this important work.

L. A. G. Strong, who is still holidaying in Inverness-shire, has just published a new volume of short stories, "Don Juan and the Wheelbarrow." This book will increase the reputation which Mr. Strong already has as a writer of short stories, in which, over and over again, he is at his very best.

But he is a versatile writer, for in addition to novels and short stories he has lately published a collection of his poems, and he is, of course, the fiction critic of the London Spectator. Whereas some men who have been schoolmasters retain the school masterly habit of mind when they come to deal with grownup people, Mr. Strong has a gentleness and an unobtrusive humor in all emergencies.

Tale of Prairie Adventure Good One for Child

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of Children's Work for Branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"Snipp, Snapp, Snurr and the Red Shoes," by Maj. Lindman. [Whitman.]

YOUNG people living in this section of the country should be especially interested in Earl Chapin May's "The Prairie Pirates," an exceedingly well told story of the settlement of Illinois and the beginnings of Chicago nearly a century ago. We hear the story from the lips of one Andrew Fowler, young miller's apprentice of Maryland, who hearing of the good fortune which had come to the Illinois country with the discovery of Galena in the territory, forsakes his master and sets out to make a place for himself in the new land.

The story of that trip across country by wagon and river-boat, is as thrilling an adventure tale as any young reader could desire. The young hero does his part to save the rich prairie lands for the settlers, fighting under the young Abe Lincoln in the Black Hawk war, and later as one of the Regulators playing a noteworthy part in the capture and conviction of the lawless band of "prairie pirates" scourging the little colony.

There is a description of the little mudhole called Chicago, which most of the settlers passed by to take up claims in the much vaunted Galena section, with only the voice of a lone prophet, here and there, crying out that the ugly little settlement would surely one day far excel all others in its development.

The coming of the McCormick reaper revolutionized the farm and the settlers on the broad prairies of Illinois found themselves prosperous and at peace. Then comes the glint of gold from far off California, and the frontier shifts again, and following the trail go the Conestoga wagons leaving behind them rich farm lands and comfortable homes where the wilderness had bloomed but a short time before. A picturesque and inspiring story of real accomplishment which one cannot help but feel will have a timely message for the boy or girl of today.

For the little folks there are many lovely picture books making their appearance on the fall shelves. Children who liked Lena Towsley's "Peggy and Peter" will like equally well her new book called "Sally and Her Friend" in which she gives us lovely photographs of the pets of Peggy and Peter—Sally and Patty, the dogs, and Tinker the cat and her kittens. The book is marked by the same beautiful photographic work which characterized the earlier one.

For a delightful little story-picture book there is Maj. Lindman's "Snipp, Snapp, Snurr, and the Red Shoes," telling in simple childlike pictures and easy text the story of three little Swedish boys and the birthday gift they earned for their mother.

This Sleuth Finds Minute Mysteries Are Real Puzzlers

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

"Minute Mysteries," otherwise detectograms [Houghton-Mifflin], by H. A. Ripley, is one of those tricks to try the souls of men. Probably you have been reading the hair trigger exploits of Prof. Fordney each morning in THE TRIBUNE, but the collection just appearing in book form is entirely new. In the foreword a game is suggested: copy a few and let your guests of the evening read, digest, and solve the problems presented, or read one aloud slowly and firmly, allowing one minute to your listening friends to pounce upon the criminal's mistake.

Well, I've been reading detective stories for years and years and I want to say that in no single perusal do I track down the subtle flaw which instantaneously delivers the cleverest crook into the professor's hands.

They are just too smart for anything, these baby bafflers. As no two are alike, each requires a technique of its own and it's dreadful how often the seasoned sleuth has to make his shamefaced way to the solutions at the end of the book. Believe me, no mechanical lie detector has a look-in when Prof. Fordney is around. He'd make a monkey of any machine, just as he does of the less complicated human intelligence.

To the Man Who Knows Its Origin Every Word Presents a Picture

BROKER
Originally a Vender of Wine

The modern broker who engages in large-scale financial operations takes his name from a humble origin. Broker is derived from the Old French broquier or brokier, a dialectal form of brochier "one who taps a cask in order to draw the liquor." Thus, the broker was in the first place a retail vender of wine. The first meaning in English was "petty dealer" or "peddler," and from this lowly beginning the word has developed to its present dignity.

Every day you use hundreds of words whose origins are as interesting and surprising as this. You will find their fascinating stories in

The "Supreme Authority"

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE NEW PUBLIC DOMAIN.

George Hagenauer, auditor of the county treasurer's office, estimates on the basis of the 1929 tax forfeitures that the 1930 forfeitures will number 320,000, or about forty per cent of all the real estate parcels in the county. Back of the tax delinquency are a number of reasons. Property has lost value and profits, owners have lost their money, tax assessments have been frightfully muddled, the owner has fought his taxes and now faces an accumulation of them with penalties, but over all these reasons is the one of government costs and consuming taxation.

If forty per cent of the real estate parcels of the county should be forfeited to the state—there are no tax sale buyers these days—there'll be a quasi-public domain restored again in Illinois as evidence of the progress of socialism in this country. With something approaching a half of private real property in the hands of the state any citizen of the left might think his doctrines were progressing very well indeed, to what result he might be puzzled to say, but nevertheless he would admit that the scheme was on its way. Even a communist could point to this expropriation of private property as the best sign of the times he could find.

It does not seem to matter much that the results are not obtained by doctrinal law and general legislation. If the tax laws can extinguish private property rights and titles and give ownership to the state the institution of private property is being destroyed. The expedient communist would say that doctrine could come later. Presently there'll be less private property in America than there is in Russia. A few more years of taxes will do it.

A NEW MANIFESTATION OF VIRTUE.

Five Florida primitives of the Jacksonville section have been identified by a woman and her daughter as members of a civic group who flogged them with leather straps. The women were taken from their home and six miles into the woods by automobile. They were then beaten. The men accused of the crime deny that they had anything to do with it. The social error corrected by the flogging was selling contraband liquor. This was the reason given for the visitation by the workers in the service of Volstead.

The unhappiest feature of the era of goodness attending national prohibition has been the ferocity of the righteous in the advancement of the cause. No one locality has had a corner on the eighteenth amendment virtues, but certain southern types in Alabama, Florida and Georgia have been particularly zealous, being primitively valiant in instances which exposed unprotected persons to exhibitions of their virtues.

When both the northern and the southern Illuminati of the cause advocate punishment without mercy, enforcement with gun and sword and the extermination of the nonconformists, root and branch, it is not to be wondered that the simple followers of the prophets have found pleasure in torturing any weak member of society exposed to their attacks. Not the least of the blessings which will attend the disappearance of prohibition will be the subsidence of the moralists who have operated under it.

HOT DOG AND OTHER AMERICANA.

A few India rubber clams fried in some clammery threw Mr. Pegler into the heresy of writing down American cooking as even worse than the English. That couldn't be. English is not even to be described. It is to be passed over in silence unless one cares to do as Mr. Wells' Mr. Polly, sit on a fence and groan and curse the "beastly 'ole." It is a matter of frequent regret that the America countryside does not have more of the French legend and it is confessable that nothing more terrible than Mr. Pegler's Atlantic coast shore dinner, as ordinarily obtainable, has been imagined since man discovered fire and ceased to satisfy himself by eating it on the hoof or grubbing for roots. With some of nature's best gifts to man available the shore dinner is mockery and misery.

But all is not lost in the American scene and cuisine. It is true that good clam chowder is obtainable only in Chicago and Beaufort, N. C. There is no obvious reason for this. It just happens to be so. Baked mackerel in Provincetown, Cape Cod, helps Beaufort redeem the eastern coast, but most of it is seaweed. It is not intended here to issue a directory of American foods and places which will rejoice the traveler, but good luck and discrimination will allow him to insult all other celebrated cooks and foods.

There is catfish meuniere at Evansville, Ind. You may not want catfish meuniere, but take it from uncle you do, from the Green river of blessed name. Chicken gumbo at Durham, N. C., may take you a bit out of the way, but it's worth twice the distance, and hopping back north there's strawberry pie at Galena, Ill. If Duluth ever kept any of its whitefish there'd be something added to the attractions of its skyline drive, but failing there try St. Ignace. Any place in southern Indiana ought to yield a deep peach cobbler. And when in doubt take ham and eggs. Space, not experience, limits the recital, but space must be reserved for a word as to the American hot dog, celebrated as an atrocity. This can be a noble handful requiring, probably, a few favoring conditions, a crisp October or November Saturday afternoon, thirty thousand excited people, sunshine the color of the maple leaves, your team to the good by a touchdown and more mustard than the vender usually puts on it. Hot dog!

POLITICS AND GRAND JURIES.

Republican partisans in Cook county are charging that the special grand jury for which an appropriation was recently voted is intended for political purposes. Certainly there is much ground for suspecting that the charge is well founded even in the absence of positive proof. The request for the special grand jury was submitted shortly before the April primary, and the subjects which were to be investigated at that time were the receivership racket and the activities of criminals in politics. As the state's attorney had been active in exposing the receivership scandals it was difficult to see why he could not be intrusted with the task of presenting his evidence to the regular grand jury; and as the allegations of a political-criminal alliance were not supported by anything but suspicions it was more than a little difficult to believe that a special grand jury was needed to investigate them.

Months have intervened during which there has been no obvious need for a special grand jury, no public demand for one, and, so far as any one knows, no new evidence to present. Under these circumstances the obvious explanation of the impaneling of a special jury is the desire to use it for political purposes. If there is any other justification it is high time that it were disclosed.

The question of the special grand jury involves a good deal more than the eight or ten thousand dollars which it will cost to get it started. A special grand jury is the final defense of the citizens against official corruption. The special jury should be used only when the need for it is clear and when the regularly constituted law enforcement officers are plainly derelict in their duties. To use this extraordinary machinery whenever an election or a primary is coming on is to cheapen it, and, in the long run, therefore, to weaken this traditional defense against dishonest officialdom.

FIGHTING FOR US.

The theory on which our American cancellationists have been most eloquent has not been lost upon our debtors in Europe, especially the French. Mr. Taylor cables from Paris that we are to be invited by M. Herriot later on to cancel or cut down our claims on this theory—namely: that the French and allied armies were compelled to hold back the German armies while we prepared to enter the field. The conclusion implied is that we ought to consider our war loans an expenditure forced upon France because of our delay.

The argument would be overwhelming if the German army were in France in an attack upon the United States, or in a war with the making of which the United States had anything to do. But it happens to be true that the United States would have had no occasion to fight Germany at all if it had not been for conditions brought about by European politics and for reasons to which we had made no contributions. The French were in no sense holding the German army for us, but for France, and the United States at no time interposed any obstruction to France making peace with Germany at any time. France did not continue fighting while we prepared because she was defending us, but because she was defending herself, and she postponed coming to terms with Germany not because the United States was endangered, but because she expected, rightly, that when we arrived she could make better terms than she could expect without us.

This theory is congenial to the apologetic Americans who hold that the European war was a war to end war, a war in defense of civilization, and that the American nation was in duty bound to enter it at its beginning. Although its chief proponents in America are Wilsonians, Wilson did not hold to it in 1914 and the American nation does not accept it now. We were thoroughly propagandized to that effect from 1914 to 1917 by the British and French, but we finally entered the war because German submarines sank American ships and destroyed American lives contrary to what we maintained were our rights as neutrals. There would never have been these wrongs if it had not been for the collision between the central and allied powers through causes for which we had no responsibility. Therefore, the only possible basis for the theory advanced as a moral justification for repudiation is the theory that the allies were fighting altruistically to preserve civilization and the central powers to destroy it, while we refused to do our part for its defense.

There are, of course, Americans who still hold this view of the great conflict, but if the American people in the main were for a time beginning to be impressed with it they have been thoroughly disillusioned since the armistice. Its revival at this stage will not incline them to cancellation or revision, but rather to resist it. It suggests to us only that our debtors are conscious of a weak case and feel the need of any make-weight available.

Editorial of the Day

THE UPS AND DOWNS.

[Battle Creek Enquirer.]

In this morning's CHICAGO TRIBUNE appeared an editorial published Oct. 11, 1871, after the great fire.

The predominant theme of this splendid, vivid editorial was: Chicago must rise again.

That was sixty-one years ago and Chicago did rise again.

But Chicago, now a city of four million inhabitants, must have learned by now that one rise is not sufficient and that time brings a series and a variety of failings and risings.

Chicago was knocked down at that time by the fire and rose afterwards by rebuilding and rehabilitating.

Since then Chicago has been knocked down by other blows.

These blows, though less spectacular, have been municipal tragedies also.

Chicago has been staggered by incompetency and corruption in its public offices, by wholesale murder on its streets, by violent racketeering upon legitimate business, by an exhausted treasury, by the sight of unpaid police, firemen, and school teachers.

Chicago has nearly taken the count several times since the great fire and these blows, as that one, have lowered the city's public morale.

There might be occasion now and there has been occasion in the past for reexpression of the idea—Chicago must rise again.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE BROKEN TREE.

In a house topped by a Gothic cupola,
On the Falls road out to winding Sunday creek,
The small Aspasia Martindale came down
Her curving walnut staircase, freshly dressed
In stiff gray silk she wore each afternoon,
Her shoulders draped in a cashmere palerine.
Where lace-edged ends of organdy lappets
She hung the wide hair-chain, inwrought with gold,
About her still firm neck, and tucked the watch
"I wonder if he'll keep his word today;
Will come to kneel with me at evening prayer?"

Adjusting bustles, bulging crinoline—
She moved the carpet-covered walnut chair
Beneath the hanging basket of dwarf grape:
Placed tatting tidies on its curving arms,
Where in a mirror she could plainly see
The welcome team of Caleb Entwistle
As he drew up and hitched fast to the fence.
Perhaps today he'd bring the engagement ring—
They'd set the nuptial date, make wedding plans.
She deeply sighed and called her housekeeper
To dust again and wipe the window glass.
She whirled the sewing stand until she found
The kind of needlework to suit her mood:
Looked for a lamp mat sewed with worsted thread—
The carpet slippers done in gay chenille—
Or galluses of fine yarn needlepoint.

All morning she'd helped gayly in the house:
Made horehound sirup, bound the palm-leaf fans
With velvet ribbons to match every dress,
For love had come . . . and love was never late.
What matter if the entire neighborhood
Had, with advice not welcome to her ears,
Warned her against a marriage to the man
Who had already had three wives?
"It's not good luck. Besides, we hear they were Unequal to your people, anyway."
One night the Evening Choristers came in,
And sang, for obvious reasons, though unasked:
"Fine Ladies Do Not Trust in Stranger Men"—
And "Love Requited Sleeps Beneath the Rue."

They seemed to have dark reasons why they thought
She gave them apples in her ugliest dish—
Unbuttered popcorn and some lukewarm tea;
Was not too cordial as she curtsied in
The open door where stood their painted rigs.
How could they hope to ever understand
The circuit rider, coming year on year—
The man of books who was betrothed to her?
And who was better fitted for her mate?
Had they read daily in the Advocate
"The Monitor for Wives" . . . "The Floral News"?
"Women Who Dare" . . . "The Mother's Manual"?
Nor did they follow styles of "Paris Trends";
Some still were wearing wire forms in the hair—
And chemisettes of passementerie,
With peplum basques and placket buttonhole.
Had they read "Conversations as You Dine"?
Did they have words of old and modern use
Vocabularies on the backs of fans?

And when Concurrence coolly ushered in
She clanked the chains upon the hanging lamps
To symbolize her hatred of the man.

And now . . . Aspasia, fourth and final wife,
Beneath a headstone level with the earth
At Orchard cemetery, faces east,
While opposite is Minna, in the west.
Percelia, as though wringing marble hands
Clasps them above her tombstone, looking north,

But in the center of the weed-grown plot
Lies Caleb, erstwhile husband of the group,
With fitting monument, and self-designed.
A broken tree of corrugated stone—
A sentinel in absolute command.
Engraved upon it in a high relief,
Where root-bound ivy prophesies the spring,
Are lines that weather every passing storm:

"Born eighteen-hundred, died in seventy-four;
I came here through a heaven-opened door.
Experience with women was the foil
That layed me here, measured by height in soil.
"And still I find, now that my life is through—
The many angels here are women, too.
For them I am an ageless, broken tree—

RACHEL MACK WILSON.

WASHINGTON is all excited picking out the members of the new cabinet under Mr. Roosevelt. A Washington florist has hung out a sign, "Official Florist to President Roosevelt," and a carnival man is advertising a section of chairs he is going to put up in Pennsylvania avenue "to witness the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as President of the United States." All of which is making the Republicans so mad that if they win the election they'll move the capital to Painted Post, Neb., or Three Oaks, Mich. And serve Washington jolly right!

BERNARD SHAW is going to withdraw his play, "Too True to Be Good," from the stage because the people at whom it is leveled don't like it and won't pay for tickets to see it, while the intelligentsia, who, of course, would understand and appreciate the play, can't afford to buy tickets. We doubt that, but the question remains, why does the intelligentsia stay away from things such as Bernard Shaw's play and polling booths? The answer is, because they're intelligentsia. Mr. Shaw should get in touch on this question with Norman Thomas.

AND ONE REASON we like football better than politics is that in football you can't get the slightest idea how the game is going to come out by taking a straw vote. E. H. L.

TO CONTROL MALARIA.

AMONG health officers and sanitary engineers, an estimate as to some points in malarial control through prevention seems to be about as follows:

There is no one method of control that is superior to all others under all circumstances. Each method has advantages that make it the best in certain circumstances.

Screening is of great value. It should be done with wire mesh No. 16 or No. 18, in frames that fit accurately.

The fireplaces, as well as the doors and windows, should be screened.

Screens should be well protected and properly cared for.

Good screening, meeting the approval of sanitary engineers, is now standardized and, being so, can be installed at very small expense. Most health departments are ready to advise how standard screening can be procured and installed at small expense.

Poor screening is better than none, provided killing mosquitoes within the house is carried out daily.

The use of animals as mosquito bait as a means of protecting human beings against malaria is of value when properly carried out. The animals must be housed. The pasturage of animals in muddy pastures for that purpose tends to increase the prevalence of the disease.

Killing mosquitoes within the house is a measure of great value.

Major drainage on a large scale is the most valuable of all anti-malarial measures in those places and conditions where economic conditions warrant.

Secondary drainage in the vicinity of dwelling places, churches, and schools is a valuable procedure. This type of drainage includes destruction of cans and other vessels liable to hold water.

The use of mosquito larvicides is better suited to most mosquito breeding places than is oiling.

In some locations the use of fish in mosquito control is superior to other measures. Bats, swallows, nighthawks, dragon flies, and other insect eating birds and insects are of service for the destruction of mosquitoes, but, since they destroy adults only, they are of much less service than those fish that eat larvae and eggs.

In most circumstances vegetation in water promotes mosquito breeding. A few plants have the opposite effect.

Malarial mosquitoes, under great urge for blood, will fly two to three miles.

Houses are of importance as breeding places for mosquitoes. Certain homes are malaria spreaders.

As the number of persons in a house in a malarial region increases, the likelihood of that house being a malaria spreader increases.

Most malaria is contracted as a result of exposure at night and in the late afternoon and early morning.

One carrier in a house may infect all the occupants thereof.

Certain neighborhoods are malaria foci.

Churches and schools are important foci for malaria. It is all important to cure the carriers. All persons with malarial fever should be kept behind screens.

MONGOLIAN BABIES.

M. A. writes: 1. What is a child of the Mongolian type?

2. Are they always idiots?

3. Do they grow to maturity?

4. Can anything be done for them in the way of cure?

5. What causes them to be born that way?

REPLY.

1. Children of this type have slant eyes and heads that are somewhat unusual in shape. They are subnormal mentally.

2. They are rarely idiots, but they are always below normal mentally.

3. As a rule they do not.

4. Physicians try to change them by giving ductless gland preparations.

5. There is much speculation, but nobody knows.

PAUSING HEART.

C. P. writes: What is the meaning of the following symptom: My pulse is regular and strong, at about 70 a minute. However, it will go 30 or 40 beats as steady as a clock, firm and full, and then there will come a distinct pause, after which the blood stream resumes as before.

REPLY:

You seem to have a simple intermittence in the heartbeat. This may be of no consequence. If you use tobacco or coffee in excess you should lessen your daily dose. Or constipation may be the cause.

Perhaps an examination is advisable. It might disclose some condition that calls for attention.

MARRIAGE NO PROTECTION.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—A young man is to be deported to his native country. If he marries a young lady born in the United States, does that prevent him from being deported? If not, how long must he wait before he can return to the United States, and can he then apply for United States citizenship papers? W. K.

You are advised that the marriage to a citizen of the United States of an alien who is subject to deportation does not serve to protect such alien from deportation. Furthermore, an alien who has been deported from the United States may not reënter this country at any time unless after one year following the date of deportation the secretary of labor grants permission for such alien to reapply for admission. Following the granting of such permission the citizen wife of the alien husband may petition the secretary of labor for the issuance of a nonquota immigration visa in behalf of the alien husband who has been deported.

K. I. ZIMMERMAN,
Assistant District Director of Immigration.

SELLING MORTGAGE.

Morris, Ill., Oct. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—"A" owns property. The deed is in her name. "B" holds a first mortgage on it. "B" attempts to sell it to "C" without the knowledge or consent of "A." Is there a penalty for such an offense? V. G. S.

There is no objection to "B" selling the mortgage. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing just what it is that "B" proposes to sell and what representations he makes.

DEPENDS ON CONTRACT.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I purchased a house in 1926 on contract with the understanding when contract was paid a warranty deed would be furnished. I finished paying on contract last June. 2. They now charge me $3 for the deed and [3] $3 for revenue stamps before they will give me same. Please advise if it is compulsory for me to pay the $6. G. W.

1. Your rights depend on the wording of the written contract.

2. They have no right to charge you for giving you the warranty deed specified in the contract unless the contract authorizes such charge.

3. If they give you the warranty deed their obligation is at an end. It is to your own interest to attach the revenue stamps and record the deed and you will have to stand these charges.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 22, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Streets of empty tents, a fleck of light where the guard's fire burned, and the squidgy march of the sentry on his beat—that was the camp of the First Illinois artillery last night at Fort Sheridan. Except for a guard of eight and one lieutenant of each battery the artillery city was deserted. Camp authorities permitted all men to go to their homes for the night. This decision was reached after thirty-four members of Battery B, indignant at government neglect, took French leave the day before and failed to return at reveille yesterday. The defection continued yesterday and at retreat forty-two members of this battery were absent. In wartime the concerted act would constitute mutiny. As individual acts, intent would have to be proved before the absent ones could be called deserters.

BERLIN.—Count Carl Stuergkh, the Austrian premier, was assassinated today in Vienna. The assassin was Ludwig Adler, said to be the editor of a Vienna periodical. The reports which reached Berlin did not tell the cause of the murder, but dispatches received several days ago asserted there was a ministerial crisis in Austria and it is probable Adler was inspired by political motives.

LONDON.—Suddenly shifting the attack to Dobrudja, Von Hindenburg has resumed his campaign to crush Rumania and put King Ferdinand's armies out of the war. Under command of Field Marshal von Mackensen, who directed the Teutonic steam roller through Serbia, a huge force of Germans, Bulgars, and Turks is striking heavy hammer blows against the Russo-Rumanian line. Mackensen is attempting to break through the Russo-Rumanian front by terrific smashes of infantry and artillery and seize the important Constanza railway, with the terminals of Constanza and Cernavoda. On practically the entire Dobrudja front the Russians and Rumanians have given way under the first shock of this mighty offensive, official dispatches indicated.

LONDON.—British troops resumed the offensive on the Somme front with great success. They pushed their lines forward 300 to 500 yards along a front of three miles. The attack was delivered on the sector between the Schwaben redoubt, north of Thiepval, and the village of Le Sars, on the Albert-Bapaume highway. The Stuff and Regina trenches, strongly fortified German positions, and German posts northeast of Schwaben redoubt were captured. At about the same hour the French mastered a part of the strongly fortified wood north of Chaulnes.

ROME.—A strong Austrian position in the Botte valley in the Dolomites region has been captured by Italian Alpine troops at the point of the bayonet during a violent snowstorm.

CHICAGO.—Services in a hundred churches will be held today in observance of Armenian and Syrian relief days proclaimed by President Wilson.

FOOTBALL SCORES.—Northwestern 10, Chicago 0; Ohio State 7, Illinois 6; Iowa 24, Purdue 6; Michigan 9, Michigan Aggies 0; Harvard 47, Massachusetts Aggies 0; Princeton 33, Lafayette 0; Penn 15, Penn State 0; Cornell 19, Bucknell 0; Army 53, Trinity 0; Navy 12, West Virginia 7.

DIVERTING THE ROAD FUNDS.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—The only satisfactory relief for unemployment is employment. How unreasonable, as well as unjust, then, is the action of the Illinois state legislature in diverting the gasoline tax funds from road building to unemployment relief! The action could be attacked on the grounds of injustice to the motorist, actual dishonesty or betrayal of a trust in expending money collected for a specific purpose, in a manner not contemplated by the payer of the tax or toll. But the height of careless thinking is reached when we create unemployment to relieve unemployment.

Carefully prepared analysis of the cost of highway construction indicates that 91 per cent of the cost of the work is paid to labor. I challenge your relief commission to prove that an equal percentage of their funds actually reach those in need. The men receiving the money for road building perform honest, self-respecting labor for what they receive. The relief commission's funds are passed out in a dole, destructive to the self-respect of the recipient and leaving no improvement to the community.

This is no argument for discontinuing or lessening the activity of the relief commission. Only let's not create more unemployment to require its aid.

CORRECTING A CORRECTION.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 19.—Replying to your message [asking the political affiliation of the Rock Island Argus], the Argus is an independent newspaper. In 1928 it supported Hoover, Republican, for President and Floyd Thompson, Democrat, for governor. As yet we have made no pronouncement regarding the national ticket. We are enthusiastically supporting Horner for governor and Glenn, Republican, for senator. We believe personal merit and qualifications of greater importance than party label.

RATS IN THE PARK.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Beautiful Lincoln park in the last year has become literally alive with rats. At night these shadows flit across the paths, in and out of cages, and in daylight they may be seen eating with beavers and other animals. The situation has become a genuine danger. It may be argued poison would kill squirrels and other animals. Trapping is difficult. But there must be a way, and as a last resort shooting would reduce the number by thousands. The menace should be confronted before it develops into a plague. M. D.

THE BETTER MAN, OF COURSE.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—For whom will THE TRIBUNE instruct me to vote for President? "Tempest is figity!" Mr. Editor. Speak up and tell us if you favor Would-Be Teddie or Brains Herbert? F. A. G.

LOANS FOR HOUSING.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—The man who wrote that self-liquidating clause which includes housing in the reconstruction finance bill must have taken a course in building at some correspondence school. He proposes to bring back prosperity by washing away the few remaining equities that real estate owners have and by lowering your standard of living.

Apartments and homes are being rented so cheap in Chicago at the present time that the revenue from the buildings does not come anywhere near meeting the operating expenses. In fact, rents are so low I believe that within the next year you will see a number of modern buildings in Chicago closed completely, their windows boarded up and their doors nailed down.

Any practical builder with any experience will tell you that you can buy any number of buildings in Chicago at the present time for approximately twenty cents per cubic foot. In order to build a building at the present time for the cost of twenty cents per cubic foot you would have to obtain skilled labor at four dollars per day. Are we going to bring back prosperity by reducing skilled labor to four dollars a day or is our government going to be a good fellow and, in order to satisfy the whim of some half wit, build new buildings which will have to be sold at a terrific loss when completed, just to furnish work to the members of organized labor at ten or twelve dollars per day?

The whole scheme and the whole idea is just as ridiculous and just as impossible as it would be to place five quarts of water in a gallon jug. The plan won't work out because it can't work out. It should be placed in the same category with those other nationally known flops, such as the farm board, prohibition, and Boulder dam.

JOHN J. MANGAN.

HOW TO PICK 'EM.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—In the Voice of the People Sunday I noted an answer to a perplexed woman who asked for help in deciding how to vote for her country's good. The answer given was hardly enlightening.

If this voter—and there are many like her—after comparing their political careers cannot decide between the two men she ought to be advised to study the principles of the two parties they represent and what each party has accomplished when in office.

If still she cannot decide on the presidential candidate she will do as well by her country if she votes for the right men to represent her in the legislative halls in Washington.

If she is uninformed about these men she might do as I do: follow the recommendations of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, which I have found nearly always correct. AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

NEW DELAY HOLDS UP DEPOSITIONS IN INSULL CASE

Investigate Affairs of Investment Unit.

Depositions in the Insull extradition proceedings were delayed yesterday. State's Attorney Swanson's staff of assistants seeking to bring about the return of Samuel Insull, former utility magnate, and his brother, Martin, for trial, said they were not ready to take witnesses before Chief Justice John Prystalski to have their sworn statements certified in the manner required to obtain President Hoover's signature to extradition warrants.

Meanwhile, the civil side of the tangled financial affairs of the Insull companies engaged the attention of lawyers. Attorney Robert C. O'Connell, master in chancery in the Superior court, ordered the production before him of the books of the Utility Securities Corporation syndicate No. 2, an Insull project.

Syndicate of Employés.

Attorney Edward L. Hoyer had brought suit for an accounting in behalf of G. C. Guillot, who said the syndicate was composed of 1,000 employés of Insull companies who subscribed approximately $500,000 to be used to support Insull stocks in the market.

Guillet's bill charges that the purposes of the syndicate were to purchase, acquire, hold, and deal in Insull securities, and that the true intention and purpose of the syndicate had been violated. He named Frank R. Evers as the "guiding genius of the syndicate," who is responsible to the subscribers. His bill also accuses Fred H. Scheel, Robert W. Waite and the La Salle-Quincy corporation Evers, he charged, had comingled the funds of the syndicate with those of the La Salle-Quincy corporation.

Certain subscribers had been refunded 100 per cent of their investments, Guillot alleged, and others received only 90 per cent, 75 per cent and 50 per cent. The bill states that certain stocks were bought at prices above the market and the court was asked to compel the production of a statement showing all transactions of the company.

Obtain a Subpoena.

The law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale, which represents Samuel Insull in other matters, appeared as counsel for the respondents. Master O'Connell said that when the case was referred to him for a hearing the respondents refused to produce the books without a subpoena which was obtained yesterday.

The parties were in O'Connell's office and the hearing was about to open when the attorneys noted the presence of reporters. They conferred for a minute and then notified Master O'Connell they were in agreement that a week's continuance should be granted, which was done. It was denied, however, that the presence of the newspaper men was responsible for the agreement not to proceed.

YOUNG INSULL IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Samuel Insull Jr. arrived in London from Paris this evening. He dodged newspaper men and photographers by the simple method of traveling by the second boat train instead of the first and slipping from a side entrance of the station.

The newsmen were waiting for him in force at the Park Lane hotel, however, whereupon he handed out an official communique, such as might be issued by the prime minister of England. It began, "To be released for publication not prior to 12 noon Paris time [6 a. m. Chicago time] Friday, Oct. 21, 1932."

The communique occupied two and a half pages explaining to the press in detail exactly what he will and what he will not do. One of the things that he most definitely will not do is talk of his father's affairs.

In spite of the detailed schedule of times that he will see newspaper men mentioned in the communique, American correspondents sent a letter to his room requesting an interview. The letter was returned unopened and marked in Insull's own handwriting:

INSULL "STEPS OUT"

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 21.—International legal proceedings apparently at a standstill, Samuel Insull had an evening of diversion at a quiet dinner engagement tonight. He stepped out in a blue suit, four-in-hand tie, and light gray hat, and went to dine with John Eliasco, general manager of the Bank of Athens, at the latter's home.

Eliasco, besides being director of the Bank of Athens, is also president of the Bank of Athens Trust company of New York. This institution has a branch in Chicago at 33 South Clark street and another in Boston.

The Bank of Athens Trust company of New York also does business with the City National Bank and Trust company and the Cosmopolitan State bank, and previously with a number of other Chicago banks which are now closed.

May See Venizelos Today.

Eliasco, who is an elderly man, also is president of the Greek Water Supply company, which developed the new Athens municipal waterworks, bringing water from Parnes, a mountain town thirty-five miles away.

Insull was taken to Eliasco's home by his interpreter, Peter Vanech, who is a power in Greek-American circles both here and in America. The Chicago fugitive returned to his hotel about midnight.

The old man tonight was interested in the return of Premier Venizelos to Athens tomorrow, and it is expected that they will have an early interview. That they will have a talk in at least an impromptu and informal way is sure, because Venizelos when in Athens dines frequently at the Petit Palais hotel, where Insull is staying.

Insull had a pretty agreeable day. He reminisced about the hotel lounge this morning and had a repertoire of good stories. This afternoon he was busy with conferences.

WOMAN FREED AFTER TORTURE BY KIDNAPERS

Tells Amazing Story of Rum Intrigue.

Kidnaped and tortured with flame and knives and raped by her captors, Catherine Blanco Manserott, 20 years old, a barmaid in a Gary speakeasy, and mother of two children, told the Gary police a startling story of the bootleg rings in northern Indiana after she had been released last night.

She was seized at 16th street and Broadway in Gary last Tuesday night. Two men thrust her into an automobile, she said, and carried her away to a farmhouse somewhere outside Gary. There they demanded that she tell them the secrets of the liquor supply of her employer, Joseph Sannicola, 1645 Jefferson street, Gary.

Refuses to Tell Secrets.

"We know," the captors were quoted as telling her, "that Joe is getting in twenty-five gallons of alcohol a day. He only buys fifteen gallons from the syndicate. Where does the rest come from?"

Although Sannicola had told her she was fired the day she was kidnaped, the girl maintained that she remained faithful to his interests and refused to tell what she knew of the extra alcohol.

Then her tortures began, she said. The men burned her hair. With sharp knives they cut her arms and legs, after removing her clothing. Both attacked her. She did not weaken, she said, until yesterday, when the pair told her they were going to Gary, take her children, and bring them to the farmhouse.

"Then we'll kill them before your eyes," they added.

Under Police Guard.

After she had told them what they wanted to know, Mrs. Manserott asserted, they put her in their car and took her to Gary, where she was released at 11th and Van Buren streets. Her home is at 1073 Van Buren street. She was met there by her brother, David Blanco, who reported her disappearance on Tuesday. Later she was given a police guard and was kept in a secluded house because of fear of retaliation for her present disclosures.

As for Sannicola's business, she declared that it was only a drinking establishment masquerading as a confectionery. The entire twenty-five gallons a day was readily disposed of, she added.

"I was getting along all right," she continued. "I even carried messages for Sannicola to people who said they could fix the police so when a raid was coming off he could be all ready for it. I don't know why I was fired."

Sannicola has been arrested several times on charges of violating the prohibition laws, but has never been convicted, it was said.

IRENE RICH GIVES VIEWS ON CAREER AND MOTHERHOOD

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Irene Rich, the actress, celebrating her "forty-something" birthday, has a recipe of her own for mixing a career with motherhood.

It is:

"Determine to lay off the stern parent stuff. The last thing in the world I desire is to absorb my daughters—which is just as well for me, something tells me."

She has two daughters, Frances, 22, an alumnus of Smith college, with one season on Broadway and a picture already behind her, and Jane, still in school.

"I would have a fit," said Miss Rich, "if people didn't know they were my children."

'KAISER'S' PARTY BIDS FOR VOTES IN GERMAN RACE

Seeks Right to Put Up Own Candidates.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The "Kaiser party" is bidding for votes in the reichstag elections on Nov. 6 for the first time since proclamation of the German republic in 1919. The national election control office is examining the application of the party for permission to enter the bitter campaign together with the applications of 31 other parties.

Adolf Hitler's National Socialists head the list of parties in the race. The Socialists are second, communists, third; Catholic Centrists, fourth; Nationalists, fifth; the Kaiser party, is 27th, and the "President's party" 32d.

The Nationalists, German People's party, President's party, the Economic party and several tiny groups are campaigning under economic sounding slogans in support of Chancellor Franz von Papen's government, or, to be more accurate, a government nominated by President Paul von Hindenburg with a program similar to that of Von Papen.

Launch Political Intrigues.

Political intrigues have been launched against Von Papen personally and not against his "authoritative cabinet." They emanate from a group of "strong men" who helped Von Papen to form his cabinet, because they fear that his threats to alter the constitution went too far and endangered their position.

It is well known that the outstanding man of the cabinet, Minister of Defense Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, does not approve of the more reactionary parts of Von Papen's program. Von Schleicher has kept up contact with the Centrists and Hitlerites. He is still endeavoring to secure a broader parliamentary basis for the government in the new reichstag and to avoid a serious constitutional conflict by negotiations with the constructive elements of all parties.

Von Papen Replies to Attack.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Denying Germany has any desire to rearm, Chancellor Franz von Papen today issued a response to Adolf Hitler's attack yesterday on the government's foreign policy. The National Socialist leader's open letter, as published in Munich, Von Papen said, "made untrue statements calculated to seriously harm Germany's interests."

"Hitler claims Germany proposed arming up, demanded an army of 300,000, demanded construction of capital ships. These three assertions are completely untrue.

"Germany never made other demands than those contained in its public memorandum of Aug. 29 [Germany's demand for arms equality]. Germany demands now, as ever, that other nations reduce armaments to the status imposed on us by the Versailles treaty."

CZECH CABINET TO QUIT; PREMIER PLEADS ILLNESS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The ministerial council decided tonight to submit the resignation of the government of Frantisek Udrzal to President Masaryk tomorrow. Premier Udrzal is retiring on account of illness, it was announced.

Jan Malypetr, president of the chamber of deputies and a leader in the Czech Agrarian party, was reported as selected to replace the withdrawing premier.

Dr. Edouard Benes will remain in the new government as minister of foreign affairs. Jan Cerny, a member of the Czech Agrarians' organization, is slated to become minister of the interior, while Bohumil Bradac, also a Czech Agrarian, is expected to drop the agriculture portfolio and become minister of war. Milan Hodza, former minister of education, a Slovak Agrarian leader, would take over the agricultural portfolio. The railways portfolio was expected to be given to Rudolf Bechyne.

Socialist Newspaper Suppressed by Hungary

JACK M'GURN AND HIS WIFE LIVING IN OAK PARK

"Machine Gun Jack" McGurn, whose real name is Vincent Gebardi, was revealed yesterday as the owner of a house at 1114 Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, where he is living with his wife, his former "blonde alibi," Louise Rolfe.

Records in the county recorder's office show the hoodlum purchased the home last February. Not far away, and within the same respectable residence section, are the homes of three other hoodlums—Frankie Rio, Al Capone's ex-bodyguard; "Mops" Volpe, one of Capone's "brains"; and Frankie Lake, Terry Druggan's old pal.

The recorder's records disclosed that the McGurn property was deeded to him and to his wife last Feb. 26 by Emil T. Rank and his wife, Marie, for "$10 and other considerations." The brick house is 38 by 39 feet, with an attached two-car garage, and occupies a lot 50 by 150. It has two mortgages on it and was assessed April 1, 1931, at $21,751.

5,150,000 LISTED IN GERMANY FOR JOBLESS DOLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—About 5,150,000 unemployed persons were registered in the official lists of Oct. 15, which was an increase of 48,000 in the last two weeks, according to official figures, which are inaccurate. The actual number of unemployed is much higher. Officials reduced the total artificially by excluding all persons over 60 and all former owners of private businesses who are seeking jobs.

This imposes a hardship, since many of the thousands of workers who were stricken from the list had paid old age insurance in their working days and now feel entitled to the promised doles.

Most of the former owners of business enterprises who are seeking jobs are victims of the inflation with which the government wiped out its debt to the public.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR Results

NAMES, addresses, photos—here they are, with the facts about recent want ad experiences of people who used the Chicago Tribune Want Ad Section to find tenants for apartments and rooms, sell autos and real estate, recover lost property, and to do many other jobs that Tribune Want Ads can do.

All of these testimonials are brand-new, up-to-date. None of them ever has been printed before.

Satisfied customers are always willing to tell the facts. Read the testimony of these satisfied Tribune Want Ad users—and then remember:

The cheapest want ad is the costliest when it fails to do the job.

Without public confidence in the medium which prints your want ad, the most attractive offer will go unheeded.

For twenty years the Tribune has built reader confidence in its want ad columns by maintaining a strict censorship over them. The Tribune does not permit the reader's confidence in all advertising to be undermined by the questionable practices of a few advertisers.

Vigilantly this newspaper guards its columns against misrepresentation, extravagant claims, sharp practices, and fraud. It does not force reputable advertisers to work under such a handicap and so increase their cost of doing business.

The Tribune also has built up the confidence of its advertisers in its want ad columns by insisting that all advertisers enjoy equal opportunities, pay promptly, and at regular card rates.

It does not give away advertising to some while charging others.

It does not allow free re-runs except for reasons stated in its rate card.

These are some of the reasons why the Tribune is the preferred advertising medium of reputable want advertisers.

—why the Tribune gets better results and gets them more quickly than any other Chicago newspaper.

—why the Tribune during the first nine months of this year, as it has for the last 20 years, printed more want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

When you have any job that perplexes you, phone the newspaper that can do the job quickly and at low cost —the Tribune. Phone Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser.

Apartments!

"We had never used want ads to rent our apartments, but this time when several of them became vacant, we decided to put a want ad in the Tribune. Eight people answered the ad. We rented two apartments. We are very happy over the results."

MRS. G. WALSH

Rooms!

"We advertised our hotel rooms in the Tribune Want Ad Section from September 27th, through the 29th. Fifteen people answered the ads. We rented nine rooms! Results considered, which is the only thing that matters, the Tribune is now the lowest cost advertising medium for us."

E. W. BARENTHER, Mgr.
Hotel Delmar

Dogs!

"Thirteen people answered my Tribune Want Ad offering two English spaniels at $15 and $25, respectively. I sold both dogs. I have used Tribune Want Ads for three years and at no time have they failed to sell dogs for me."

PAUL R. KOESTER
6558 S. Claremont Ave.

Music!

"Ever since this school of music and voice was established in 1931, we have used Tribune Want Ads. We have been able to trace 35% of our business directly to Tribune Want Ads. The Tribune brings the serious, earnest type of students. For that reason Tribune Want Ads provide the most economical advertising we use."

MOISSAYE BOGUSLAWSKI
Boguslawski School of Music

Rooms!

"In the past I have used all Chicago newspapers to advertise my housekeeping suites, but now I use only Tribune Want Ads. The reason is that I get results from Tribune Want Ads. For example, on October 1st two of the five persons who answered my Tribune Want Ad of that day rented suites."

LOUIS GRASSO
712 Buena Ave.

Instruction!

"We have used all Chicago newspapers to get pupils for our school of dramatic art, but we depend on the Tribune to get us the business. For example, we paid $24 for twelve want ads in one Chicago newspaper, running one ad each day for twelve days. We got one inquiry, but no sale. In contrast, one Tribune Want Ad on September 25th brought several inquiries and two students."

EVA FITZGERALD
Eva Fitzgerald Studio
64 E. Lake St.

Office Space!

"On October 1st I placed a want ad in the Tribune to rent a private office. At the same time, I ordered a want ad for October 2nd offering to share my apartment with another business woman. Total replies to both ads were forty-seven. Three days later I had rented the office space, and found someone to share my apartment."

RACHEL HAYES

Instruction!

"I use Tribune Want Ads regularly to get pupils for my school of dancing. Tribune Want Ads pull better than six-to-one as compared with results from other want ads. Tribune Want Ads are the backbone of my business. I get at least from two to three pupils each time my ad appears in the Tribune."

MURRAY BROWNE
Murray Browne School of Dancing
606 S. Michigan Ave.

Rooms!

"I advertised a two-room housekeeping suite for rent in the Tribune Want Ad Section Saturday, September 24th. Forty-seven people answered the ad. I rented the suite advertised and two others besides. I always use the Tribune and I always get results. My building is now 100 per cent rented."

ARTHUR HOFFMAN

Piano!

"When we advertised our piano for sale in the Tribune Want Ad Section on October 2d, more than fifty people called. The first callers came about 8:30 a. m. the day the ad ran, and the last one on the following Friday. One of them came from Park Ridge, and there were several phone calls from other suburbs. We sold the piano the day after the ad ran."

MRS. J. GILBERT
3811 Ainslie St.

Salesmen!

"I am distributing a new bandaging material, and need salesmen who have better-than-average selling ability. Although I have used two other Chicago newspapers, Tribune Want Ads have brought in about 90% of the men now selling my product. My want ad the Tribune on October 2nd pulled more than 200 inquiries."

MATT J. KENNEDY
25 E. Jackson Blvd.

Lost & Found!

"Our pet bull dog had been missing for more than two weeks before we placed a want ad in the Tribune. The ad ran October 12th. That morning our dog was returned."

CLYDE KELLEY
3941 Lawrence Ave.

Real Estate!

"During the eighteen years we have been in business, we have used the Tribune Want Ads regularly. The major portion of our business can be attributed to our Tribune advertising. We use Tribune Want Ads more frequently than we use want ads in any other Chicago newspaper, and they always pay for themselves. Since June of this year, business generally, and results from Tribune Want Ads, have been increasing steadily."

JOHN J. READY

Saleswomen!

"In my business I make it a point to hire only saleswomen who have certain social connections as well as selling ability. Want Ads in the Tribune supply me with most of my saleswomen. A recent want ad brought twenty-one inquiries. Each applicant was qualified for the position offered. What more could you ask?"

Are Movies Interesting?
Mae Tinee Tells You Why

High Praise Given 'Smilin' Through' Film

Norma Shearer Charming in Lovely Movie.

"SMILIN' THROUGH."
Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.
Directed by Sidney Franklin.
Presented at McVicker's theater.
THE CAST:
Kathleen ..... Norma Shearer
Kenneth Wayne ..... Fredric March
John Carteret ..... Leslie Howard
Dr. Owen ..... O. P. Heggie
Willie Ainley ..... Ralph Forbes
Mrs. Crouch ..... Beryl Mercer
Gardener ..... David Torrence
Ellen ..... Margaret Seddon
Orderly ..... Forrester Harvey

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Did you love "Smilin' Through" when Jane Cowl played it on the stage? As a "silent" featuring lovely Norma Talmadge did it make that heart of yours behave in strangely, sweetly unaccountable fashion? Were you a responsive witness of the Vincents Youmans operetta revival called "Through the Years"? Then, dear readers, never rest until you've seen Norma Shearer smilin' through the charming talking version of this beloved war time play.

The story is familiar to most of you. There was, you'll remember, a tragedy in the life of Sir John Carteret. On her wedding day his bride had met death at the hands of his frenzied rival.

Through the years Sir John lives with memories—and apparitions of his Moonyeen. His solace is her deceased sister's lovely daughter, Kathleen, who has been his ward since her tiny girlhood.

Kathleen falls in love with a young soldier, son of the murderer of Moonyeen. Old Carteret bitterly refuses consent to the marriage and tells the girl his house will be no longer open to her if she goes through with her intention of wedding Kenneth Wayne. Wayne, realizing that he may never return from the front, refuses to let her make the sacrifice.

He returns injured and now he is determined not to marry Kathleen and be a weight around her neck. . . .

Comes the phantom Moonyeen, whispering from the shadows to Sir John. His hate, his intolerance, she tells him, unless put aside, will keep her from ever appearing to him again and separate her from him in the hereafter.

The finale is a touching and beautiful one. Much of its charm is due to the wizardry of the camera. The stage, as compared to the screen, is certainly pitifully inadequate for presenting plays of this kind.

Miss Shearer is fragile and exquisite as a nineteenth century belle and equally fascinating to behold as a modern tweedy English girl. Her work, as a whole, is sincere and artistic, though in some scenes with her lover, Mr. March, she appears shallow and unconvincing.

Leslie Howard, as the grave, sad, old patrician, is magnificent. He never acts—just IS. Fredric March, clever, dependable, handsome, was a splendid choice for Wayne. O. P. Heggie gives a clean cut, outstanding performance as Dr. Owen, Carteret's crony, and that small Sue Collins is a lamb as the child Kathleen.

One of the most ingratiating scenes of the entire performance is her conversation with Sir John, which serves as a preliminary to her installation in his life.

Supporting rôles are mighty well handled. Direction was sympathetic and intelligent, and costumes, scenery, and staging are all the heart could desire.

Is the picture too long? I thought so—but you may not. However that may be, "Smilin' Through" is a cinema of real merit and great emotional appeal.

"SIX HOURS TO LIVE."
Produced by Fox.
Directed by William Dieterle.
Presented at the Oriental theater.
THE CAST:
Paul Onslow ..... Warner Baxter
Valerie von Sturm ..... Miriam Jordan
Karl Kraus ..... John Boles
Prof. Otto Bauer ..... George Marion
The Widow ..... Beryl Mercer
The Woman ..... Irene Ware
Baron von Sturm ..... Halliwell Hobbes
Police Commissioner ..... Edwin Maxwell
Kellner ..... John Davidson
Blucher ..... Dewey Robinson

There'll be no more murders if anybody ever really perfects the sort of machine that Warner Baxter so completely demolishes in "Six Hours to Live"! BECAUSE—who'll care to kill when the police have power to bring the killee back to life that he may name his slayer?

Is your interest intrigued? Thought it would be. Now the thing to do is to march over to the Oriental and see "Six Hours to Live." For here is a movie that is different and exciting, if not particularly believable. Though at that—why not? After the radio it seems to me we should be prepared to believe anything.

Warner Baxter's contribution to this drama is the characterization of an intense young ambassador to an international conference. The meeting is for the purpose of ratifying a treaty of which our hero is the lone opposer

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932, By King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

CLASS DAY.

"Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress,' with a marker between pages eleven and twelve, lay in Meridith Wacker's lap when he was found dead by his fireside. On a table to his right stood an empty glass and a decanter of whisky. He had been poisoned.

"Wacker was a hard, ruthless character who had attained success by disregarding most of the rules of the game—and he had many enemies. His one redeeming trait was his love for his two grown sons and his wife.

"His boys, who frequently joined him in a nightcap, had found him. Suicide was plainly indicated because no one was known to have been with him. However, my friend, Hans Schmidt, the brilliant criminal investigator, quickly convinced the police it was murder as was later proven.

"I want you to see how simple and direct his reasoning was," continued the professor to his class.

"If Wacker had committed suicide he would have poisoned ONLY the one glass found on the table—never would be have run the risk of killing his family by putting poison in the decanter. However, a murderer would naturally have poisoned the source, not knowing, of course, from which glass he might drink.

"You fellows fell down badly last week, so I must again repeat that upon observation of the commonplace and attention to detail rests the very fundamentals of crime detection.

"Despite the fact that Schmidt's reasoning was perfectly correct, there is something wrong with this narrative. Quickly now, what is it?"

(See solution on page 27.)

Perhaps you have a problem you would like the professor to submit to his class. If so, send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to see what his students make of it.

and for the passage of which a unanimous vote is necessary. As it will spell disaster to his country, Onslow is adamant in his determination to vote "NO."

To get rid of this troublesome diplomat before the final vote is cast becomes the life work of interested parties.

Splendid acting and direction bring out effectively all the story's highlights. The piece is well mounted and has plenty of suspense.

Item: I think you will be much taken with Miriam Jordan, a most attractive new English leading woman. Blonde.

Ethel Dixon One of Hits in 'Stepping High'

New Service Club Revue Is Great Success.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ETHEL FRANCES DIXON would have run away with "Stepping High," the Service club's revue last night at the Goodman theater, if the show hadn't moved so fast and with such snap that there wasn't a chance of anything stopping the show, for she captivated the audience every time she appeared, and after the first time she was applauded when she entered as well as when she made her exits.

It wasn't so much her voice, or her dancing, or her wide, dimpled smile, that won every one, it was just that she has that indescribable something called charm, and even though she is just a debutante—which means that she is about 17 or 18—she has the personality and the stage presence "to put herself over in a big way."

It seems like old times to be writing about a Dixon in connection with the Service club, for there always has been a member of that large family on the board of the club, and several Dixons, including Edna [now Mrs. Paul Walker], who was noted as a comedienne, have taken part in other revues. The family was represented too in that Sunday school class of 1890 which was the nucleus of the Service club—what a far cry from that to the revue last night!

Miss Dixon, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Dixon, wasn't the whole show by a long way, in spite of the fact that she probably would have been the most interesting to a Broadway scout if there had been one in the theater.

There was lovely, slim Mrs. Scott J. Dow Jr. [Louise Badgerow], who sang the first number, "Hello, Everybody," and several others; Helen Gillette, a debutante of last season, and Mary Cook, just back from several years in Munich, whose ballet dancing made all the others in the show wish they too had specialized in toe dancing; Edna Doering, Julia Kramer, and Eleanor Page, three of this season's "debs" who crooned in the most approved manner and danced awfully well in the chorus; pretty Ruth Seanor, who made a "hit" singing to the accompaniment of Floyd Eldridge's accordion music; Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. [Harriet Lowden], whose two piano number with Louis E. Tilden was one of the highlights of the really excellent performance; Katherine Drake, who always scores a success as a comedienne; graceful Marion McKinley, who reminded one of a slim young birch in her white costume as the "Broadway Indian"; Mrs. Paul Dodge, Waldemar Schroeder, Ann Robinson, Katherine Nelson, Ellen Truax, and Mrs. Robert M. Hoffman Jr. [Emily Pope], a star of previous revues.

And even that list doesn't include all who did specialties for a deadline made it necessary for this appreciative member of the audience to miss part of the show. So I cannot tell you how screamingly funny "Touring Back in 1901" was, but from advance descriptions I should say it was one of the most amusing scenes of the

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Whatever the season, if the need is imperative and the budget permits, you can reroof your home. All things considered, however, late fall is the best time to do it. If conditions and types of roof permit, the new roof may be laid directly over the old, adding to the roof warmth of your home. Many types of shingles, tile, asbestos, wood, and so on are manufactured with an already weathered appearance. Fewer casualties to shrubs, and lawn, and flowers from workmen's feet, scaffolding erection, and falling of old shingles to ground.

Warm Clothes Get Attention in the Shops

Even Young Buyers Show Lively Interest.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With considerably more enthusiasm than is usually spent on warm things by young shoppers, the various collections of fuzzy angoras and camel's-hair sports clothes are being besieged by the hitherto uninterested young crowd. Smart frocks and smarter ensembles seldom stay long in the shops . . . they are snatched and put into circulation by appreciative spenders of slender budgets because they are not only modestly tagged as to price but because they are quite the nicest things to wear now.

There must be thousands of shorn rabbits hopping about the best cabbage patches this fall, judging by all the generous supplies of rabbit hair clothes, some with short fuzz, others with longer fuzz and still other very new arrivals that almost fuzz themselves into fringe.

Perfectly gorgeous colors are used for the dresses and flippant little velvet Ascot scarfs tie the things high and handsomely around your Adam's apple. One blueberry blue dress borrows the red of a raspberry for the velvet scarf; another, cabbage red fuzzy wool, uses an old gold velvet neck contrast. All these soft, cuddly clothes look mighty sleazy and shapeless when you inspect them on the hanger, but they cling comfortably and swankily from the anatomy.

The fuzzy fabric makers are doing some very smooth and snappy things with thin wools in hand woven patterns. One rather hectic green and beige affair is particularly effective under a swagger tweed top coat. Tricky tucked necklines, with all the tucks radiating out from the neck, burst into glory all over the upper chest. Necklines are designed to swaddle a la sore throat effect, and the lavish distribution of bows is something else to notice. Sleeves are well controlled as to puffs and extreme volume, but there doesn't seem to be any limit to cuffs and wrist bows to anchor them while you shrug your shoulders into a coat.

Transparent wools with a fascinating corduroy weave are intriguing. The new two-piece affairs are knockouts with a skillfully designed one-piece dress made with all kinds of diagonal seams, triagular sections and a slender surplice style bodice top. The skirt is pleated and tailored with faultless precision, but the separate short, swanky jacket coat is what is creating all the excitement. It also is tailored and fits like a section of your own skin. The full neck scarf is unusually long and the tie-ups possible with the flattering scarf collar are almost too numerous to describe. Oxford gray and a lovely shade of warm brown are two of the best colors to shop for.

Something else to claim your shekels are the brand new ensembles of flat, wide waled corduroy, which is really a velveteen impressed with the wales of corduroy. A clever one-piece dress that is sleeveless, with a suggestion of small shoulder caps, has an oval neckline with a shallow white piqué collar.

A swagger coat that swings nonchalantly about the region of your knee caps is worn over the frock. The coat has wide, loose sleeves, a tiny stand-up collar, and some pockets.

LOCAL GERMANS REAFFIRM STAND ON POLISH ZONE

Sorrowed by Attitude of Their Neighbors.

More than 100 representatives of 600 German-American societies and organizations met at the Atlantic hotel last night and passed a resolution reaffirming their stand on the status of the Polish corridor and "deploring and resenting" the language used in a recent resolution passed by three Polish-American groups protesting against their stand. The meeting last night was held under the auspices of the German Day association, with Capt. George H. Weideling presiding.

The German Day resolution, which led to the Polish reply, was passed Sept. 25. Following the passing of the Polish resolution of protest officials of the German association declared that the Polish groups had been unfair in their criticism.

Express Their Regret.

Last night's resolution follows in part:

"While we desire to express our regret that our countrymen of Polish origin had construed the resolution herein referred to as an attack upon the integrity of the Polish nation which was under no circumstances the intention of the said resolution, we must, however, maintain that we sincerely believe that the creation of the so-called Polish corridor was not only an injustice to the great German nation, but is a continuous cause of friction between the two great nations and a menace to European peace.

"As American citizens interested in the peaceful development of our country, we sincerely believe that an upheaval in Europe would be of great detriment to this country, and that our motives in passing the criticized resolution were purely American and patriotic, and not intended either to cause strife among American citizens of various nationalities, nor for the purpose of entangling America in foreign disputes.

Part of Treaty.

"The Polish corridor being and having been a part of the Versailles treaty signed and approved by Woodrow Wilson, we feel justified in upholding statements made by Senator Borah and Senator Shipstead and many other statesmen of the great American parties in their justified opinion on the infamy of the Versailles treaty.

"We sincerely deplore and greatly resent the language used in the resolutions passed by our fellow citizens of Polish extraction and particularly resent the expression of "dishonest incident."

The resolution stated further that the delegates approved the stand taken by Julius Klein, chairman of the resolutions committee and vice president of the German day celebration. It added that while he had accepted full responsibility for the original resolution, the resolution was passed unanimously by all delegates and participants of German day. The resolution declared also that such and similar resolutions have been passed for the last seven years at the German day celebrations and that the German-American groups would continue to pass such resolutions until justice is done.

HAROLD TEEN—HEROES AND HOPES

MRS. M'LEAN FIGHTS LAWYER'S SUIT; OWES ONLY $10,000, SHE SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, estranged wife of Edward Beale McLean, former publisher of the Washington Post, contended in the District of Columbia Supreme court today that she owes her attorney, Albert W. Fox, but $10,000 instead of the $33,000 for which he is suing her.

Mr. Fox recently brought action against Mrs. McLean on the ground that he has not yet been paid for acting as her counsel in virtually all of the recent legal entanglements which brought her wide notoriety.

Mr. Fox was counsel for Mrs. McLean in several actions to prevent her husband from obtaining a foreign divorce. As her attorney, he also instituted the proceedings which resulted in McLean's resignation from the Post. Likewise, Mr. Fox served as Mrs. McLean's representative in the negotiations with Gaston B. Means for the recovery of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Admits She's Friend of Former Mayor.

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Miss Betty Compton—"If you must be truthful I am a dancer, but if you like to flatter me call me actress"—herself tore away today whatever mystery surrounded her name in the Seabury inquiry, and talked frankly of her friendship for James J. Walker and of oysters.

It was, it appears, her fondness for oysters that brought her back to New York after eighteen months in France and Canada.

Admits She Got Check.

Facing interviewer for the first time since the autumn of 1930, Miss Compton, as quoted by the World-Telegram, was asked about a $7,000 check which figured in the Walker removal hearings before Gov. Roosevelt as having passed between the mayor and "an unnamed person."

"Yes, I received it," she answered promptly. "Not from him [the mayor] directly, but through Sailing, Baruch & Co. Incidentally, one of the wisest things Mr. Walker did at the hearing, in my opinion, was to tear the veil from my identity. I didn't want to be Madame X and there was no reason for me to be. The money was in payment of a bet. We are very good friends and that is all."

Denies Financial Plight.

Miss Compton said she had not seen the former mayor since she married Edward Duryea Dowling, a motion picture director, nearly two years ago. She divorced Dowling within a month and sailed for Europe.

She lived quietly, she said, in a little house near Cannes, with "a gardener, a cook, a chauffeur and a maid, for $150 a month."

She denied threats caused her to leave America—"I never received a threat or a hint. Everything I did was of my own volition."

She denied she ever had received a letter of credit from Mr. Walker or that she was in financial troubles.

WIDOW TOO ILL TO ATTEND RITES FOR PROF. FREUND

The body of Ernst Freund, professor of law at the University of Chicago, who died Thursday of heart disease in the Billings Memorial hospital, was cremated yesterday. Because of the serious illness of his widow there was no funeral ceremony. Dr. Freund, who was 68 years old, became ill Wednesday afternoon. He was taken to the Billings hospital and placed in a room near that of his wife, who was operated upon for an eye ailment 12 days ago. Mrs. Freund has been told of her husband's death, physicians said, and took the news bravely. Physicians feared that she would suffer a relapse if she attended funeral services.

PROPOSES CREDIT PLAN FOR 4,000 ON COUNTY STAFF

Scrip for Half of Back Pay Is Advocated.

A proposal to arrange credit for 4,000 county employes to the extent of one-half of their unpaid salaries so that they may be assured coal, food, and other necessities through the winter months was advanced yesterday by County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly. State street stores and merchants throughout the city have agreed to extend credit under the plan if it is found legal, he said.

PETER KELLY.

Mr. Kelly proposes that each employé be permitted to draw credit slips, in $5 and $10 denominations, up to 50 per cent of the back salary due him. These would be charged against his salary account by the county treasurer, and would be offered to the employé's creditors at par. The creditor would keep them and have them redeemed at the treasurer's office when funds for the pay roll are arranged.

Plan Before Board Monday.

The plan will be submitted to the county board finance committee on Monday, Mr. Kelly said. Michael J. O'Connor, deputy county controller, said that the plan might work out, but expressed apprehension as to some of its features. It would be necessary to take extreme precaution against counterfeiting of the credit slips, he pointed out. He also said that the plan might create confusion and misunderstanding on the part of merchants and others who have already granted county employés credit. County employés, whose last pay day was for the last half of May, have nearly $4,000,000 due them.

Mr. O'Connor was unsuccessful yesterday in a mission to downtown banks on which he sought funds with which to pay judges and clerks at the November election. He offered either to sell county tax warrants or to post them as collateral for loans, but found no takers, he reported.

City Employés Get Pay.

City employés who are paid out of the water and vehicle tax funds received a half month's pay yesterday—for the last half of July. The pay roll for 3,500 employés totaled $296,000.

City officials pointed out that the vehicle tax and water funds are not dependent upon general tax collections for revenue, but upon the city wheel tax and water rents which have been paid up to date. It was felt that employés in these departments had been done an injustice when cash was taken out of the funds to pay school teachers, the officials explained, and the pay day yesterday was regarded as a partial restitution to the city employés.

Mayor Cermak returned to the city hall yesterday after a flying trip to New York, partly for political purposes and partly to present the latest picture of Chicago's financial situation to New York banks and insurance companies. He told them, he said, that as a result of the Bistor decision the city expects substantial increases in payment of delinquent taxes, and that it has already made great progress in retiring outstanding tax warrants.

"I told them I hoped they would join with Chicago banks in financing the city," said Mayor Cermak, "and I got a favorable expression from them, and think they are willing to coöperate."

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

PLOT TO MURDER REGENT BARED BY BUDAPEST POLICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 21.—A plot to assassinate the Hungarian regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, was discovered by police today following the arrest of Geza Zitholots, architect, and three other members of the so-called intellectual class.

Though police refuse to give out a statement, it was learned that incriminating material found in the homes of the arrested men in the fashionable residential district was sufficient to convince police that they are anarchists.

Though no connection with Moscow was found, police are trailing a clew to Hungarian communists who have resumed their activities following the revocation of martial law a week ago by Premier Julius Goemboes. Chemicals discovered in the homes of the arrested men indicated a plan to bomb Horthy's palace, the police said.

At an inquest held yesterday at 1253 North Clark street a coroner's jury of professional and business men returned an open verdict. They reported they could not determine whether Mr. Willetts fell by "his own intent or by accident." Mrs. Elizabeth Willetts, the widow, was reported prostrated at her home and unable to attend the inquest.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer named Tilbury as bailiff and he and his wife, an ill-bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister Rachel are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The coroner's inquest is held. Murder by person or persons unknown is the verdict. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune on condition they search for the Holy Grail in the ruins of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish communicated to her from beyond the grave. Miss Braselton denounces Natasha. The Tilburys have an alibi. Natasha attempts to leave England and is arrested. Neil sees a lawyer in Natasha's behalf.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

A JOINT SUSPECT.

Neil gave a brief résumé of the facts in his possession, at the end laying on the desk a typed sheet containing the sum total of his own investigations into Natasha's movements on the day of the crime.

"You see, I confirmed part of her statement—unfortunately not all."

"But am I to understand," said the solicitor, running his eye over the items, "that even at so early a stage you anticipated trouble?"

"Not at all. I merely wanted to substantiate certain details in order—well, to be on the safe side. I did, of course, know about the pearl necklace," he continued awkwardly, "and felt just a little nervous in consequence. As this will show you, I struck two snags—first the fact of Miss Bundy's having followed her niece from place to place, and second the long interval from six o'clock to midnight during which I could not find out where Miss Andreyev was. She declares she was driving about town, at least the greater part of the time."

"If true, it's most unfortunate," murmured the other. "But this matter of dinner—you say you could not find the waitress who served her?"

"No. There are two possibilities—a girl called Douglas, whom I saw without favorable result, and another—Pitcher, her name is—whom I've not yet got hold of."

"We must try to reach her as quickly as possible—but, what's this?" He placed his finger on the last line of the sheet. "A man named Addison, with whom Miss Andreyev spent the week-end at a hotel! That, I take it, is the same person she met and talked with on Wednesday last, the man who passed through Bishop's Paulton in a motor car at night?"

"H'm, a Persian visa? Worse and worse. Dated when? March 21st!"

"That I can't say. My private belief is that he is the same." Neil was now thoroughly ill at ease. "I have reason to think he lives in Bath, and that she had been helping him financially—though I don't like to stress a point on which I'm not positive."

"Too bad—too bad!" muttered Grew. "Almost as regrettable as the young woman's attempt to fly the country. . . . Yes, the prosecution will hit on this man at once as an instigator or accomplice. Coupled with the pearl incident it looks serious. . . . H'm—a Persian visa? Worse and worse. Dated—when? 21st March! Why, good heavens, that's the day after the murder!"

A chill penetrated Neil as he caught the undercurrent in the solicitor's voice. Until this moment he had not fully grasped how black the case against Natasha could be made to appear.

"Suppose we find this man Addison also secured a visa for Persia?" went on the other dryly. "If so, we shall have our work cut out for us in earnest. The point is, who is Addison? Where has he got to, and why must he be protected? Those are questions we must be able to answer right away. Of course, the case may not come into court, but all the same you were wise to begin preparations. I am only surprised that up till now the police have not . . . Hold on! What have we here?"

He had broken off as a clerk entered to lay before him a copy of the Evening Standard. He picked it up, glanced at the front page, and gave an exclamation of triumph.

"Ah! what did I tell you? Look at this."

In glaring print Neil saw the announcement:

"SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN IN BUNDY CASE," beneath which ran the explanatory line: "Police Engaged in Hunt for Maurice Addison."

In breathless silence he devoured the three inches of small print.

"Antonio Bianchini, proprietor of a small hotel in Greek street, Soho, states that Addison, with whom Natasha Andreyev passed the week-end from 20th March to 23d March, is well known to him, having spent the month of January at his establishment. On the recent occasion he arrived, not in company with the accused, but a full hour later, at one in the morning. Addison was then on the verge of collapse from drink.

"According to Bianchini, Miss Andreyev was expecting Addison, whom she stated to be her husband, but so far no record of the couple's marriage has come to light. The two occupied a double room on the first floor, and Addison for two days was in a condition grave enough to cause considerable alarm, though no doctor was called. On Monday he was sufficiently recovered to take his departure. He and Miss Andreyev drove away in the car belonging to the murdered woman, but did not mention their destination.

"No trace of Addison is forthcoming, and it is thought he may have quitted the country. He is described as good looking, of well bred appearance and manner. Age, about twenty-seven; height, nearly six feet; hair and eyes brown but not dark, complexion clear, clean-shaven, nose straight, teeth good. When last seen he was dressed in a suit of brownish homespun, a dark red tie with a yellow pin-stripe, a Harris tweed overcoat, raglan shape, and a bowler hat. He carried a suitcase marked with his initials—'M. B. A.'"

The solicitor drew in his breath between his teeth. "Not much to show who he is or where he's stowed himself. But, of course, the search has only begun. The man must be known to some one besides this hotelkeeper."

"I can suggest a probable source of information," said Neil, rousing himself from the stupor into which he had momentarily fallen. "Six or seven weeks ago I bought a second-hand two-seater in Bath. I have some reason for believing it was formerly Addison's property. Here is the number of the car"—he wrote it down on a leaf torn from his note book.

"Let me have the engine number as well. The license and so on may have been changed. As things stand, we must get all the facts obtainable about this young man, who quite likely represents the crux of the affair. I myself will go to Bristol tomorrow to try my persuasions on the prisoner. If you care to meet me there, we can talk over the result."

That evening Neil dined at the Corner house, where he sought out the girl called Dolly who had promised to apprise him of the missing waitress' whereabouts. She was full of apologies. No, she had not forgotten, but the truth was Gwen Pilcher had gone on a holiday to Margate, leaving no address. Her former landlady knew nothing about her, and though she could doubtless be traced by means of her employment card, that might take time.

He spent the night in town, and early next morning sent out for the papers. His first glance brought a violent shock. Headed by the words, "JOINT SUSPECT IN BUNDY CASE," the ensuing paragraphs met his eye:

"An official in the passport bureau at Dunkirk volunteers information concerning Michael Boris Andreyev, who crossed by the night boat on 27th March, en route for Persia. The surname struck him at the time because it tallied with that of the young woman mentioned as Miss Caroline Bundy's companion. Furthermore, the man states that Andreyev's appearance strongly suggests the Maurice Addison for whom the police are searching. The initials of the two names, it will be noted, are identical. Natasha Andreyev is said to have a brother called Michael, supposedly resident in Paris."

Michael! Good God! why had he not guessed this sooner? Was it Michael she was shielding? The accompanying item left no doubt on the subject:

"Our Paris correspondent states that a warrant has recently been issued for the arrest of Michael Boris Andreyev, who some two months ago disappeared from the city having taken funds from the stockbrokers' firm with which he was associated. As it now appears that on 21st March the Persian consulate in London granted a visa for Andreyev as well as for the young woman under arrest, the aggregate of facts is highly significant. It is understood that extradition papers are being prepared for the purpose of recalling Andreyev to England."

All Neil's ideas underwent a swift readjustment. It was for her own flesh and blood she was sacrificing herself. Poor child! What a harvest she had reaped, through no fault save the desire to help her brother!

But—that brother was a criminal, fleeing from justice!

School Art Society Tea.

Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, in a lovely flaming red costume, was hostess yesterday at a tea given for the benefit of the Chicago Public School Art society at the Chester Johnson galleries in the Fine Arts building.

The occasion was the fall opening of an exhibition of old and modern paintings, and so many attended the show that I'm sure the Chicago schools will have quite a few new pictures as a result.

African daisies decorated the tea table and chrysanthemums in all the autumn colors added to the festive appearance of the galleries. Some of those who were at the party were Mr. Brewster, Lord and Lady Hastings, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins, Mrs. Arthur A. Daytime Modesty Marks the Newest Evening Frocks

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The covering up that began this spring in Paris is now extended and increased for evenings. There are some evening dresses with only straps and front bodice above the waistline, but the newest evening frocks have a lot more than that. The informal evening dress is the most covered up of all, and may have long sleeves, as well as a daytime neckline. It is made to look evening-like because of its material and the length of its skirt.

Lyolene is showing informal evening dresses with long sleeves, high neckline, velvet bodices, and with skirts of stiff silk. These frocks are having a success in Paris. One of them is shown in the sketch today. It has a quaint looking bodice of wine-red velvet, which is fitted and buttons down the center back. This bodice is crushed into becoming folds at the waistline and has dropped-shoulder line, from which point the leg o' mutton sleeves are begun with cartridge plaits.

The skirt is made of dove gray silk moire, which is cut in two gores. The back gore is fuller than the one in front and is gathered at the waistline.

Ions Follow Vitamines in Health Regime

They're Needed for Vigor, Beauty.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We have no more got the A, B, C's of vitamines down to where we take them in our orange juice, milk and vegetables without flinching than we're asked to learn about IONS. All for the good of our bodies, if not for the salvation of our souls! Yes, we must learn about IONS! They have been a little slower than vitamines about finding our address, these ions, but we are now told they're just as important. So, maybe we'd better extend them a welcoming hand.

Don't ask me what ions are! I know they're not atoms. They're not baseballs. They're not tennis rackets. They're not your wife's relations. They're just ions! Come with recent scientific persuasion, it seems, to supply ionic balance in the body.

Anyway, I'm telling you about them! Not much, to be sure! But I've only just learned there were such things as ions. Also [and my reason for introducing them here], that once we get familiar with them and let them into our system we're due to be infinitely sprightlier, infinitely more charming and infinitely more lovely representatives of the sex we're always supposed to interpret in terms of loveliness.

It seems that what's wrong with a number of us who'd like to be younger and snappier and more generally charming is that we have suffered a loss of ionic balance in our bodies. This we have to make up, somehow, before we can hope to knock the Garbos off their well known thrones. With ions, I gather!

What puts us out of balance, among other things, is stomach trouble, liver distress and constipation. These raise a terrific rumpus with our looks, our health and our energy. We get acid stomach, indigestion, gas, biliousness and constipation. And we don't need ion to tell us that when the body becomes flooded with poisons from such complaints we aren't going to look our handsomest. Complexions are muggy, hair lank and drab, eyes dull. Figures show anything but the buoyancy of youth. They are overweighted, perhaps, as constipation victims so often are.

Ionic balance, then, means the basis of nutrition and elimination restored and such internal regulation established as to guarantee external vigor, charm and beauty.

Should Mother Smoke Before the Children?

Mrs. Bevans Asks Your Opinions.

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It's odd, isn't it, that of all the subjects my correspondence touches on, here is one I have never been asked to advise about before? Because I am sure it will interest many of our conscientious mothers who have asked themselves the same question, I am going to print it today, with this suggestion—that if you have something to say on the subject you write it to me, being willing to have your letter appear in this column if it seems to me to have enough general appeal. Either opinion or experience or both may color your reply.

Here is the letter:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I wonder if you can give me some advice. I am 22, the mother of a beautiful little girl of 3. I am trying to bring her up to be clean, mentally and physically, honest, and, above all, when she is old enough to go out with young folks I want her to be respectable.

"Here is my problem: All my girl friends, single and married, smoke! You know, Mrs. Bevans, practically all women do—even mothers. I want to smoke, too! Should I, or shouldn't I? Would I be giving my little girl the wrong 'slant on life' if I did? Personally, the mothers and girls I know are decent and I cannot see what smoking has to do with the morals of one.

"A friend of mine told me not to let my girl see me smoke, but she sees others smoking in restaurants. But the other day I smoked a cigaret after dinner and my daughter said, 'Mother, are you smoking daddy's cigarets?' Then, later on when I smoked another she said, 'Are you smoking again?' Now, just how do you suppose I felt?

"A month ago I took my little girl to see a very wealthy friend, a woman of 33. She was smoking and when she found I didn't smoke she was amazed. She said, 'You are so modern, I cannot imagine you not smoking!'

"One friend and a mother smokes and I asked her what explanation she gave her 5 year old son, and she replied that she has smoked for seven years and he is so accustomed to it that he doesn't remark about it. Now, what shall I do? If I do smoke, what shall I tell my little girl when she comments on it? Or do you think my smoking will affect her morals?"

Charles B. Goodspeed, manufacturer and member of many civic organizations, has been elected a trustee of the University of Chicago, it was announced yesterday by Harold H. Swift, president of the board. Mr. Goodspeed is an alumnus of Cornell university, class of 1908.

Girl Keeps Gold, Loses Fiance, 'n' Feels Remorseful

BY DORIS BLAKE.

They're not married yet. Only engaged. Or, were engaged up until a week or so ago. The break came with the fiancé's insistence that the girl turn over her life savings to him as, he says, "he will do the investing for the family." The girl's savings amount to $8,000, the major part of it already invested in a wise investment.

It appears the man's business is in need of funds to carry on. In good times, he argues, it was a paying business and again will be such a paying business as to support the young woman properly.

The young woman has known the man less than six months, but she fell hard for his culture, his perfect manners and his general charm, and accepted his ring when proffered early in the acquaintanceship. Incidentally, at this first meeting six months ago, the man had just come to her city from another part of the country. The friend who introduced them would not vouch for the man from the west. But the girl took him at face value until he began arguing for control of her savings.

"Though I felt I could trust him implicitly," she now argues, "I just could not turn over my life savings to him. I did not want to put my money into business in the west I knew nothing about. I broke the engagement, returned the ring and now feel heartbroken—for I still love the man."

Now, wouldn't a woman just react like "it to a lucky escape? Nurse a heartache when a good celebration ought to be in order? The chances are ten to one that had the money been turned over the girl now would be without her money, her marriage and her man. And her heart would have a real, bonafide reason for an ache.

But the tale justifies a warning to young women to hold tightly to those saving funds of theirs. A lot of businesses are in need of financial bolstering these days. Unless you have thrown your lot in with the man's in marriage, don't feel impelled to play the heavy backer rôle. Be mighty chary of the gentleman who hints or asks your aid, unless you're willing to kiss both man and money good-bye.

GASOLINE ALLEY—SATISFACTORY ALL AROUND
IT'S TERRIBLE, WALT, THAT SKEEZIX GOT MIXED UP IN THIS SHOOTING SCRAPE. I WANT YOU TO TELL HIM HE MUST GIVE UP THE GANG HE TRAVELS WITH.
IT WASN'T THE GANG, PHYLLIS. THEY'RE JUST A BUNCH OF BOYS FULL OF ENERGY. YOU WOULDN'T WANT HIM TO SIT AROUND AND BE A SISSY.
NO, BUT THEY'LL GET HIM INTO MORE TROUBLE. AND I WANT THEM TO MOVE THAT RANGER HOUSE AWAY FROM HERE OR TEAR IT DOWN.
WHY, PHYLLIS, THAT ISN'T DOING ANY HARM. THEY'VE HAD THEIR LESSON. THEY'LL SETTLE DOWN AND BE MORE DOCILE THAN EVER.
SKEEZIX, I WANT YOU TO GIVE UP THE CROWD OF BOYS YOU RUN AROUND WITH. AND I WANT YOU TO MOVE THAT RANGER HOUSE A LONG WAYS AWAY.
SURE, UNCLE WALT. I JUST AS SOON GIVE UP EVERYBODY BUT SPUD AN' SHORTY AN' SCRAM AN' WHIMPY AN' DOOTCH. I'M OFF OF PUNK HOOKER ALREADY.

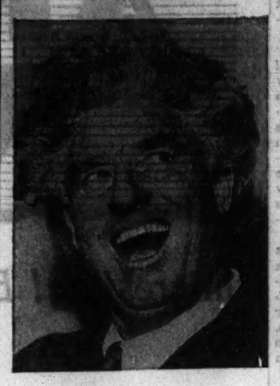
Concert



GIOVANNI MARTINELLI.

Two major musical offerings at popular prices will be given at the Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street, tonight and tomorrow. At 8:15 o'clock tonight the Stadium Grand Opera company will present "Carmen," with Ina Bourskaya in the title rôle. At 3 tomorrow Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan Opera tenor, well known to Ravinia audiences, will appear in concert with a symphony orchestra, assisted also by Sonia Sharnova, contralto. The presentation of "Carmen" tonight will be conducted by Jacques Samossoud.

evening. Six young couples took part in it—the Horton Conrads, the Robert Hoffmans, the Robert Whites, the Charles E. Browns, the Robert McKennas, and the Henry Sinceres.

The costumes were lovely and so were the chorus "gals," although I did hear one rather elderly gentleman say, "Some must have been selected because of family rather than underpinnings." In the chorus were Barbara Eldridge, Eleanor Litsinger, Rosemary Lucas, Katherine Evans, Carol Bloomingston, Marietta Gillette, Susan Morris, Susan Badgerow, Margaret Wiley, Helen Marie Castle, Marion McKinley, Eleanor Page, Virginia Cross, Betty Brawley, Jean Peyton Erickson, Imogene Bucklin, Betty Knode Conrad, Margaret Sincere, Janet Bard, Martha Lee, Betty Whatley, Marion Gordon, Nancy Traylor, Honore White, Eleanor McNally, Virginia McCurdy, Jean McVoy, Myra Lee Benoist, Ann Robinson, Ruth Seanor, Margaret Goehst, Barbara Graf, and Grace Fitzmorris, most of them debutantes of the season.

The men in the ensemble and several of the leads were from the Blackfriars of the University of Chicago.

Mrs. John Dern, first vice-president and acting president during the illness of Mrs. Stanley Zaring [Marion Dixon], a cousin of Ethel's, announced at the end of the first act that all the expenses had been cleared by a revenue other than the sale of tickets so that everything taken in last night and tonight would go to the charities to which the club contributes.

The show will be repeated tonight, after which the stars from "Stepping High" will attend a cabaret ball the club is giving in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Stars of stage attractions current in town, too, will be present at the ball.

To attempt to list those in the audience would be to write the names of all the parents of those in the cast and older members of the club. Those who weren't there last night will be there tonight and it is perfectly safe to predict that there won't be an empty seat in the theater tonight, nor was there one last night.

And judging by the show I'd say it was too bad the club didn't go through with its first intention of staging this year's revue in a much larger theater, for I thing they could have filled it.

Film Industry in Search for Silent Camera

Device Would Save Millions Every Year.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 21. — Movie studios from the company funds, individual producers from their private funds, and the Motion Picture academy and the Hays Producers association are all engaged in helping to finance research efforts to invent a movie camera which will operate silently. The invention and use of a completely noiseless camera would save the industry millions annually.

Several inventors with promising ideas have been financed during the last three years, and some of them are still being financed. Virgil Miller, head of the camera department of the Paramount studio, is in charge of the quest for the invention, and all the studios are supposed to join forces to prosecute the quest.

Use of a silent camera would reduce electrical and mechanical costs by eliminating cumbersome devices now used to muffle the sound and by making it possible to change the position of the camera for each scene in less than half the time now required. Each camera now has to wear a 385 pound soundproof box.

Carey Grant's haberdashery shop on Wilshire boulevard was robbed last night by thieves who escaped with $2,000 worth of what Carey considers the finest looking cravats and shirts in Los Angeles.

Georges Carpentier got his inside track for the big part in Paramount's "King of the Jungle" because of the impressive screen tests he made. They are now giving him exhaustive voice tests, but think his English will suffice.

The biggest blessed event in Hollywood today interrupted filming of scenes in Paramount's "King of the Jungle." The studio hired an actress named Lotus four months ago to play a part, but when Lotus, who is a hippopotamus, arrived from winter quarters of the Barnes circus she was in no condition to be photographed and her little brother Ludwig had to be called in to substitute for Lotus while the latter went to a maternity ward.

The studio is experiencing many complications with the animals in this film. One of the four tigers attacked Mabel Stark, their trainer, during filming of a scene yesterday and tore Miss Stark's skirt off while it gashed her thigh and her shoulder. The plucky woman subdued the tiger, called off production for an hour or two while she got her wounds dressed, and went back into the tiger inclosure and remade the scene.

Reader Queries Topic of Food Expert Today

Range from Company Roast to Meringues.

BY MARY MEADE.

Another question clinic and another healthy lot of questions are the order of the day. I am answering the following from this week's hundreds of letters as most likely to touch the needs of more than just the women who asked them. Please never hesitate to write us when minus a needed recipe or in doubt about some bother some kitchen operation. If we haven't the answer we'll be more than glad to run it to earth and answer it personally or in this column.

First, from Miss C. L.: "Please tell me what kind of a 'company' roast—lamb or beef, but not chicken—to serve for three persons? Should it be roasted with the cover on or off? How many minutes should be allowed per pound? [I have no heat control.] Should it be roasted briskly after searing or slowly to keep in the juices?"

The most satisfactory small roast is what the butchers call a Delmonico steak—one rib from the forequarter. To prepare it sear it all over in a hot oven [500 degrees F.], then lower the heat to 300 and arrange the meat on a rack in a small roaster, turning the skin side down. Allow to cook uncovered about an hour and twenty minutes, then turn and brown the skin side. No water should be added. The roast should be basted with its own juices every ten minutes to help the heat to penetrate into the interior and keep the cut juicy. Other meat dripping may be used if the meat is not sufficiently fat. Approximately thirty minutes per pound for a well done beef rib roast and about twenty-two minutes per pound for a rare roast will be needed.

Question 2 comes from Mrs. H. V. S., who asks: "What is meant by frosting and filling? Can either one be used as a frosting? Also can ring molds such as noodle, spinach, carrot, and rice be prepared in the morning and placed in the buttered mold and then just before serving be placed in the oven?"

Answer—A frosting is often used also as a filling [between layers of a cake], but a filling cannot always be used as a frosting. That is, frequently a cake is covered and filled with the same cooked or uncooked sugar mixture which we call frosting or icing. At other times it is simply covered with frosting but filled with a fruit conserve, with fresh fruit, with thick custard or with a variety of other mixtures. Usually the recipe which calls itself a filling is of the custard or cream type and is not firm enough to stand up as a cake covering. As for the ring molds, if you mean may they be mixed in the morning and stored in the refrigerator until just time to bake them before dinner, they may. If you mean may they be baked in the morning and merely reheated just before dinner—yes, to that, too. You may find that the second plan does not give you quite as light and fluffy a ring as if it were baked only once, but if it is important to save last minute time it may still be done quite satisfactorily.

Question 3 deals with the bane of many otherwise happy cooks—soggy crusts under their fruit and custard pies. Often this is caused by too soft and juicy a filling. With fruit pies as well as custard pies it is frequently a good plan to bake the lower crust partially before adding the filling and top crust. Brushing the surface of the lower crust with egg whites or melted butter also seems to discourage soaking. One of the chief causes of soaking, however, is from steam held in by poor ventilation through the top crust. Remember to leave plenty of "chimneys" for the steam to come out. Also never allow a pie to stand in a slow oven either before or after the actual baking. This will soak the crust, too. It is also well with juicy fruits to drain off the juice and cook it with cornstarch until thick, then mix in the fruit and pour it into the rolled pie paste while the fruit is still warm.

Next comes a question, also from Mrs. H. V. S.: "Is it all right to save time in making a meringue pie, to bake the shell, fill it, top with meringue and bake an hour before dinner?"

Yes, we frequently do this to save the last minute hurry. Also one seldom wishes to serve a pie boiling hot.

Flattering Neck Ruffle and Scalloped Hipline Distinguish Charming Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is a charming dress of printed silk crêpe. A plain crêpe vest trimmed with buttons gives an interesting contrast. The neck ruffle is a pretty feminine touch, and the skirt is distinctive with its deep scalloped hip treatment. Plain flat or crinkle silk crêpe would be lovely in this model.

The pattern, No. 2789, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅛ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Joe Schenck Takes Record Plane Ride from Mexico City

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Joe Schenck, movie producer and Lily Damita, French actress, arrived together by chartered plane from Mexico City tonight, being piloted by Col. Roscoe Turner in the first successful dawn to dusk flight from the Mexican capital to this city. Their time for the journey, flying time being 11:54, and elapsed time 13:44, establishes a record for the trip, which several other aviators tried to make, but failed.

Turner flew the couple in a high wing single motored cabine Lockheed air express powered with Wasp engine senior engine, and brought the plane down for refueling at Torreon, El Paso, and Tucson. He said they had battled storms all the way over the Mexican mountains and deserts, and through Arizona as far as the Colorado river.

UNBEATEN PURDUE ELEVEN MEETS N. U. TODAY

ROSS POUNDS BATTALINO TO DEFEAT IN 10 ROUNDS

DAZZLES BAT WITH SPEED AND SHARP PUNCHES

Phagan and Dazzo Win Bouts.

Barney Ross, until four years ago an unknown little Jewish lad in Chicago's back yard, last night opened his bid for the lightweight championship of the world. Fighting his first windup bout in the Stadium, Ross hammered and punched Bat Battalino, former 126 pound champion, for ten rounds to win the unanimous decision of the judges and referee and the overwhelming approval of a crowd of twelve thousand.

Golden Gloves champion in 1929 and an intercity winner in the amateur bouts with New York, Barney flashed into the front rank of the professional fighters last night. Battalino, who eleven months ago blasted the featherweight title hopes of Earl Mastro in the same ring, offered the final test for Ross. There had been many who thought Barney could not whip the veteran, whose greatest asset is an almost superhuman ability to absorb punishment without weakening.

Continues Fast Pace.

Did Barney Ross prove his ability? Ask the twelve thousand who saw last night's bout. From the first round until the last second Barney fought as if he will be licking top-notchers for years. Without mistake, with cool deliberation and unerring aim, he battled Battalino, brought him to his haunches, and tied him up in clinches. When Barney had raced through half the match, setting a swift championship pace, even those who were hoping for his triumph wondered if he could maintain his lead.

Will he tire? they asked. Barney answered with rally after rally and then concluded with a flurry of punches that had Battalino rocking in the center of the ring.

How completely Ross dominated Battalino is best told by the official score. Probably no Stadium windup ever has been given such positive expression of approval. The scoring of the judges and referee follows:

Referee Tommy Thomas—58 to 42.
Judge Edward Klein—61 to 39.
Judge Rube Metz—59 to 41.

Only One Round Close.

Nine rounds were so one sided that even Ross' strongest backers were surprised. Only one round, the ninth, might have been called even. All others were Barney's and in the tenth Barney finished with an attack which experience would have cautioned him against using. Braving the threat of a knockout punch, Ross ripped and tore at Bat as if it were the first round.

Ross appeared to be nervous while receiving instructions. But once in action he swung into a fighting form which indicated he was ready for Battalino's best. Retreating when necessary to avoid Bat's lunging right hand and jabbing with lightning flashes to the head, Ross kept Battalino off balance. In the clinches, where Battalino was expected to pound Ross' ribs, Barney invariably warded off his opponent.

Ross had speed. Seldom did he miss the easy target in front of him. Intently watching lest one slip undo many minutes of superiority, Barney piled up winning points with monotonous regularity.

Once in the seventh round and again in the ninth Battalino scored with heavy blows. Then, if ever, Barney might have quit. But his courage matched his ability and he came back to outpunch Bat.

Ross Draws $3,000.

The final bell brought Ross jubilantly to his corner. There was no need of official announcement. Ross knew and the crowd knew the winner.

The official gross receipts were $21,463. Ross received 17½ per cent of the net, or approximately $3,000. Battalino's 15 per cent amounted to $2,500. This was Ross' 39th pro fight. He has lost only one and scored 16 knockouts.

Charley Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, won a tug of war from Jack Roper of Chicago in eight rounds. Retzlaff inflicted more punishment, cutting Roper's left eye severely in the third round, but he could not put away his opponent.

Art Lasky, Minneapolis, was undermatched with Harold Murphy, Florida heavyweight. Murphy's retreat saved him for four rounds, after which his corner men threw in a towel to save him and the spectators further punishment.

Dazzo Beats Sharkey.

Paul Dazzo, who fought in the 1930 Golden Gloves amateur tournament under the name of Paul Leberto, defeated Jack Sharkey of St. Paul in six rounds. This bout was almost as thrilling as the windup. Dazzo, who recently knocked out Frankie Wallace of Cleveland, again demonstrated he is on the way to title consideration in the featherweight division.

Johnny Phagan, the third Golden Gloves winner on the card, whipped Harvey Carothers, Moline, Ill., welterweight, convincingly in four rounds. Phagan jarred Carothers twice, but could not drop him in the fashion he used to floor Eric Campe in the international fights with Germany last summer.

THE GUMPS—NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT.

WELL-MIN- TONIGHT IS WHEN I BURN THEM UP—WHEN THEY HEAR MY SPEECH ON WHAT OUR COUNTRY NEEDS TODAY- MY ELECTION WILL BE A LAND SLIDE AND A CLEAN SWEEP- THEN ALL THAT REMAINS IS FOR ME TO TAKE YOU BY THE HAND AND LEAD YOU INTO THE WHITE HOUSE-
AND LET ME TAKE YOU BY THE HAND— WE CAN USE SOME OF THAT FIRE AND THUNDER THAT YOU ARE PUTTING INTO YOUR SPEECH RIGHT HERE—
IT'S ALL RIGHT TO TELL WHAT THE COUNTRY NEEDS- BUT WHAT WE NEED AROUND THIS HOUSE IS A MAN—
THAT CELLAR NEEDS A GOOD CLEANING OUT— AND THERE IS PLENTY OF WORK THAT WE CAN FIND FOR YOU TO DO— GRAB A BROOM! AND IF YOU'RE GOING TO MAKE A CLEAN SWEEP- START RIGHT HERE NOW!

Meet Revived Hoosiers at Stagg Field.

CHICAGO.		INDIANA.
Bellatrom [164]	L. E.	Lyons [201]
Cassels [202]	L. T.	Rehm [195]
Manelkis [198]	L. G.	Nylee [187]
Parsons [187]	C.	Spannuth [195]
Zenner [170]	R. G.	Keckich [188]
J. Spearing [198]	R. T.	Anglemyer [195]
Gabel [184]	R. E.	Dickey [200]
Sahlin [160]	Q. B.	Opasik [163]
Zimmer [184]	L. H.	Fuqua [165]
Birney [165]	R. H.	Saluski [160]
Summers [174]	F. B.	Jones [190]

Referee—Dr. J. H. Nichols [Oberlin]. Umpire—Dr. F. A. Lambert [Ohio State]. Field Judge—Herbert Stegen [Michigan]. Head linesman—Milton Ghee [Dartmouth].

Chicago and Indiana, a couple of improved football teams, will stage the big battle of improvement at Stagg field today to determine whether the spirit of progress has made more rapid strides on the Midway or at Bloomington.

The athletic renaissance of one or the other will be halted, for the moment, and its chance at this year's Big Ten title will be canceled. The other will be saved for a later Saturday's reckoning.

Indiana's sport revival, already evidenced in conference baseball and indoor track championships achieved this year, is marked in a football way with its victory over Iowa and its spirited deadlock with Ohio State. The Maroon rebirth exists, so far as the records go, of persistent optimism and undisclosed possibilities.

Page's Ankle Improves.

The condition of Pat Page's ankle, one of the most mysterious phases of Coach Stagg's mystery team, took a turn for the better yesterday. Disclaiming all guile, Dr. C. O. Molander, team physician, revealed that young Pat may play part of today's match. This means about 10 yards added to the Maroon punting, if true.

Another intangible factor with the Maroons is the fact that today's game—the 22d between Chicago and Indiana—may be the last time Coach Stagg will put a team on the field against the Hoosiers.

Indiana will have the edge in weight and big game experience, in addition to such specific items as the spectacular passing of Eugene Opasik to that pair of expert outfielders, Lyons and Dickey. For speed, they have Ivan Fuqua, who has learned to control his alacrity for football purposes; Don Veller, and Jess Babb. For such ripping as is necessary, they have Edmonds and Jones, 190 pounds of plunger apiece, and Stan Saluski, a good man.

Chicago will depend on a defense which so far—which is not very far—has been sturdy, and a pair of elusive runners, Peter Zimmer and Vinson Sahlin.

Any successful antics performed by Pat Page Jr. will be highly pleasing to his father, Mr. Stagg's assistant, who coached the Hoosier team before the régime of E. C. Hayes set in at Bloomington.

The pertinent point to be settled is the worth of the respective lines, since the back fields appear to be equally dangerous.

The Hoosier wall, averaging 194 pounds, will have a nine-pound edge, which may or may not be important. From tackle to tackle the Maroons are at least the equals of the Indiana nucleus, largely because of the presence of Bill Cassels and John Spearing, both heavy veteran tackles, and Walter Manelkis, 198 pound guard, whose general approach to guarding has earned him the nickname of "Beast."

Hoosier Ends Better.

At ends, Indiana has a monumental advantage in the persons of Dickey and Lyons, the latter a young colored fellow who caused the Maroons no end of worry last year. All of this will call for extra dexterity on the part of the Chicago secondary defense, which will have the added burden of remaining alert for an atmospheric full of flying forward passes.

Notre Dame Hopes Carnegie Is Tough, But Not Too Tough

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 21.—Notre Dame's football boys are hoping tonight that Carnegie Tech's football players are rougher than advertised and that in addition they will play over their heads, as the sayin' goes, in the contest here tomorrow. The Irish have had their fill of pushovers and are fretting for some real wicked opposition to tune them up for the balance of their calendar.

Of course, no one on the Notre Dame campus will go so far as to ask for a surprise such as the Irish received in 1926 when Tech flattened them 19 to 0, and no one is asking for for a repetition of the 27 to 7 Skibo victory in 1923, which gave Notre Dame is first home licking in 23 years. But just the same the Irish would like to be scared a little by the Scotch in this tenth meeting between the two institutions tomorrow.

No Pulling of Punches.

As much as Notre Dame would like to see a close game, for interest stimulating purposes if for nothing else, the Irish, of course, will not pull any punches.

Coach Hunk Anderson has announced his first string lineup as his opening cast. There is to be no fiddling around, and it will be up to the Skibos to save their kilts once the blast is turned on at 2 o'clock.

The first team is aware of the foxy stuff that the Tech lads are expected to introduce early in the game and will, it is said, forget the demands of "book football" in anticipating the visitors' offense. There is said to be no unorthodox maneuver for which the Irish will not be prepared in tomorrow's contest.

All Hands Informed.

The second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth teams also have been told of all these picturesque possibilities, but it is expected that before they get in the rabbit will have been taken out of the hat, the bowl of goldfish will have appeared from under the mandarin robe and all of the other tricks will have been cleared from the picture. Therefore all the second and third and the fourth teams, etc., will have to do will be to go through the routine business of matching the merits of the shift with the wing back technique.

This first string combination will include the back field ensemble of Jaskwhich, quarter back; Lukats and Brancheau, half backs, and Melinkovich, full back. When Anderson sees fit to make a change in this alignment, he undoubtedly will haul out the entire outfit and send in Vezar, the Hollywood quarter back; Koken and Sheeketski, half backs, and Banas, full back. It's an old custom at Notre Dame to do everything in shifts. Back field combinations are seldom juggled around. When one doesn't click, you don't put in a new mainspring; you change the whole works.

Blocking! That's the Thing.

Brancheau and Lukats are a couple of ball carriers who would gladden the heart of practically every coach in the country, but here at Notre Dame they have been pressing their initials on the honor roll by as thorough a

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern university's reception committee for the Boilermakers of Purdue, eleven brawny lads, completed plans last night for the pageant of block and tackle which will be staged this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Dyche stadium. Not even the game against Michigan has aroused the Northwestern boys as has the impending clash with Purdue.

Michigan only provided settlement of what had been a telegraphic rivalry, for until this fall the teams had not met since 1925. But those Boilermakers! Smile when you mention their names. Those boys from Lafayette, taking advantage of the charity schedule offered by the faculty committee last year, ruined an otherwise perfect season when they tripped up the Wildcats, 7 to 0, at Soldiers' field.

Purdue Jinx Continues.

Purdue is anathema to the Wildcats. After the Purdue football men forced the Wildcats into a triple tie for the 1931 championship, the basketball team twice last winter won from Northwestern and took first place in the Big Ten with Northwestern a poor second.

Purdue last fall added insult to injury. Not only did Purdue win, but it threw back Northwestern from Purdue's two yard line. There was some dispute whether Northwestern had received six tries to score, Purdue having been penalized twice, but when the Wildcats finally quit trying they were on the 11 yard line, a loss of nine yards. Purdue might have offered Northwestern a few more gratis attempts and forced them back to midfield. Such was the amiable conversation between camps after the game.

So it's apparent why Northwestern wishes to lick Purdue, if possible, by twenty touchdowns. The Wildcats just don't like the Boilermakers.

Boilermakers' Camp in Loop.

Purdue arrived in Chicago last night, camping in the loop. There was no preliminary practice at Dyche stadium and the Boilermakers won't appear there until game time. With the exception of Doxie Moore, right half back who was injured in the Wisconsin game last Saturday, Purdue will have the same strength which defeated Kansas State, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

Latest reports from the Wildcats placed Bob Gonya, former Mount Carmel prep star, and now regular tackle for Northwestern, on the injured list. Apparently a bruise, received in practice, may slow up the Chicago boy, but you can bet he'll be in the lineup unless he's on crutches. If Gonya is withdrawn from the game, Zuver, a sophomore, will replace him.

Special Rates for Children.

The conference knows, or at least suspects, that Purdue will complete its conference season undefeated if it passes the test today. And Northwestern knows, without a doubt, that its chance of reaching the top, should Michigan and the other leaders falter, is gone if defeated by Purdue.

Thirty-five thousand are expected to see the game. Almost that many tickets were sold last night. This afternoon boys of high school age, and this doesn't mean that they must be students, will be admitted for 55 cents. In addition 2,000 bleacher seats will be placed on sale at the north gate as general admission tickets for $1.65. There are many $3.30 reserved tickets left in the east and west stands.

Neither Team Favored.

Purdue and Northwestern await game time with neither favored in the wagering, if there is any. Both elevens have excellent kickers. Paul Moss for Purdue and Ollie Olson for Northwest-

W-G-N Presents Purdue's Battle with N. U. Today

W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the Northwestern-Purdue football game from Dyche stadium this afternoon. The broadcast will start at 1:30 p. m. with Quin Ryan describing the scenes prior to the game. The music of the bands will be picked up direct from the field.

Between halves, George Ade, the humorist, and L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central railroad system, both graduates of Purdue, will be introduced on the air.

Kipke Frets On, But His Wolverines Don't Fear Illini

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 21.—Illinois' eighteenth football dispute with Michigan, scheduled for tomorrow, doesn't promise to create any excitement, especially for the student body down at Urbana. Even around here there is none of that big game atmosphere and the cheer leaders, their white suits immaculately cleaned for the occasion, are at a loss to know where they are going to get the stimulus necessary for a proper rendition of their side line antics.

Michigan, despite Coach Harry Kipke's slightly mournful tones, expects to encounter no great difficulties in the path of another victory, thus keeping intact its Big Ten title chances. Only the cunning which Bob Zuppke, the Illini coach, has been known to use on opponents he especially loves to beat, Michigan among them, is being given any consideration. But the campus attitude is that the Zuppke cunning won't prove much of a deterrent when Harry Newman begins to throw passes and some of the other Wolverine boys start running.

Kipke to Use Four Strangers.

Kipke still insisted today that he would go through with his experiments, which included the services of four men who didn't start against Ohio State last week. Two of the seven originals will be spotted in new positions. These changes in themselves are sufficient indication of just how Illinois is regarded, Kipke's professed fears notwithstanding. He probably thinks the Illini a suitable squad from which to furnish a little experience for men who will be used regularly next season. And because the Wolverines still have a few tough foes ahead there is a desire to conserve the talent for when it will be needed the most.

However, there is a "but" attached to Kipke's plan to play an end at full back, a full back at a half and a second string wingman at one of the line extremities. The Michigan leader admitted today that he might lose his nerve at the last minute and leave Petoskey at end, instead of shoving him into the back field, but the chances are that he'll go through with at least this portion of his experiment. Petoskey, although he never has played full back, has carried the ball in that time honored end around play, so isn't entirely strange to the feel of the inflated oval.

Told to Watch Berry.

About all the Wolverines have been told to do is to keep a weather eye focused on Gil Berry, the Illini captain, who with his other abilities, can pass. Berry also can run, but the Wolverines, knowing their superiority against any kind of attack in which luck isn't so liable to play a prominent part, aren't fretting about that feature. The Wolverines kept Pug Rentner well leashed while beating Northwestern and they think similar methods will be equally effective against the Orange and Blue star, who usually is embarrassed by the absence of effective blockers.

What Michigan plans, although nothing much is being said about it, is to let the one time well satisfied Mr. Newman employ his passing skill to provide a lead, if possible. Given that lead and along with it a well defined proof that Illinois is not any tougher on attack than anticipated, the Wolverines probably will turn to the matter of giving Petoskey a workout as a plunging full back. And the two half backs will be provided with opportunity to show what they can do as runners.

Michigan Holds Edge.

In the 17 previous meetings of the two elevens, Michigan has considerably of an edge, most of which was piled up in the early days when Illinois was in its football swaddling clothes. The Wolverines won five in a row before Illinois crept through with its first win. Since that win which happened in 1919 Michigan has captured seven games to four taken by the lads from Urbana.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY MARCHMONT SCHWARTZ.
(As told to Charles Bartlett.)

MY greatest thrill as a football player? No. I didn't get it when I made that touchdown against Army at Soldiers' field in 1930, nor last year when I was getting away punts from the mud back of our goal line against Northwestern. As it turned out, I was thrown for a loss on the play that gave me my biggest kick in three years at Notre Dame.

It happened in the Navy game at Baltimore in 1929, my second appearance in a Notre Dame varsity uniform. Rockne had taken the team through spring practice and through the early fall drills. We opened the season with a 14 to 0 victory over Indiana. Rock missed Monday's practice, but turned up the next two days, although he was obviously in great pain. He didn't come out Thursday and his ailing leg was in such condition that when we left for Baltimore that night he was not along.

Tom Lieb, Rockne's assistant, was placed in charge of the team. Just before the game a long distance phone call came from South Bend. It was Roc', and we lined up in the dressing room, each one of the squad taking a turn at the receiver to hear him. He put it on good. It wasn't a pep talk, but just a few words of advice and encouragement to each player.

There were 86,000 in the stands when we came out for the game and Lieb gave the shock troops first call. These included Joe Savoldi, Bucky O'Connor, Al Gebert, and myself in the back field. We didn't do so well that day, but during the remainder of the season gained more yardage than the first string ball carriers.

The Wide Open Spaces! But Not Quite Wide Enough.

MARCHMONT SCHWARTZ.

I still don't know how it happened, but I tucked the ball under my arm and headed for what appeared to be a certain touchdown. It might have been the crowd or the fact that it was my first big game. Anyway, I started out. But did I get to that goal line? No, not even to the line of scrimmage. I slipped and started to fall about five yards back of the line and a tackler came up and finished the job of downing me. That was the cold water on the kick I had gotten out of seeing that big open space before me with the middies' goal line unprotected.

The Navy scored on us shortly after that, but the regulars came back, Jack Elder and Larry Mullins going over to give us a 14 to 7 victory.

(Marchmont Schwartz, of Irish-Jewish parentage, is a native of New Orleans, La., but now resides in Bay St. Louis, Miss., where he received his high school training at St. Stanislaus High school. Chicagoans will remember him as a star of the St. Stanislaus team which went far in the national interscholastic basketball tournament at Loyola university. He played with two Notre Dame national championship football teams in 1929 and 1930 and was the offensive hero of last year's team. He is now an assistant coach at Notre Dame.)

HALF MILE OVAL MEANS NOTHING TO PIGEON HOLE

Old Campaigner First by Four Lengths.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Old Pigeon Hole peered out through his blue and white blinkers and took his first look at a half-mile race track yesterday when he paraded out to compete in the Oak Park purse at Sportman's park.

The old fellow was as frisky as ever and, if you had listened closely, you could have heard him say to himself, "All tracks look alike to me."

Old Pigeon Hole rolled home the winner of the seven furlong battle by four lengths. He cracked the track record into a million pieces when he ran the route in 1:26 3-5 after going the first six furlongs in 1:13 3-5. He was complete master of his rivals, which included Martie Flynn, Durva, Finnic, and the fleet Hot Shot. They finished in that order.

Maybe He Got Angry.

Because he never had been around a half mile track, Pigeon Hole did not get the backing the Chicago racegoers usually give him. They made their plunge on Martie Flynn and they backed Hot Shot and Finnic. Maybe it made Old Pigeon Hole mad. However, he seemed to be himself as he wheeled around the short turns, never far out from the rail, waiting for a chance to challenge.

It was Hot Shot that cut out the early pace but, when the field hit the clubhouse bend, Martie Flynn was closely lapped on him. Pigeon Hole was moving toward the two leaders and had reached third place.

Down the back stretch they flew, with Martie Flynn challenging and conquering Hot Shot just as they reached the turn. Determined old Pigeon Hole was clinging close to Martie Flynn and he also moved on past Hot Shot.

Pigeon Hole Starts Stepping.

In twenty more strides Pigeon Hole had conquered Martie Flynn. Once in front, Jockey Charley King took a tight hold on the old fellow and he was pulled up all through the late stages.

It was the tenth victory Pigeon Hole had scored in 13 starts in Chicago since he started his campaign at Arlington Park last July. He has never been far out of the money.

Late in the Lincoln Fields season some three weeks ago J. D. Mikel, young Illinois turf man, claimed Pigeon Hole from Mrs. L. A. Connors. He had started once before in the Mikel white and green jacket and didn't do so well. But he ran as well for Mikel yesterday as he ever did for Mrs. Connors.

On to Agua Caliente.

Pigeon Hole's price in the mutuels was $10.98, and as youthful Mr. Mikel cashed his winning tickets late in the afternoon he again served warning. "I'll win the Agua Caliente handicap with Pigeon Hole next March."

Pigeon Hole is 7 years old and is a son of Hollister-Pigeon Pie. He was a stake horse a few seasons back. Then he lost all form and drifted down to the cheapest selling plater class. He became a new horse almost overnight last July and since then has been the sensation of American racing.

Dundee Chops Self in Head with Ax Training for Bout

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Mike Dundee, Rock Island junior lightweight, who is training for a bout with Prince Saunders in St. Paul late this month, incurred a scalp wound when he hit himself in the head with an axe while chopping wood in training today. An artery was severed.

HARRISON PLAYS AUSTIN TODAY FOR PREP LEAD

Sectional Title May Be Clinched in Game.

Harrison Tech's football team gets its big chance today when it meets Austin at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, at 12:30 o'clock. A victory over Austin, now leading the west section with two triumphs, will virtually clinch the sectional title. Two teams, McKinley and Marshall, remain on the defending champion's schedule, but neither looms menacing. Harrison removed one of the obstacles from the path to its third west division championship when it defeated Crane Tech two weeks ago. It was Harrison's only Chicago Public School league contest. In nonleague games Harrison has been tied by Wendell Phillips and Mooseheart, lost to Lindblom, and defeated Morton.

Puplis Leads Attack.

Harrison will be at full strength for the game. Andy Puplis, who with Andy Pilney led the Hornets to the city championship last year, is expected to carry the brunt of the attack.

Immediately after the Austin-Harrison contest McKinley and Marshall will take the field in another west section game. McKinley is last in the sectional standings with two consecutive defeats, while Marshall was defeated by Austin in its only league game.

Another team with championship aspirations, Englewood, which is leading the central section with two straight triumphs, plays Hyde Park at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue, at 2:30 o'clock.

There will be little activity in the Suburban league. Morton will face Proviso at Maywood in the only contest. New Trier will meet La Grange on the latter's field in a nonleague contest.

In the Chicago Catholic High school league two games will be played today, while four, including the De La Salle-Mount Carmel charity game at Soldiers' field, are scheduled for tomorrow. In today's games St. Michael will meet De Paul at De Paul field and St. Ignatius will face Fenwick at Crevier stadium.

EVANSTON WINS, 32 TO 6.

Evanston continued its drive toward the football championship of the Suburban league by defeating Deerfield, 32 to 6, at Highland Park yesterday. Frank, playing right half back, led the attack, scoring three touchdowns.

BY HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 21.—"O, we're from I-O-Way, I-O-Way, that's where the tall corn grows."

That's the refrain of undergraduates and the advance guard of Hawkeye alumni heard tonight on the streets of this corn decorated college town, where University of Iowa's football eleven seeks its first conference victory since 1929 against the sturdy University of Minnesota Gophers tomorrow before a homecoming crowd.

Corn, although it may bring only ten cents a bushel to the farmers in this period of depressed agricultural prices, holds sole place of honor in the decorative plan. Ears of corn fill the windows of all business houses and shops. Stalks of corn are twined around and conceal the base of all electric light and telephone posts. A corn monument, usual feature of such occasions, stands in a roped off arena of the thoroughfare opposite the downtown campus buildings.

A Monument of Corn.

From a distance this monument appears a solid mass of corn, of yellow and gold ears conforming to the Iowa colors of old gold and black. From its broad base, perhaps 30 feet on each side, arises a square column on whose sides are spelled in red letters "Iowa" and "Minnesota" against a yellow corn background. Surmounting the column is a corn football with "I" on one side and "M" on the other. It is attractive and effective.

If one wonders how this architectural triumph is achieved, closer inspection reveals a wooden foundation to which are nailed halved ears of the corn which produce the illusion of a solid structure.

On every coat lapel, whether the wearer be Hawkeye or Gopher sympathizer, is a conspicuous yellow tin badge with black lettering reading "Iowa Homecoming." These badges are sold by Iowa co-eds for the benefit of some university activity for the modest sum of ten cents. There's a cup for the sorority selling the most badges. That's why they're on every lapel.

Iowa Still Hopeful.

Iowa, enthusiastic in its homecoming celebration, is more hopeful of the rate of its football eleven than cold figures warrant. There is no general expectation of victory against an opponent considered one of the best in the Big Ten. But there are frequent expressions of "I wouldn't be surprised to see our team come through." That fairly reflects Iowa opinion, although Wisconsin recorded victory, 34 to 0, and Indiana, 12 to 0. Iowa mistakes played a part in both defeats.

So far as weight is concerned, Minnesota has an advantage of less than two pounds average in the line. In the back field, however, the Gophers average about 15 pounds heavier.

Minnesota has a diversified attack, with passing, running plays and Jack Manders as a plunger. It has heavy, tall ends to receive passes. Iowa has not the weight for plunging so must employ quick starting runs by its agile backs, varied by occasional passes. It looks stronger on offense than on defense.

Against the season's figures and the actual weights, Iowa has the tradition of having downed the Gophers several times when the odds against them were equally great. While the all-time record with Iowa's oldest rival is seventeen victories for Minnesota in 25 contests, Iowa has taken eight of the last thirteen. They never tire here of talking of 1923 and 1929, when the Gophers were advance favorites and Oran Pape was the determining factor of 7 to 6 and 9 to 7 Hawkeye triumphs. Last year Minnesota won, 34 to 0.

There are other features. Both coaches are former Gopher players. Bernie Bierman last played in 1915 and Ossie Solem in 1912, but was still in law school and assisting with the squad when Bierman was making his sophomore reputation. Capt. Hass of Minnesota is an Iowa boy.

Iowa's eleven indulged only in light signal practice and dummy scrimmage formation this afternoon. Minnesota's squad arrived in Cedar Rapids, 25 miles distant, this morning, took their final workout on the Coe college gridiron and will motor to Iowa City about noon tomorrow.

West Virginia Wesleyan Defeats Duquesne, 7 to 6

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Intercepting a forward pass on his 17 yard line, Paul Beveridge, West Virginia Wesleyan full back, raced 83 yards to a touchdown which gave his team a 7 to 6 victory over Duquesne tonight. Art Bachtel followed the feat with a place kick for the margin of victory.

Washington and Jefferson Defeats Xavier, 34 to 0

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Washington and Jefferson university tonight defeated Xavier university, 34 to 0. The Washington and Jefferson back field made frequent advances on runs of 20 to 64 yards.

Wildcats Aim to Get Even for 1931 Setback

ern have no superiors in the Big Ten. Northwestern may be more dangerous on punts, for Pug Rentner will catch Moss' kicks and Pug may get quite a few yards on his returns.

Northwestern's line will outweigh Purdue's, but, defensively and offensively, there is no choice. Perhaps Purdue possesses more speed and general ability in its starting quartet of backs, Horstmann, Hecker, Pardonner, and Purvis. But this can be offset by the showing of Rentner and Olson who will be aided by two very good blockers, Potter and Kawal.

Who would care to name Rentner or Hecker as the better forward passer? Each can throw accurately and each team has receivers who won't miss.

Bands to Compete.

The purple uniformed band of Northwestern will appear with the Purdue horn blowers in musical and formative competition. No points will be awarded, however.

The game undoubtedly will climax Northwestern's home schedule. For that matter it shapes up as the best contest in Chicago this season. So if the Wildcats win, there'll be a lot of shouting and burning of wood piles on the north shore. Olson, Potter, and Rentner already have committed themselves to celebrate at a downtown hotel. Evidently these boys feel they'll finish on top this afternoon.

Wildcats Lead Series.

Victory for Purdue will even the all time series between the universities at nine each. The rivalry which began in 1895 is unusual, in that there has been no tie games. The nearest approach was Northwestern's 7 to 6 victory in 1928 and Purdue's 3 to 0 triumph in 1921. Back in 1899 Northwestern won, 29 to 0, for its greatest point total, while Purdue defeated the Purple, 38 to 6, in 1916.

PURDUE BRINGS 35.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Purdue's football squad of 35 players hustled into civilian clothes this afternoon after a spirited signal drill and boarded a train for Chicago ready for the game with Northwestern tomorrow.

Either Clarence Janecek or Rip Peters will start at right guard, while either Ben Merz or Emmett Lowery will be at right end. Otherwise the lineup will be the same as the one which started against Wisconsin.

The following players made the trip:

DETROIT BEATS WEST VIRGINIA ELEVEN, 26 TO 13

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21.—(AP)—The University of Detroit scored a 26 to 13 victory over the University of West Virginia tonight in a wide-open football game featured by forward passes and fumbles. Detroit's first two touchdowns were the results of West Virginia fumbles. The final Detroit touchdown came on an intercepted West Virginia pass in the closing minutes of the game.

Grange Boosts Bear Stock in Stapleton Game

Four and one-quarter tons of football players will go into action tomorrow when the Bears and the Stapleton club of Staten Island, N. Y., meet in a National Professional league game at Wrigley field.

And in the 2,251 pounds entered by the Bears will be Red Grange's important 185. Hurt in the Cardinal game here, Grange played some in the exhibition charity game in Cleveland Wednesday. His performance indicated he would be able to start at left halfback.

Grange's return gives the Bears much more punch in the backfield. This punch will be needed. In an earlier game the Bears underestimated Stapleton and were held to a scoreless tie. Stapleton has a heavy backfield in which the leaders are Ken Strong, 202, Doug Wyckoff, 215, and Leo Raskowski, 225.

Strong, nationally known for his exploits at New York university, is the third best ground gainer in the National league, being topped only by Bronko Nagurski of the Bears and Jock Grossman of Brooklyn.

It will be Stapleton's first appearance here and with the exception of Raskowski, who starred at Ohio State, and Wyckoff, who formerly played with Brooklyn, the visitors will present a roster of players completely new to Chicago.

It will be Ladies day and 20,000 women, who requested the tickets, will be in the crowd.

'Be Tough' Is Notre Dame's Plea to Tech

job of blocking as you could desire. This explains the frequent long runs by the full backs in the early season games. The agility, speed, and snakey hipped proclivities of the full backs at Notre Dame, as contrasted with the usual heavy legged, bone crushing types at other schools, also is an explanation.

Carnegie Tech will have a full back on the same order as Banas and Melinkovich. He is Jim O'Toole, who advance agents declare to be of the rapier type that pierces rather than smashes a line and who, when once through, can straighten up and sprint jelly legged like the triple gaited half backs of the Grange and Rentner school. O'Toole, however, is not considered the star of the Carnegie outfit, which from all indications hasn't the line material or the reserves that made other Tartan elevens specific menaces on the Notre Dame schedule.

McCaurdy Could Star.

Capt. Kavel and Capt. Sample, coleaders of the Pittsburgh brigade, are the most highly regarded men on the invaders' roster. Kavel is a half back and Sample a guard. Quarter Back Harry McCurdy, the Pittsburgh folks say, could be the star of the eleven if he was given to any degree of consistency. But his good performances are as widely scattered as a sailor's sweethearts. However, it is whispered in the Carnegie halls that Harry is due tomorrow. If he is, Notre Dame's goal line in all probability will be crossed at least once.

Forecast of a clear day and slightly higher temperatures brought great ecstasy to the ticket sales department this afternoon and caused to boost their early estimate of a 30,000 crowd to 35,000.

Expect 35,000.

As crowds are forming this season the possibilities of the game tomorrow scarcely seem an attraction for 35,000 paying customers. But it is borne in mind there is no fan more zestful than a Notre Dame fan and here it is late in October and no one has seen Notre Dame make a stand inside its 35 yard line. And no Notre Dame fan cares much for track meets in the fall even if the Irish did wear football pants as they ran up 135 points in their first two scheduled contests. No wonder everybody here is hoping the Notre Dame competitive football season will open tomorrow.

This afternoon the Skibos came over from their hideaway in Niles, Mich., and engaged in a workout in the Stadium. The doors were locked especially tight as Advisory Coach Wally Steffen and Coach Bob Waddell directed the drill. Notre Dame later worked on its regular practice field, confining operations to dummy scrimmage and signal drills.

Canton, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Kewanee High defeated Canton, 19 to 12, today before 4,000.

Macks Release Eddie Rommel, Veteran Hurler

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Eddie Rommel, who rose from a steamfitter's helper to one of the leading pitchers of the American league, reached the end of the trail today. Rommel, who for the last few years served as a relief pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, was given his unconditional release by Manager Connie Mack.

Raised on the sandlots along the eastern shore of Maryland, Rommel obtained a trial with the Baltimore club of the International league in 1917. But before he was to start his minor league career he was severely scalded while working on a ship.

He joined the Newark International league club in 1918, playing in ten games and filling every position but catcher. Rommel went south to train with the New York Giants the following year, but returned to Newark, and in 1920 he was obtained by the Athletics. Although the A's finished seventh that year, Rommel won 27 games while losing 13.

"Rommel, who is 35 years old, was a ten year man, having served with the Athletics from the start of the 1920 campaign," explained Mack. "Therefore, no major league club claiming him on waivers, he was entitled to his unconditional release."

Mack used Rommel in relief roles during the last two seasons. Rommel's best performance this year was his victory over Cleveland in an 18 inning battle at the new Cleveland Municipal stadium, a game which saw many records broken. Rommel replaced Lew Krausse, after the latter had pitched one inning, and hurled 17 innings to earn the victory.

40,000 Watch Army Battle Yale Today

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The Yale and Army football elevens, which have for two seasons battled to tie scores, will clash in the bowl tomorrow before about 40,000. Forecasts tonight slightly favored the West Pointers. The Bulldog eleven has failed to win in three starts this season. Ties with Bates and Chicago and a 7 to 2 defeat by Brown have presented the Bulldogs in their first headline match as the underdog.

Although the Army's lineup has been weakened by injuries received in the Pitt game last Saturday, the Cadets' feat of coming from behind and leading for a time the eleven which is regarded the strongest combination in the east, has brought it here a 5 to 3 favorite.

Army Varsity Works Out.

The Army first string squad came here in buses this afternoon from the team's quarters at the Roxbury school in Cheshire, practiced an hour in the bowl, and returned to Roxbury. Head Coach Ralph Sasse sent the regulars through signal rehearsal and Head Coach Mal Stevens followed the Army squad by leading the Yale team into the enclosure for a similar light drill.

No eleventh hour changes were indicated by either coach. Kilday, Jablonsky, and Kopsak were given out as Army starters who have been reported doubtful all week. Yale's alignment was unchanged from the list announced three days ago.

The return of Bob O'Connell to left end after a layoff for three weeks because of poor physical condition, and the promotion of Johnny Overall from the scrubs, has wrought a change in the Yale wingmen this week, and this defect in the Yale machine is believed to have been improved.

Johnson Starts at Center.

Joe Johnson, freshman captain last year, who was tried out at center last week in place of the veteran, Vic Malin, will be retained tomorrow, although the permanent occupancy of the position is not decided.

Partly cloudy weather tonight was predicted for tomorrow.

Since Yale and the Army resumed football, following the world war, Yale has won five games, the Army has tied its rivals four times and has won twice. Probable lineups:

YALE.		ARMY.
O'Connell	L. E.	King

Johnson	C.	Evans
Bronkie	R. G.	Jablonski

Howard Jones with Team as Mother-in-Law Dies

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 21.—(AP)—While Coach Howard Jones was en route to San Jose early today with the University of Southern California football team, his mother-in-law, Mrs. C. L. Dean, 74, died at the Trojan coach's home here. Mrs. Dean and her brother, Donald Dean, were with their mother. Mrs. Dean had been ill since July.

Outstanding Grid Battles of Day and Their Import

Northwestern-Purdue—Purdue, unbeaten, fights to maintain its place at the top of the Big Ten. Defeat for Northwestern would mean its definite elimination from championship consideration; victory would give it a chance of sharing in the conference title.

Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech — Both teams undefeated. Notre Dame, pointing toward another national championship, meets its first test of the season.

Michigan-Illinois—Michigan, at the top of the Big Ten, will be playing to keep its record clean with a chance for undisputed conference championship.

Chicago-Indiana—Both unbeaten in the Big Ten. Victory would establish the winner as a formidable threat to other conference teams if not an actual contender for the championship.

Iowa-Minnesota—Each has lost one conference game. Minnesota strives for a place near the top of the first division in the Big Ten. Iowa hopes to gain its first victory in three years and reestablish itself among conference leaders.

Pittsburgh-Ohio State—Pittsburgh, undefeated, has hopes of national championship. Ohio State battles for an intersectional victory to compensate for defeat by Michigan and a tie with Indiana.

Army-Yale—Both defeated, but because of long rivalry each sees victory in this game as a big step toward a successful season.

Harvard-Dartmouth—Harvard protecting an unblemished record and chance for an eastern championship. Dartmouth, beaten by Penn, seeks to regain prestige lost by its single defeat.

Stanford-Southern California—Battle for Coast conference championship. Both undefeated and the victor appears almost certain of winning the title.

Kansas State-Oklahoma—Big Six leadership at stake. Neither team has lost a conference game.

Nebraska-Kansas—Nebraska still unbeaten. Needs victory to keep in a tie for Big Six lead.

Kentucky-Virginia Poly, Florida-North Carolina State, Auburn-Tulane—All undefeated and all fighting for the Southern conference lead.

DUKE DESTROYS WAKE FOREST'S TITLE HOPES, 9-0

Durham, N. C., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A 60 yard sprint for a touchdown in the first period by Nick Laney, half back, and a safety in the second gave Duke university a 9 to 0 victory today over Wake Forest college.

More than 12,000 saw Duke eliminate Wake Forest from the list of undefeated teams. The victory put Duke in the lead for the North Carolina Big Five title by a wide margin.

Harvard School for Boys Meets Chicago Latin Today

80,000 to See Stanford Play U. S. C. Today

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Heading Pacific coast conference football games tomorrow, the University of Southern California Trojans and Stanford university Cardinals will meet at Palo Alto.

Approximately 80,000 fans are expected to almost fill the Stanford stadium. Coach Glenn [Pop] Warner's team is the favorite for the first time since 1926.

It's a Natural.

The game is regarded as the football natural of the coast season. Both teams are unbeaten. U. S. C. is last year's defending champion, and Stanford, with a list of increasingly impressive showings, appears to be headed toward the top. The outcome of the contest may be a critical point in the conference race.

Three other well matched conference games are listed.

At Seattle Navy Bill Ingram's University of California Bears will try their luck with Jimmy Phelan's University of Washington Huskies. In view of the Bears' "off again on again" propensities this year, the outcome of the game is much in doubt.

Fresh from a 7 to 2 victory over California last week, the Washington State Cougars meet Oregon State's Beavers in another traditional rival battle. Comparative scores against U. S. C. establish Oregon State the favorite.

Idaho Eleven Faces Oregon.

The University of Idaho Vandals, stronger this season than for a number of years, are nevertheless underdogs in a contest at Moscow against the strong Oregon university eleven.

In non-conference games Montana meets its traditional rival, Montana State, at Bozeman and the University of California at Los Angeles takes on California Tech in Los Angeles.

K. FITZPATRICK, PRINCETON TRACK COACH, RESIGNS

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Keene Fitzpatrick, veteran Princeton university track coach, has resigned, effective after the football season, the university board of athletic control announced tonight. Fitzpatrick, 69 years old, has trained and coached at Yale, Michigan, and Princeton for 42 years.

"The board has accepted Fitzpatrick's resignation only with reluctance and great regret," Thurston J. Davies, acting chairman of the board and supervisor of sports, said. "For 22 years Fitzpatrick has been to Princeton men the symbol of that which is fine in amateur sport."

WISCONSIN PREPS FOR OHIO GAME WITH COE TODAY

Spears Benches Kabat and Kranhold.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's football team meets the Coe college here tomorrow in what is regarded as a preparatory game for the Badgers' next Big Ten opponent, Ohio State.

This indifferent attitude toward tomorrow's game, which is reflected in the student body and Madison citizenry, is a marked reversal of the situation a decade ago. Wisconsin was considered lucky in the last game with Coe to tie, 7 to 7.

Although Spears declares he will not be certain of the starting lineup until shortly before the game, it appears certain that Capt. Gregory Kabat and Harvey Kranhold, both of whom have played in all games thus far, will be benched. Their unsatisfactory showing in the Purdue game has dropped them to the second team. Lineup:

WISCONSIN.		COE.

OHIO LOSES FERRALL.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Pitt's annual homecoming opened tonight with a smoker at which coaches and captains of the Pitt and Ohio State football teams and the mayor of Columbus spoke.

Ohio arrived this morning and took a light workout in the stadium. Oliphant replaced Cramer at quarter back in the Ohio lineup. Ferrall, star end, will not play against Pitt.

Natalie and McCann Win Cue Tourneys

Pasquale Natalie of Chicago and Joseph McCann of Detroit are the winners in the central division Nos. 1 and 2 pocket billiard tournaments which closed last night. The central division No. 1 tournament was held at the Kieckhefer recreation and the division No. 2 at the Bensinger billiard room.

McCann had eight victories and no defeats, while Natalie suffered one defeat in eight games. Natalie won his last game last night from Augie Kickhefer, world's three cushion champion, 100 to 35, in seven innings. McCann finished his schedule by defeating Maj. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—Buyers lacked aggressiveness and virtually all sections of the bond market suffered small losses today in continued restricted trading. With speculative enthusiasm suddenly dampened, high grade issues were the only class to give a good account of themselves.

Selling dried up in the last hour and most groups managed to retrieve some of the ground lost.

The announcement of a lower price for steel rails and expressions of hope that this would result in considerable business had no effect upon either industrial or railroad bonds.

Several Issues Weak.

Weakness developed in Baltimore and Ohio, Rock Island, Milwaukee, New York Central and International Telephone bonds and the upward movement in Canadian rail issues was arrested. Interborough U. S. sold lower on a few transactions. The aftermath of yesterday's substantial gain in Nickel Plate 6s of 1932 was an outcroping today of profit taking sales after an additional small gain in the early trading.

With few exceptions high grade rails and public utilities moved within a narrow range of yesterday's closings and at a loss on an average.

The treasury bond list was definitely lower, as might have been expected momentarily of a type of bond which has been reaching for new high levels.

NEW ISSUES.

Public offering is being made of an issue of $500,000 Onondaga county, New York, 3¾ per cent improvement bonds by Halsey, Stuart & Co. and Bancamerica-Blair corporation. The bonds mature serially from 1933 to 1952. Assessed valuation of the county is $471,956,282; total and net bonded debt, $2,654,000.

The Harris Trust and Savings bank, Chase Harris Forbes corporation and Republic National company of Dallas are offering $1,200,000 City of Dallas, Texas, 4¾ % Sewer Bonds, due serially October 1, 1933 to 1962.

Connecticut River Power.

Please review Connecticut River Power company first 5s, due 1952.—C. B. L.

Connecticut River Power company is controlled by New England Power association, part of the International Hydro-Electric system. It operates three hydro-electric generating stations along the Connecticut river. The bulk of its output is sold to New England Power company.

The $18,000,000 first open mortgage 5s, series A, due Oct. 1, 1952, are secured by all assets of the company. They are further secured by the contracts under which the power is sold. These contracts provide for annual payments of $3,180,000 to Connecticut River Power company. New England Power company has also pledged as security for these bonds its contract with Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston, whereby the Boston company agrees to pay $2,025,000 a year for a large block of power sold to it by New England Power.

The funds derived from the sale of the bonds will be paid to New England Power association to discharge the issuing company's debt incurred for the acquisition and construction of its properties. President Comerford said: "This construction and purchase represents a total cost of over $34,500,000."

Net earnings available for interest, depreciation, etc., in the twelve months to Aug. 31, 1932, were $2,998,000. For 1931 such net earnings were $2,603,000 Depreciation totals $240,000 a year and interest on the $18,000,000 bonds is $900,000 a year.

Giving effect to the new financing total assets on Aug. 31, 1932, were $44,508,000. Funded debt was $18,000,000 [this issue] and preferred and common stocks were carried at $16,200,000.

The bonds are reasonably sound.

Current Items.

In your articles you mention current assets and current liabilities. Just what do these terms mean?—A. O. S.

Current assets have been well defined as "shifting and changeable assets," such as cash, marketable securities, inventories and other items that may be readily liquidated. Current liabilities are amounts owed subject to change. They include bills payable, short term notes payable, interest accrued payable in the near future and other floating indebtedness.

Legal Tender Mining.

Legal Tender Mining company was incorporated in 1890. Its mine was reported to be a failure. In 1908 its stock had no value during inheritance tax proceedings. We therefore regard it as worthless.

RAILROADS NEAR POINT WHERE THEY MUST BUY

Equipment Banker Forecasts Orders.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The railroads of the United States hold a huge reservoir of orders involving maintenance of way and structural equipment, which sooner or later must be opened. When this is done employment in many lines of industrial and business equipment will be furnished to thousands of workers.

HARRY A. WHEELER.

This cheering news was furnished by Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Railway Business association, who is also president of the Railroad Equipment Finance corporation, when he was asked to say what effect the recent reduction in the price of rails to $40 a ton might have on railway purchases.

Size of Demand Unknown.

Mr. Wheeler said that while it has been estimated that the railroads require 1,000,000 tons of rails, it is not known how accurate this figure is. When President Hoover asked the railroads along with other industries to keep up their purchases to maintain employment the roads purchased a considerable quantity of rails which have not yet been laid, and the size of the roads' present rail inventory is not definitely known.

"For the four year period, 1926-'29, the average annual expenditure by the railroads on maintenance of way and structure was $842,000,000," Mr. Wheeler stated. "At the rate of current expenditures this amount will not exceed $379,000,000. Further, expenditures were much lower during 1930 and 1931 than during the preceding four year period.

Must Make Up Lack.

"Now when a man in straitened circumstances wears only one suit in two years and eats only two meals instead of his customary three, what he might have absorbed is lost forever and nothing happens. But this is not the case with the railroads. What they forego in lean years must be made up later. Deterioration in the railroad plant sets in the minute expenditures on it cease and this can only be cured through the spending of money to restore it."

Mr. Wheeler analyzed general railroad expenditures which now go mainly on improvement of the existing rail structure rather than on extensions.

"Since 1910 expenditures on extending railroad mileage have practically ceased," Mr. Wheeler continued. "In 1910 the total investments in railroads was 14 billion 500 million dollars. In 1930 it was over 25 billion dollars. The capital investment increased by 11 billion 500 million during the 20 year period and of this the increase was 6 billion between 1920 and 1930.

Gain in Rail Mileage.

"In 1910 there were 240,000 miles of rail, 25,000 miles of second track, and 85,000 miles in yards and sidings. In 1930 there was 260,000 miles of track, 42,000 miles of second track, and 126,000 miles in yards and sidings. Comparison of these figures indicates the amount now being spent on improvements.

"As an example of what the roads must do in the way of improving their plant is an order issued by the American Railway association in 1930. This order provided that all box cars, whether of wood or steel, equipped with a certain type of truck, should be barred after Jan. 1, 1936.

"This type of truck was all right when it was introduced, but now with the speed of freight trains much more rapid it is not satisfactory. There are now 600,000 cars so obsoletely equipped, and three years have passed with little or no improvements. To put these cars in condition would take the better part of the three years remaining. More than 750,000 tons of steel would be used, every railroad shop in the country would be reopened, and many steel foundries would be put to work.

Locomotives Deteriorate.

"Further, every car that goes into a shop in this instance is a major repair job. Its floors have to be torn up, and in cases of wood cars this means orders for lumber would have to be given. Then there are other parts that would have to be replaced."

Mr. Wheeler stated that locomotive equipment has been allowed to run down faster than car equipment. The roads haven't purchased as many engines as formerly, which means a decrease in railroad efficiency. He said that the cost of maintaining the old engines has become so heavy that they ought to be scrapped. The cost of repairing freight cars was so heavy last year, he added, that the sum expended would have scrapped a large amount of obsolete equipment.

Mr. Wheeler explained why railroad rail prices have not declined in proportion to other types of steel and commodities.

"The process of making steel is highly technical," Mr. Wheeler explained. "Tests have to be rigid and frequent, and the materials used must be perfect. There are comparatively few plants which have the facilities for making rails. Their capital investment in equipment is heavy. If many steel companies were making rails they would be cheaper, but because of the specialized work involved this has not been feasible."

Dusenberg Gets $125,000 of Orders in 10 Day Period

Dusenberg, Inc., reports that retail orders of custom built cars totaling $125,000 have been received in the last ten days.

Low Rail Rate for Trainload Wins Praise

BY SCRUTATOR.

How the railroads have driven large shippers to seek other and more economical means of transportation by failing to make trainload rates for freight was described in this column last Sunday. Among other results, it was argued that the withdrawal of the big shipping industries and companies lessened revenues of the railroads and so made it more difficult for them to serve the smaller shippers adequately and cheaply.

These views have been supported in several letters received by the writer. Moreover, specific examples are cited regarding the handicaps imposed on business by failures of the railroads to adopt for trainload freight the same principle of rates based on volume that now are granted for carload and less than carload freight.

Cites Specific Industries.

"With reference to your article regarding the reluctance of the railroad companies to cut freight rates in proportion to large volume of business," Russell E. Happey of the Jewett & Sowers Oil company, writes, "it has come at an opportune time and should be followed through, as it is right in every detail. The reason for this letter is to give you specific instances of where this is true and show that action along that line would help conditions a great deal.

"The pipe lines carrying crude oil to the five large Chicago refineries have practically eliminated the railroads from hauling this commodity from the south and southwest to Chicago. This is due to the fact that the transportation of this commodity in the pipe lines is approximately 25 per cent cheaper than the railroad cost of hauling.

Eliminates Independents.

"This has practically eliminated the independent refiners in the southwest from the Chicago market and in addition is enabling these Chicago refineries to cut the cost below what the independent distributors can deliver for retail. In addition to this, the interstate commerce commission governs the action and movements of both the pipe lines and the railroads in their freight charges. Therefore, it can readily be seen that the commission is discriminating against the railroads.

"The solution is, therefore, for the railroads to reduce their freight rates to an equal basis with the pipe lines. Any action that can be taken along this line will help stimulate the oil industry in and around Chicago."

I. C. C. Cancels Rates.

In our article was mentioned the fear of some railroad executives that the interstate commerce commission would block any attempt by the railroads to make trainload freight rates. A bit of light on that phase of the situation is furnished by W. W. W. Arthur.

"Referring to your article on the subject of lower railroad rates for trainload shipments," he writes, "many years ago the railroads in western territory provided trainload rates for shipments of live stock. These rates were canceled by orders of the interstate commerce commission."

Still another reader calls attention to the fact that the big lumber producers on the Pacific coast have turned to shipping by boat by way of the Panama canal when sending lumber to the eastern half of the United States. He says the lumber companies would use the railroads if economical trainload freight rates were granted.

SELL WARDMAN ASSETS UNDER FORECLOSURE

Nine properties in Washington, D. C., including the Wardman Park hotel, Carlton hotel and the department of justice building, were sold yesterday afternoon under foreclosure of a mortgage securing an issue of $11,000,000 of bonds of the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc.

The properties were bid in by nominees of reorganization managers acting under a plan for the reorganization of the properties for $2,800,000, also agreeing to assume obligations totaling $4,016,500. This plan has been accepted by more than 5,000 of the bondholders who hold more than 92 per cent of the bonds.

Under the foreclosure decree this sale will come up for confirmation before the Supreme court of the District of Columbia at 10 o'clock Monday morning, Oct. 24.

It was in connection with the sale of debentures of the Wardman Realty and Construction company, an affiliate of Wardman Real Estate Properties, that Halsey, Stuart & Co. was indicted by the federal grand jury. The allegations made in the indictment have been vigorously denied by the banking house. The debentures were secured by the common stock and certain mortgage bonds of Wardman Real Estate Properties.

Business Now Holding Gains, Reviews Show

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—The outstanding feature in the trade reviews of this week is the fact that reports from many centers show that the higher level of activity in wholesale and retail lines as well as in some manufacturing quarters is being maintained.

The election activities so far have had little influence on the course of economic events, according to the Business Week, except to delay developments generally, allowing only restricted speculative activity in the security markets, causing the piling up of idle bank reserves and putting cautious capital on the bread line at the lowest interest rates on record.

Bradstreet's Report.

Bradstreet's says in part:

"The reports indicate that the season's higher level of activity in wholesale and retail trades and certain light manufacturing lines has been maintained. Varied weather in different parts of the country has produced somewhat spotted conditions in retail trade, with warm weather retarding heavy clothing sales throughout the south and rains holding up general buying in the northeast.

"The reports show retailers making the best sales in men's and women's clothing. Millinery and shoes have also been largely featured. Among other articles showing fair volume were furniture and household and electrical supplies."

Reports Continue Good.

"Reports from the retail trade continue encouraging, with sales holding up well during the week, despite the rainy weather which was countrywide in its extent. Buying of shoes and clothing still is maintaining the lead, but other lines are beginning to feel the results of increased activity and strengthening prices. Merchandise inventories have been reduced to the smallest value known for many years, and purchases are being confined principally to current demand.

"More effort is being used to turn to quality merchandise, which permits a profitable markup. The more courageous attitude of retailers to obtain new business is reflected in the heavy increase in newspaper advertising linage in the large urban centers, with merchants reporting a better response to special sales events than at any time in the last two years."

YELLOW CAB CO. CUTS DIVIDEND; PROFITS SHRINK

Directors of the Chicago Yellow Cab company yesterday reduced the quarterly dividend on the capital stock to 25 cents as compared with the previous rate of 50 cents. The payment authorized will be made Dec. 1 to stockholders of record Nov. 18.

At the same time the company reported earnings for the first nine months of 1932 were sharply below the corresponding period last year. Net income was $536,357, equivalent to $1.34 a share on the 400,000 shares of stock outstanding. This contrasts with net of $975,374 or $2.44 a share in the same period last year.

COURT RULING ENDS RECEIVERSHIP OF S. W. STRAUS & CO., N.Y.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—Removal of the receivers recently named for S. W. Straus & Co., Inc., was ordered today by the Brooklyn division of the Appelate court. The decision reversed the action of Supreme Court Justice Alfred Norton, who ordered the receivership. The Appelate court in removing the receivers ordered the company to refrain from disposing of any of its assets.

The appelate justices also made the removal order contingent on the officers of Straus & Co., agreeing to an early trial on Attorney General John Bennett's complaint of misrepresentations in the sale of stocks and bonds. There was only one dissenting vote, four of the justices concurring in the decision.

An injunction issued by Judge Norton restraining the company from further security selling was also set aside. Under the decision the company is allowed to resume business, provided that "it does without making any false representations" as alleged by the attorney general's complaint.

CANADA'S SALE OF NEWSPRINT DROPS $3,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 21.—Canada's exports of newsprint, commodity second only to wheat in the dominion's foreign trade, were $3,000,000 less in September this year than they were in September last year. Official figures announced today give September exports as valued at $5,424,021, compared with $8,445,920 in September last year. In the previous month, August, exports were $7,251,752. For the twelve months ended September newsprint exports totalled $89,726,144 against $115,172,044 a year ago.

Leading figures of the industry have been in conference here this week, trying to devise some scheme whereby the various units can be put on a better financial basis. Three of the companies in the field, Abitibi, Price Brothers and Lake St. John, have defaulted interest in recent months. A relentless price war is raging for what business is available, and a depressing and chaotic condition has resulted.

FOREIGN FORAY FORCES DOLLAR LOWER IN PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—Another European speculative foray against the dollar broke out in the foreign exchange market today, carrying the French franc above the gold export point for the first time since early in June and forcing the other gold standard exchanges up 3 to 1 points.

The franc rose to 3.94½ cents, the highest price since June 13 last, but subsequently eased off to 3.93¾ cents, for a net gain of ½ point on the day. Guilders were up 3 points to 40.29 cents, and belgas and Swiss francs rose a point each to 13.92 cents and 19.34 cents, respectively.

Foreign exchange dealers were at a loss to determine the precise occasion for the latest "raid" on the dollar, unless it was that European speculators considered Gov. Roosevelt's declaration on the soldiers' bonus not sufficiently emphatic to close all further possibility of early cash payment.

Leavell Made Director of Armour of Delaware

He was also elected member of finance committees of both companies. Mr. Leavell is not a member of the board of Armour & Co. of Illinois, holder of the outstanding common stock of Armour of Delaware.

American Foundation Co. Wins Latvian Power Job

N. Y. Department Store Sales Showing Better

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Department store sales in the metropolitan district of New York declined 13.9 per cent from a year ago for the period between Oct. 1 and 14, the Federal Reserve bank reports. The decline during the first half of September was 17 per cent, the smallest since January; hence the October figures represent considerable improvement.

New Orleans-Havana Rail Ferry O. K.'d

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The Florida East Coast Railway company was authorized today by the interstate commerce commission to operate a car ferry service between New Orleans and Havana, Cuba, through its subsidiary, the Florida East Coast Car Ferry company.

Under the permission the Florida East Coast may compete with the operations of Seatrain lines, Inc., operating between New Orleans and Havana with the help of a federal shipping board loan.

Started Rate War.

When the Seatrain lines, formerly known as the Over-Seas railways, Inc., began operation of its Seatrain vessel in 1929 between New Orleans and Havana, the commission's decision said, it was invited to become a member of the steamship conference governing rates and practices in the gulf and south Atlantic.

But instead of doing so "it started a rate war in which it published no tariffs but repeatedly reduced rates on traffic regarded as attractive, made special allowances to shippers, paid rebates, discriminated between large and small shippers, and as a consequence of this policy the conference ceased to function as an organization for the discussion of rates and the publication of tariffs."

The commission said that it appeared shippers sometimes were transported between New Orleans and Havana on the S. S. Seatrain and their names entered as employés, since the vessel was not authorized to carry passengers.

Chicago Group Protested.

The application of the Florida East Coast was supported by the Mississippi Valley association, the Inland Waterways corporation, the Institute of American Meat Packers, the Port of New Orleans, the Louisville and Nashville, the Gulf, Mobile and Northern, and New Orleans Great Northern.

Tariffs filed by the Seatrain line were recently protested by the Chicago Association of Commerce, which contended that the Seatrain service, with its federal loan supplied in part by midwestern taxpayers, would operate to the disadvantage of middle western manufacturers. The tariffs, however, were allowed to go into effect by the commission, which simultaneously ordered a general investigation into the status of the Seatrain lines under the interstate commerce act.

UNITED CIGARS HAS BIG DEFICIT, COURT IS TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—During the first eight months of this year, the United Cigar Stores Corporation of America operated at a loss of $4,511,655, A. C. Allen, vice-president of the concern, testified today before Irwin Kurtz, referee in bankruptcy. This loss was divided $1,382,681 in sale losses, and $3,128,974 in real estate losses.

The loss was sustained, Mr. Allen testified, in spite of the fact that the company's loose tobacco sales increased 21 per cent over the same period for 1931, whereas, according to government figures, national production had fallen off 4.5 per cent.

The company's cigar sales decreased only 9 per cent as compared with an 18 per cent decrease in nationwide cigar production noted by the government and the United sales of cigarets fell off only 10 per cent as compared to a decrease of 12 per cent in the nation's production as shown in the government figures.

GEN'L MOTORS 1932 EARNINGS DROP SHARPLY

Total Up to Sept. 30 Is $10,555,175.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—General Motors corporation reports net earnings, including equities in the undivided profits or the losses of subsidiary and affiliated companies not consolidated, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1932, amounted to $10,555,175. This compares with earnings of $97,455,390 for the corresponding nine months of last year.

After deducting dividends of $7,032,622 on the preferred stock, there remains $3,522,553, being the amount earned on the common shares outstanding. This is equivalent to $0.03 a share on the common stock and compares with $2.08 a share earned in the first nine months of 1931.

Loss for Quarter.

Operations during the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1932, resulted in a net loss of $4,464,229, which, after providing $2,844,207 for preferred dividends, resulted in a loss on the common stock of $6,808,438, equivalent to $0.16 per share. This compares with net earnings of $13,333,214 for the third quarter of last year, which, after the deduction of preferred dividends amounted to $0.25 a share earned on the common stock.

Cash, United States Government and other marketable securities at Sept. 30, 1932, amounted to $209,098,832, compared with $205,029,119 at Dec. 31, 1931, and $264,107,166 at Sept. 30, 1931. Net working capital at Sept. 30, 1932, amounted to $240,411,639, compared with $273,915,923 at Dec. 31, 1931, and $318,526,557 at Sept. 30, 1931.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1932, General Motors dealers in the United States delivered to consumers 450,347 cars and trucks, compared with 800,234 cars and trucks in the corresponding period of 1931. Sales by General Motors operating divisions to dealers in the United States during this period amounted to 420,543 cars and trucks, compared with 814,959 cars and trucks in the first nine months of 1931.

The excess of deliveries to consumers over sales to dealers during the first nine months of 1932 therefore resulted in a decrease of 29,804 units in dealers' stocks in the United States, which compares with an increase of 14,725 cars and trucks during the comparable period of 1931. Total sales to dealers, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments, amounted to 492,323 cars and trucks, compared with 939,846 cars and trucks in the corresponding period of 1931.

Sales for Quarter.

During the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1932, General Motors dealers in the United States delivered to consumers 104,773 cars and trucks, compared with 206,670 cars and trucks in the corresponding quarter of 1931. Sales by General Motors operating divisions to dealers in the United States during this quarter amounted to 73,792 cars and trucks, compared with 189,285 cars and trucks in the third quarter of 1931.

Study Ways to Restore Bond Sales

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The Investment Bankers' Association of America meets next Monday at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for its annual convention. A special train carrying members from Chicago and western cities left yesterday over the Big Four-Chesapeake and Ohio route.

The business of investment bankers is the sale of bonds. This year they haven't been selling as many bonds as usual, what with reduced incomes, high taxes and the competition of the federal government, which has been selling hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of bonds to plug up a deficit.

Suffers from Past.

The business of selling bonds also has been suffering from some of its own past indiscretions. During the boom days securities with all sorts of speculative frills and furbelows were foisted upon a willing and unsuspecting public. A lot of these peculiar securities went under the general heading of bonds, although they were about as close to being a bond as a doughnut is to being a nut.

Having burnt its fingers up to the shoulder once, however, the investing public has been slow to regain its confidence in bonds.

And the process of restoring faith hasn't been helped a great deal by disclosures which have tended to show that in many cases the dice were loaded against the bond buyer.

Water Over Dam.

All this now is water over the dam, but it's going to have a pronounced effect upon the business of selling bonds. Nobody knows this better than the investment banker. His job now, as he sees it, is to offer the cleanest and best merchandise that he can find, tell all about it and convince the prospective purchaser that the latter is going to get a fair break.

He knows quite well that unless he does this he won't be able to sell his bonds.

Gradually the investing public is coming back into the bond market. Bond prices have been forging upward since the low point in June. Recently while the stock market has been forfeiting some of its previous gains, bond prices have held comparatively steady.

Going Back to Bonds.

People are going back to bonds. But there is this difference. They are discriminating very carefully between the good and the bad.

The investment banker has already begun to adjust his methods to this new attitude on the part of his customers. He now sees the chance to do a fair volume of business if he will give the investor what he wants—dependable merchandise.

The central theme of the convention at White Sulphur Springs, according to delegates leaving yesterday, will be this:

"Make the customer a client rather than merely a purchaser. Counsel him and help him, and try to protect him against loss instead of selling him anything you happen to have on the shelf."

This year's attendance at the convention is to be 25 per cent ahead of last year's attendance. Bond men are more optimistic than they have been for three years. They have found that consuming power and the will to buy are there and that the public only needs to be convinced that "this time it will be different."

GRAIN PIT SEES HOPE OF ENDING FEDERAL CURBS

Hyde Confers Here on Futures Trades.

Federal restrictions on trading in grain for future delivery may be removed and the responsibility for such trading shouldered by the Chicago Board of Trade, it was learned yesterday following a closed conference here between Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and directors of the exchange.

ARTHUR M. HYDE. [Harris-Ewing Photo.]

The cabinet officer vertified earlier reports that President Hoover had asked the department of agriculture to consider the advisability of lifting the regulations. Hyde, as administrative officer of the federal grain futures administration, would not need to have the President's order to act, it was explained.

Hyde Delays Decision.

The matter, which has been under consideration since a visit of a Board of Trade committee to Washington three weeks ago, was again taken under advisement by Hyde yesterday after the conference. He left at once to make a political speech for President Hoover in Wisconsin.

While both the secretary and exchange officials refused to comment upon the probable decision, it was pointed out by experts on the exchange that no assurance could be given to the government that the removal of restrictions would bring new speculative support to boost prices of grains at this time. Over a period of years, the experts said, the removal would be of benefit, but at present a record crop in Canada, together with the large amount of future contracts and cash grain held by the government agent which is liquidating the Canadian pools, would serve to depress world prices.

Carey Denies Compromise.

President Peter B. Carey of the Board of Trade yesterday issued a denial of the published rumor that a compromise was considered between the exchange and the federal grain futures commission. The board has appealed against the commission's ruling which would close the exchange for sixty days for failure to admit the Farmers' National Grain corporation to clearing house privileges.

"The Farmers' National matter is entirely outside of any conferences held with federal authorities on the subject of removing restrictions which have had a tendency to hold market prices at low levels," Mr. Carey said.

"We propose to fight our case to a finish in the courts in the belief that we are not legally compelled to award extraordinary and special privileges to one corporation because it is financed by the government and at the same time deny such privileges to other corporations, many of

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—Sharp declines were suffered by most of the group leaders on the stock exchange today. The selling was mainly professional in origin and evidently the bulk of it was for short account. Turnover was again small, but this is about the best thing that can be said of the session.

There was a disposition in some quarters to attribute the reaction to uneasiness engendered by the rather gloomy remarks of Montagu C. Norman, governor of the Bank of England, at the lord mayor's annual banquet in London last night, but this explanation seemed to be discounted by the fact that the London market did not get badly upset over the episode.

Talking for Debt Effect.

The general opinion instead seemed to be that the British banking head was merely plowing a little ground in advance for some new suggestions relating to war debts at the world economic conference in London next January. Mr. Norman's remarks were keyed to his conviction that the world does not seem to be able to cope with the forces of depression and some of those pondering his observations thought he might have meant to sound a warning that the worst is yet to come.

To counterbalance whatever effect the Norman remarks may have had on sentiment, the market had such bullish items as stability in commodity prices, the cut in steel rails which is expected to stimulate buying, and a boost of gasoline prices throughout a good part of the east in its favor, but it chose to push all them aside. For the moment the prevailing mood was one of pessimism, and friends of the market were compelled to stand aside and let it take its course.

Railroads Hard Hit.

Railroad shares which have been prominent on the upside ever since the market made its big drive last July were outstanding selling targets and some of the heaviest losses were suffered by members of this group. Union Pacific, which usually manages to distinguish itself whichever way the current is moving led the retreat with a drop of 5⅝ points. Atchison gave up 4¾, New York Central about 3, Delaware & Hudson 5½ and Lackawanna 4 points. Such issues as Illinois Central, New Haven, Southern Pacific, Baltimore& Ohio, Pennsylvania sold off 1 to 2 or more. The carriers are supposed to be in the way for some more good news when the new weekly carloadings report appears but traders seemed to ignore this item along with everything else of a bullish nature today.

Tobacco shares were heavy again points with Liggett & Myers in the ban.

CHICAGOAN FILES $300,000 LAWSUIT AGAINST UTILITY

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A $300,000 suit by William G. Maguire of 208 South La Salle street, Chicago, against the Utilities Power and Light corporation, a Virginia corporation, having offices in Chicago and New York, was disclosed today when Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook granted a defense motion to transfer the case to the federal court here.

Maguire alleged that under an agreement of Sept. 13, 1927, he was to be paid $300,000 for services rendered if the corporation bought within one year the assets of the Illinois corporation which controlled the Litchfield and Madison and Alton and Eastern railways.

He charges that, although the purchase was not consummated until Oct. 1, 1928, the defendant had agreed to the purchase before the year was up.

WM. WRIGLEY CO. THIRD QUARTER PROFIT IS LOWER

The William Wrigley Jr. company earned net profit of $1,701,489 in the quarter ended Sept. 31, the company reported yesterday. The net was equivalent to 86 cents a share on 1,976,315 shares and compared with net profit of $3,034,609, or $1.51, on 2,000,000 shares outstanding in the September quarter last year.

For the June quarter this year the company reported net of $1,880,340, equivalent to 95 cents a share. Net profit for the first nine months of 1932 was $5,709,209, or $2.88 a share, as compared with $8,457,792, or $4.22 a share, in the corresponding period last year.

Carey Visits Roosevelt.

Carey, who returned today from a visit with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt at Indianapolis, issued a statement saying "a feeling of confidence is growing in business and financial circles that the policies of Gov. Roosevelt, if elected president, would be both conservative and constructive.

"Gov. Roosevelt feels that independent farmer cooperative groups which have shown splendid growth in the last twenty-five years should be afforded proper protection. He is most emphatic in his determination, if elected, to remove unnecessary shackles from business, including those of the farmers' markets, which would eliminate scores of useless taxeating bureaus that form what has been termed the underbrush of bureaucracy."

Lifting of the restrictions, which have been in force for years, would permit the Board of Trade clearing house to receive reports of open grain trades for future delivery in excess of 500,000 bushels of wheat, corn, and oats and 200,000 bushels or more of rye. These reports now are made daily to the federal grain futures administration. A heavy tax has been collected on all such trades since last spring.

SMALL LOSSES IN COTTON FOLLOW EARLY GAINS

Cotton was offered freely by the south, where cash interests who were buying the spot article and hedging it by sales of distant futures. Speculative buying early was sufficient to strengthen prices moderately, but it gave out at the last and closing trades were around the bottom. There were net losses on futures in Chicago of 5 to 8 points, and outside 3 to 9 points. Spots were 5 points lower, with New York 6.30c, New Orleans 6.25c, Houston and Galveston 6.10c. Liverpool closed 8 points net lower. The J. E. Bennett & Co.-E. H. Miller report on ginnings to Oct. 18 showed 7,187,327 bales, compared with 9,495,985 bales for the same time last year.

Strength in hogs wa srather short-lived. Soon after a shade higher opening yesterday something happened to the props that supported the early market. The rally that started Thursday had few backers yesterday. Smaller houses hurriedly pulled away from the sagging market after placing out a few stronger bids which were later canceled, and buyers found it possible to make a slight saving in midsession and later. Opening sales ruled steady to 10c higher, but the losses at the close counterbalanced this upturn. Both the average and top were steady at $3.50 and $3.75.

Weakness reached into all but the light light and pigs. These were scarce and held a strong price basis through to the close of the session. Several orders for selected underweights averaging 160 lbs and below were carried over unfilled because of the shortage of suitable kinds. Buying on eastern account lately favors the lightest weight hogs at $3.65@3.75. Pigs averaging 100 lbs sold at $3.80 and roasters were listed at $4.00@4.50.

Cattle Move Up.

The cattle market put up a firm front for the 1,500 head that came into the yards yesterday and managed to recover a very small part of the losses registered in practically all classes earlier in the week. Pressure of receipts has been the principal factor contributing to the decline in cattle since the movement reached the season's peak. This week's arrivals are largest since last January, and average costs of steers stand lowest since June.

The general market for slaughter steers dropped 50@75c the first two days of the week, but has regained about a third of this loss in the last two days. Nothing strictly choice came in yesterday, the best here going at $7.90, while the bulk of steers sold at $5.75@7.60. Butcher stock declines were checked, too, but heifers are still 50@75c under the close of last week. Calves are selling $1.00 under the high point of last week.

Lambs in Sharp Rise.

There was a sharp rise in the market for slaughter lambs yesterday. Top sales of westerns reached $5.75, highest of the week, while natives to packers and city butchers sold up to $5.50. All the decline recorded the last few days has been recovered. Advances ranged from 10c to 40c, both extremes coming in the range offerings. Buyers took supplies eagerly, hoping that the new low prices in vogue in the wholesale trade might expand retail demand for dressed lamb, which is selling lower than any time last winter. Yearlings advanced 25@40c, $1 lb averages selling at $4.65. Matured sheep held steady and feeding in lambs were firm.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 200 cattle, 3,000 hogs and 1,500 sheep, against 151 cattle, 3,040 hogs and 11,007 sheep the previous Saturday, and 513 cattle, 10,003 hogs and 1,585 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 25,000 to 35,000. W. T. Reneker marked 25,000, G. W. Chandler 27,000, F. M. Sherwood and F. Knutzen 28,000, R. B. Fullis 30,000, J. M. Waters and F. W. Young 31,000, H. Wolfe $2,000, W. Garrett and O. C. Egan $3,000, and W. Morgan 35,000.
